Careful Management Makes A Dairy Of Distinction Farm

ANDY ANDREWS

ELVERSON (Chester Co.) — In dairy farm management, Melvin Zook knows all too well that all the details matter.

It was his careful steps in smoothing out the farm operations, examining the makeup of feed, as well as several farm improvements that helped garner him distinction.

Working with his father, Ivan, and his family (wife Jean; Michael, 7; Katrina, 4; Justin, 3; and Steven, 8 months old) and Merlin Petersheim, who lives nearby in Honey Brook, Zook continues to enjoy profitability from his management of the Dairy of Distinction Farm.

Melvin began farming with his father and has farmed all his life (except for a brief hiatus as a book dealer in Fairfax, Va.).

Dad keeps up

"Dad should get most of the credit for the award," said Melvin. "He's the one that keeps up with everything, makes sure everything is painted and cleaned up and so on. I just wouldn't have time to keep up with everything like he does."

Together Petersheim, who lives in Honey Brook and works full-time on the farm, the Zook family

Milk Processors Won't Say Where Money Spent

Editors Note: Dairy farmers have expressed concern about the difference between the price of milk at the retail counter and the price they receive at the farm. Where does the difference go? This is the first in a three-part investigative series by Staffer Vernon Achenbach Jr. on milk pricing and the dairy industry.

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — What happens to the difference in money between the amount the consumer hands over at the check-out line for milk and other dairy products and what gets turned over to the dairy farmer is not clear.

That information is not made public by the businesses which buy milk from farmers, especially those operations which use milk as an ingredient to manufacture other food products.

Some companies, such as Hershey Foods Corp., which use milk for making chocolate foods and other products, claim that trade secrets prevent them from divulging such information.

Long-Time Berlin Vo-Ag Teacher Not Ready To Retire

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — After 27 consecutive years of serving as a teenage mentor, you'd think a seasoned teacher would be strongly anticipating professional retirement.

But Doyle Paul, vocational agriculture instructor in the Berlin-Brothersvalley School District (his alma mater) and adviser to the Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA, chuckles at the supposition.

"I'm not even thinking about retiring," he said.

His classes are comprised of four categories: production agriculture, animal and plant science, agrimanagement units, and agricultural mechanics.

"The career has been so satisfying to me, I feel very good about our young people," he said.

Newly-Formed Foundation Promotes Ag Education

LOU ANN GOOD

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — "Every state is so much farther ahead than Pennsylvania in agricultural education," said Beth Heath Moore. "We want to provide curriculum material that presents ag in the right light."

Moore is the executive director of the newly formed Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living, established to educate students and adults about the importance of agriculture and how it affects their lives.

The Foundation aims for a wholistic approach for implementing ag education in the classroom. This means that math, science, art, history, and other subjects are integrated throughout the reading materials on agriculture.

"This approach is on the cutting edge of education," Moore said. "It's my understanding that teachers are looking for these types of materials and we want to provide them for the schools."

For example, a lesson on where and how pumpkins are grown would include activities to cut the pumpkin, count the seeds, bake them, measure ingredients to make a pie, and eat it would teach students science, math, and nutrition.

Studies show that the wholistic approach to teaching is much more effective for recall, according to Moore.

"Tell me, I'll forget; show me, I may remember; but, involve me, and I'll understand," is the learning philosophy for New York Agriculture in the Classroom's program.

New York is one of the states that the Foundation is using as a resource to develop their agricul-

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, October 16, 1991

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS. FEDERAL-STATE: Trucklot buying interest was mixed and selective, and while showing some improvement, remained no better than fair. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were fully adequate to ample and demand was noted as improving at several points. Whole breasts were often noted as at least adequate and generally more available on supplies of yellow with the bulk of new trading at steadier price levels. Legs were fully adequate. Leg quarters were in uneven balance but adequate overall. Thighs and drums were adequate with thighs in the closer balance. Wings were adequate to fully adequate.

National Egg Market

Wednesday, October 16, 1991

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE: Trade sentiment was generally steady. Cartoned egg demand was active in several areas as retail promotions stimulated some additional interest. Overall, demand was mostly moderate. Supplies were in an irregularly balanced position as most dealers were able to obtain what they needed. Breakers attempted to work as close as possible with needs and watched for further market developments.

USDA DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN MARKET SUMMARY WHEAT PRICES CONTINUED HIGHER WEDNESDAY ON CHINA TALKS; CORN PRICES FELL MODERATELY UNDER HARVEST PRESSURE; SOYBEAN PRICES MADE GAINS ON FUND BUYING. WHEAT 2 TO 8 CENTS LOWER. CORN STEADY TO 2 CENTS LOWER. SORGHUM 1 TO 4 CENTS LOWER. SOYBEANS 3 TO 7 CENTS HIGHER. WHEAT PRICES ADVANCED AND NEW CONTRACT HIGHS WERE MADE ON REPORTS CHINA MIGHT SOON BID FOR ONE MILLION TONNES U.S. EXPORT BONUS WHEAT. OTHER FACTORS IN UPTURN ARE GOOD EXPORT DEMAND FROM JAPAN AND INDICATIONS USSR WILL BE TARGETED SOON FOR TWO MILLION TONNES U.S. EXPORT BONUS WHEAT. CORN PRICES CONTINUED LOWER UNDER SEASONAL HARVEST PRESSURE AND LACK OF CLEAR DIRECTION ABOUT FOOD AID OR EXPORT CREDITS TO USSR. CORN HARVEST CONTINUES ACTIVE AND GAINS WERE LIMITED BY USDA REPORT THAT 66 PERCENT OF CROP HAD BEEN HARVESTED AS OF LAST SUNDAY, COMPARED TO 31 PERCENT A YEAR AGO. TUESDAY'S WEEKLY GRAIN INSPECTIONS FIGURES INDICATED A SLOW DEMAND FOR U.S. CORN, ALSO WEAKENED PRICES. NEWS THAT BRAZIL HAS MADE EARLIER-THAN-USUAL U.S. BEAN PURCHASE SENT SOYBEAN PRICES HIGHER AS FUND BUYING SET IN. HOWEVER, GAINS WERE LIMITED BY SMALLER AMOUNT PURCHASE THAN HOPED FOR. IDEAL HARVESTING CONDITIONSIN MIDWEST THIS WEEK ALSO UNDERPINNED GAINS IN SOYBEAN PRICES. SOYBEAN CROP IS REPORTED 58 PERCENT HARVESTED, AHEAD OF NORMAL.

EXPORT NEWS: JAPAN BOUGHT 130,500 TONNES OF WHEAT FOR DECEMBER. SOUTH KOREA BOUGHT 50,200 TONNES U.S. WHEAT, UNDER COMMERCIAL TERMS FOR DECEMBER. TAIWAN BOUGHT 54,000 TONNES U.S. NO. 2 YELLOW CORN FOR NOVEMBER SHIPMENT. USDA REPORTED SALES OF 200,000 TONNES CORN TO USSR FOR 91/92 MARKETING YEAR.

You'll Get Consistent, Risk-Free Performance From New Funk's G® Brand Hybrids

4393 105 Days
4472 110 Days
4530 113 Days
4624 118 Days

New Funk's G brand hybrids deliver consistent performance even under the stress of heat, drought, marginal soils or disease pressures. So you'll get virtually risk-free performance in good years — and in bad years.

Backed by CIBA-GEIGY research

You see, these hybrids are backed by nine years of CIBA-GEIGY Seed Division research. With local testing in growing conditions just like yours. That kind of research produces hybrids capable of standing up to anything mother nature has to offer. Hybrids that maximize your profit potential, while minimizing your risks.

Get complete performance

Plus, you get performance across the board. With big yields. But with 95% or better standability... 25% or less moisture... and intactness ratings under four. And you get all that in the maturity groups you need to spread your risks even more.

Limit your risks

Get risk-free performance on your farm today by calling Hoffman Seeds, Inc. You'll enjoy the peace of mind that comes from planting these new Funk's G brand hybrids.

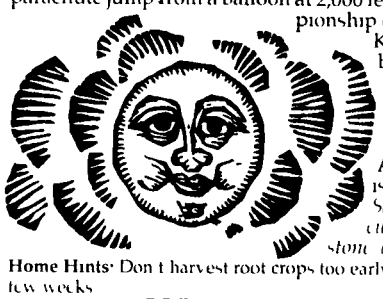
THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

OCT. 21-27, 1991

National Sunshine Week

Oct 22, 1797, inventor of the parachute, Andre Jacques Garnerin, makes the first parachute jump from a balloon at 2,000 feet Oct 23, 1915, the first national championship of horseshoe pitching is held at Kellerton, Kansas Oct 24, 1901, Anna Edson Taylor becomes the first person to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel Oct 26, 1881, the last of the Old West shoot-outs, the gunfight at the O K Corral, occurs at Tombstone, Ariz



Courage ought to have eyes as well as arms

Ask the Old Farmer: Who in the Sam Hill is (or was) Sam Hill?

Sam Hill was a judge of probate in the Connecti cut colony — 1750 or so, famed for fire, brimstone and general influence

Home Hints: Don t harvest root crops too early Most of them will keep in the soil for another few weeks

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Intermittent showers at the week's beginning usher in a cold wave and heavier rain Clearing for the weekend, but remaining cold

Greater New York-New Jersey: A brief stint of sunny skies and warm weather as the week begins, then turning cold, cloudy, and rainy for the rest of the week

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Clear skies and warm temperatures change to cold and rainy weather Cold and cloudy skies persist throughout the rest of the week

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: A cold snap arrives, bringing with it a few sprinkles through midweek The second half of the week is cloudy and cool

OPINION

The Human Side Of Farming

Here are some quotes from the editor delivered in a speach Wednesday evening to the annual meeting of the Huntingdon Fair Association.

* "People don't really associate their food with the farm. I'm always amazed when people say they don't eat meat, but they eat hamburgers."

* "If you think agriculture is not under the gun from environmental consumer groups, think again. When Ed Madigan took office from Clayton Yuetter as the national secretary of agriculture back in March, he immediately became a defendant in 3,500 lawsuits filed by environmental groups.

'I thought that was terrible,' Madigan told the American Farm Bureau Federation's National Affairs Conference, 'until I found out that was only the lawsuits filed against the Forest Service.'

In all, the new secretary of agriculture at the time, was named as a defendant in more than 30,000 such suits."

* "Any residue of animal medicine in milk is clearly a matter of concern. But on the side of the dairy farmer, I must say that today's test equipment can detect certain substances at levels of .08 parts per billion. That's the equivalent of a single pea in the Astrodome. Modern technology has given us the ability to find something wrong with everything, but the American food consumer has the most stringent regulation and state-of-the-art testing equipment for dairy herds and dairy veterinary practices in the world."

* "As farmers, you need to recognize that consumers have just as much right to know that you produce safe food for them as you have the right to know that the national auto manufacturer has produced its compact farm truck with a gas tank that will not explode on your next trip back the farm lane."

* "Farming is such a roller coaster ride. The markets go up and down; the kids get sick; the prize animal dies; it doesn't rain for months. Or the barn burns down. When everything fails,

You need to use what I call the human side of farming. It must start with the things on the inside. If you don't learn to use your human skills, you will never have the chance to use your technical information."

NOW IS THE TIME

By John Schwartz
Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Prepare Machinery For Winter

With fall harvest coming to an end, now is the time to prepare equipment for winter.

All equipment should be cleaned of dirt and debris. Replace worn and broken parts. Grease all moving parts and chains. Help to reduce rust by painting and oiling exposed steel and other metals.

If at all possible, store machinery inside buildings or provide other protection from rain and snow. A little care and attention now will increase the life of your equipment and keep it in top notch operating condition.

To Soil Test And Lime Fields

Fall is a great time to do your soil testing. By soil testing now, you will be able to lime this fall and give the lime time to start working in the soil before spring planting.

Also, by having your soil test results now, you will have time this winter to study them and make plans for your spring plant nutrient needs. These soil test reports will be useful in planning manure applications to fields.

Animal manure is an excellent source of plant nutrients and should be considered in planning your crop production program. Nutrient management legislature is working its way through Harrisburg. Soil testing will play a very important part in this legislation.

The sooner farmers start soil testing and applying only the nutrients necessary for top crop yields, the easier it will be for the farmers to be in compliance with nutrient management legislation.

For more information on nutrient management, soil testing, and use of animal manures in crop production, contact your county cooperative extension office.

To See How Important Lime Is To Crop Growth

Lime is used to neutralize soil acidity. The amount of lime required is determined by the soil pH, the crop being grown, and soil texture.

Your soil test results will give you recommendations on how much lime to apply to a field. It is important to apply this lime to improve plant growth.

Lime provides the following benefits in crop production:

- Increases the efficiency of applied nitrogen, phosphorous, and potassium.
- Reduces the availability of toxic soil components such as aluminum and manganese at low soil pH.
- Increases the activity of soil microorganisms, which break down organic matter.
- Provides calcium and magnesium for crop growth.
- Improves the physical condition of the soil.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ON KNOWING THE UNKNOWN GOD

October 20, 1991

Background Scripture: Acts 17.

Devotional Reading: I Corinthians 15:51-58.

In the August issue of Omni magazine, there was an article entitled, "The Mind of God." The article outlined a current debate within science as to whether the existence of God can ever be proven or disproven. Some scientists believe that it is quite possible, while others are just as certain that this is impossible.

What I found interesting in this article was the repeated suggestion that it is difficult for scientists to escape religious questions. Scientists often find that it is difficult to study the birth of the universe without pondering questions of intent. Even Physicist Paul Davies, who believes that science is a surer path to God than religion, acknowledges: "I am surprised by how many of my colleagues are, in fact, religious and hold very conventional beliefs." According to the Omni article, even the skeptical feel the world is more than a random accident. "There has to be more to it than just fact." And Thomas McDonough, a lecturer on engineering at Caltech, says, "Some scientists would say this [the intricate chemical structure making life possible] is a signpost that God does exist."

A DIVINE ORDER

Those of us who gather in local churches on Sunday mornings tend to think of ourselves as essentially the only ones believing in God — that beyond the order of the universe there is One who decreed that order. But there are lots of people belonging to no organized religion who nevertheless believe that there is a divine order, whether you call that source "God," "the Divine consciousness," or the "Mobile Cosmic Ether." There is large-scale agreement throughout the world that there is a reality that transcends what we experience of reality.

The difference, of course, comes when you try to identify that transcendent reality. Christians, of course, identify that reality as the God who is revealed to us in Jesus Christ. Jews, Moslems, Hindus, Buddhists Bahai's also believe in that reality, although their name for it and description of it may vary considerably. Many, who do not claim any organized religion, believe in some kind of ultimate reality, although generally not in the anthropomorphic terms that we do. For these and others, God may be the "unknown God" to whom Paul found a description on the Areopagus in Athens.

SO FAR, SO NEAR

Paul was favorably impressed with the religious searching for which he found so much evidence on Mar's Hill in Athens. "Men of Athens, I perceive that in every way you are very religious" (Acts 17:22). Then he goes on to make this arresting statement: "What therefore you worship as unknown, this I proclaim to you" (17:23).

Actually, that's what Christianity is all about, isn't it? Revealing the nature of the God who is unknown to so many. And what is that nature? How shall we characterize the Ground of Being for the whole universe? The answer: Jesus Christ. In the person of Jesus Christ we find the fullest revelation of what ultimate reality is like.

PARADISE TOBACCO SALES

ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS

We have been informed from several tobacco folks in the South that the Burley crop has cured early, lots of help is available for stripping, and tobacco will also be available for market earlier. It is important that you know that your 609 tobacco gets blended with Burley; therefore, we feel you should put emphasis on early stripping this year, so you're ready when the market is!! Help is easy to find, so hire some - GET STRIPPED!!!

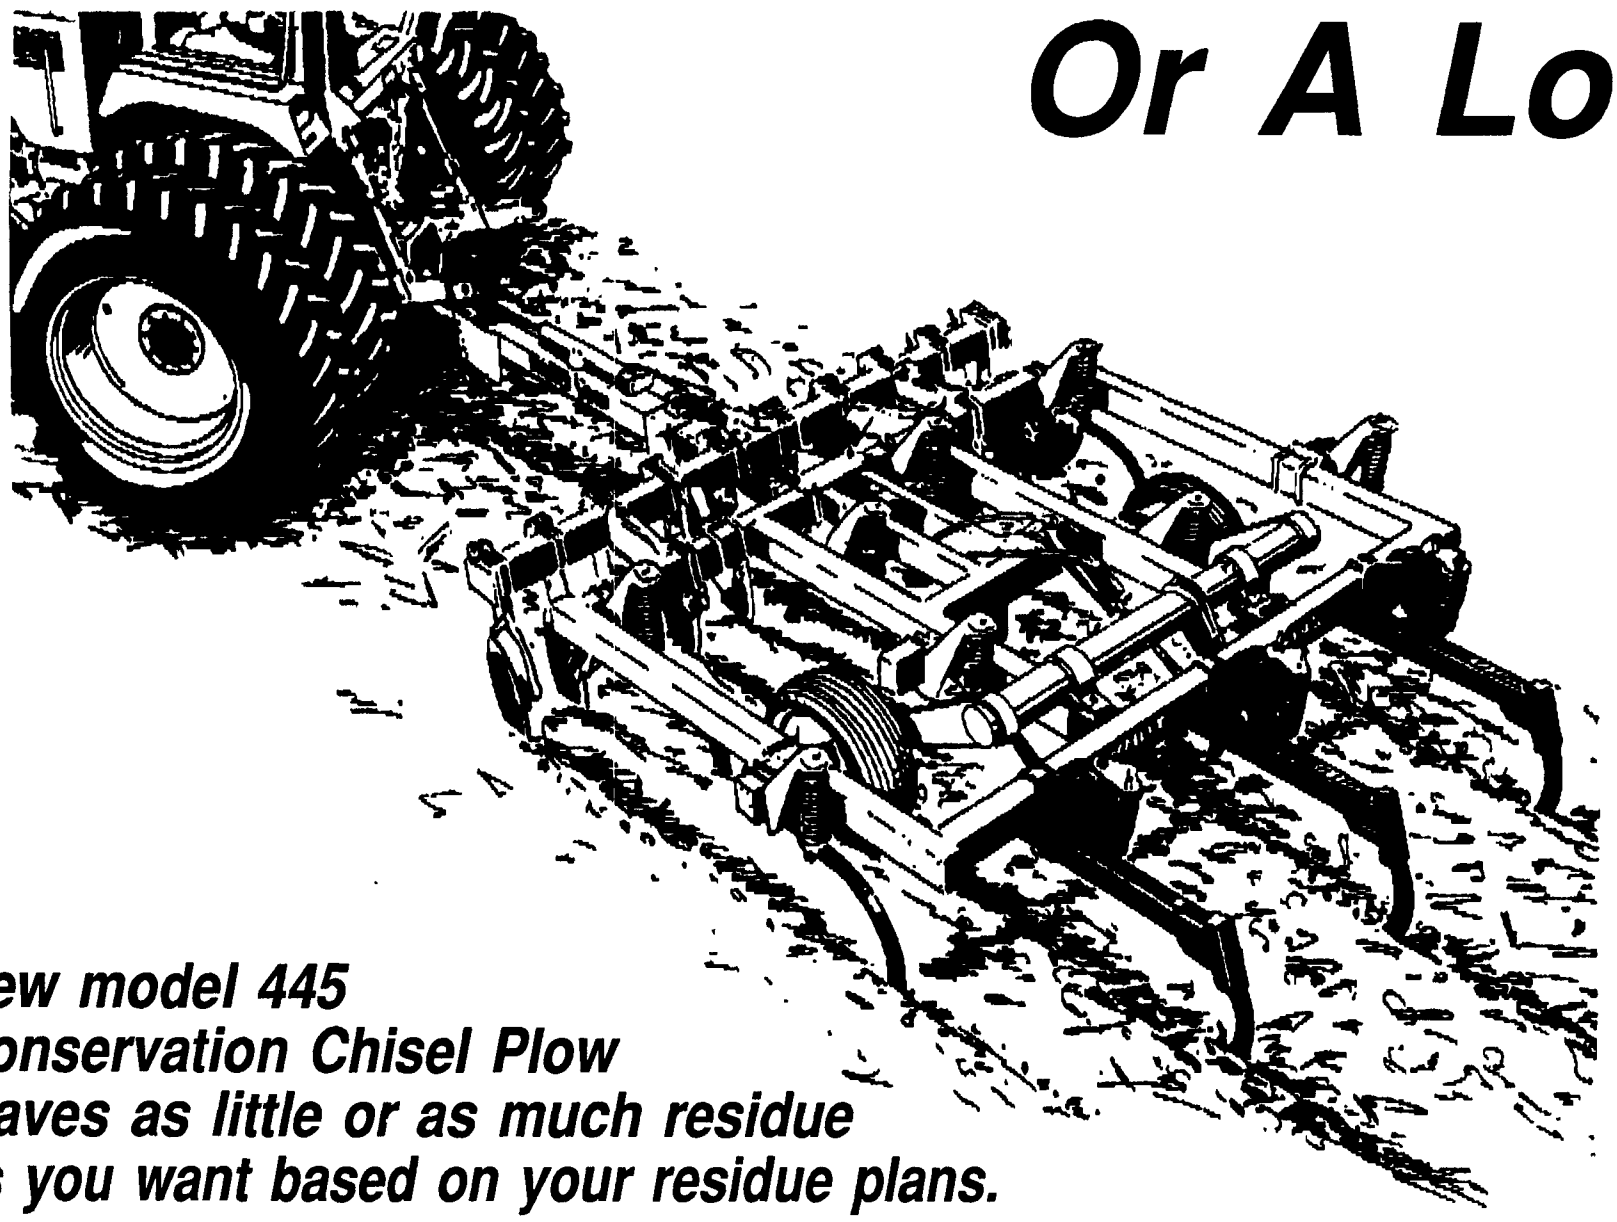
Bury A Little Residue Or A Lot



New model 445 Conservation Chisel Plow leaves as little or as much residue as you want based on your residue plans.

- Choose one of nine models from 7' to 23' working width. (19', 21' and 23' models fold flat).
- Rippled coulters and chisel points at 15" spacing leave more residue.
- Disc coulters and twisted shovels at 12" spacing leave less residue.
- Optional deep-till shanks till an extra 4-6" deeper than chisel shanks to reduce compaction problems and rip hardpan.
- Optional soil leveling bar provides a smoother secondary tillage pass.
- Ask your dealer about special low-rate financing.

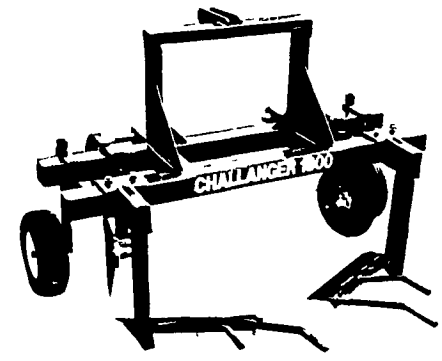
CHALLENGER MODEL 1800

PLASTIC MULCH LIFTER



After your vegetable crop is over the Challenger is designed to retrieve the plastic mulch to the surface of the ground.

Will lift plastics from 3 ft. to 5 ft. wide with fast and easy adjustments.

On lifting plows, the farmer has choice of "Rock shears" or "Deep-suck shears" by Case International.

Its heavy duty "C" springs on the disk coulters are designed to go over rocks and cut the toughest trash and vines which keeps from clogging. Has depth control wheels for constant depth control.

Heavy shanks have ¾" safety shear bolts. Auto-reset is optional.

The best part of the Challenger is the price — it was designed with the small grower in mind— who doesn't want to invest a lot in removing his mulches.

This year hitch to a Challenger and let it do that dirty job!

Farm Group Keeps Watchful Eye On Animal Rights Activists

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — A cartoon on the back of a recent animal welfare newsletter has a automobile driver careening off the road to avoid hitting a mouse — all the while heading straight for a human victim.

While this glowingly illustrates the lopsidedness in the views held by "animal rights" activists, it also points to the growing involvement of those groups that attack the use of animals for anything — food, scientific research, sports, etc.

But it is a concern that must weigh heavy on the minds of all those involved in large- and small-scale production agriculture. Many of the "animal rights" groups have huge numbers in their membership and are substantially funded. In the end, they could pose a threat to production agriculture on a wide scale.

Farmers who are concerned are invited to join a group called Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals (PRUA), an advocacy group formed in 1982 comprised of many farm organizations that seeks to promote the responsible and humane use of animals for food, research, and entertainment.

Maintains headquarters

PRUA is headed by former state rep. Kenneth E. Brandt, of Falmouth, who maintains headquarters for PRUA in Lancaster County.

Many of the animal rights groups want to eliminate the use of animals for all food use and scientific research.

But most PRUA members advocate the responsible use of animals — not completely banning their use.

A special program to test educational materials at the grade and high school levels will be initiated statewide in the next five to six months, according to Dr. Lowell L. Wilson, professor of animal science in Penn State's College of Agriculture. The program involves faculty from the departments of dairy and animal science, poultry sciences, agriculture and extension education, agricultural economics, rural sociology, and cooperative extension.

Examine material

The new program, funded by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, will examine, over a three-year span, effects of animal welfare material on students in school, as well as 4-H and FFA organizations throughout the state.

"We want to put forth a better image about the care and welfare of animals on farms," said Wilson. Wilson believes there needs to be more dialog between the farm and animal welfare groups.

Recently, Penn State released results from studies involving more than 1,000 veal calves. The studies show that "the majority of veal calves are healthy and well-treated," said Wilson.

Based on total blood protein levels, Wilson found that 88 percent of the calves had received colostrum. "All calves should have colostrum to give them early protection from diseases and to get them off to a better, healthier start," he said.

Producers under attack

Veal producers are under attack in particular from animal rights activists, mostly because the industry is "rather small and the least understood of all individual agricultural industries, including people who are involved in agriculture and those who are not," said Wilson.

There has been picketing of veal producer meetings on a regular basis, although this year, surprisingly, the number of such incidents are down, according to Wilson.

"There's not much you can do about the animal rights groups, because they hold a noncompromising philosophy," said Wilson. Accordingly, they do not show much interest in learning about other attitudes, and stick to their own opinions regardless of evidence.

To show their new concern for those who can benefit from the humane use of animals, PRUA itself is sponsoring a program called "Sharing the Harvest." The program is aimed at using surplus deer meat from this fall's deer harvest.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 13

GOOD WEEK FOR FIELDWORK: Below-normal temperatures and precipitation prevailed across the state. Precipitation occurred early and late in the week with dry conditions dominating during mid-week. Temperatures were coolest early and late in the week with the mid-week enjoying near normal temperatures. Respondents to our survey indicated that 5 days were suitable for fieldwork during the past week. Activities for the week included repairing fence; harvesting hay, fruit, potatoes, corn, corn silage, and soybeans; planting small grains; maintaining machinery; and caring for livestock.

CORN: At this time last year, the state's corn crop was rated 26 percent excellent, 48 percent good, 19 percent fair, 6 percent poor, and 1 percent very poor. By week's end, the corn crop was rated as being 0 percent in the dough stage, 16 percent in the dent stage, 54 percent in the mature stage, and 30 percent harvested. This compares to 1, 50, 43, and 6 percent respectively last year at this time. The five-year averages were 2, 32, 52, and 14 percent respectively. Corn harvest completion by region was 32 percent-northern, 29 percent-central, and 29 percent-southern. Corn silage harvest was 92 percent complete by week's end, compared to 52 percent at this time last year, and a 69 percent five- year average.

SOYBEANS: Pennsylvania soybean condition was rated 3 percent excellent, 28 percent good, 30 percent fair, 23 percent poor, and 16 percent very poor. Last year, soybeans were rated 20 percent excellent, 53 percent good, 22 percent fair, and 5 percent poor. Soybean harvest was 14 percent complete by week's end, 3 percent of the soybean crop was harvested by this time last year. The five-year average was 15 percent.

BARLEY AND WHEAT: Eighty-seven percent of the barley planting in the state was complete by week's end. Eighty-one percent of the barley had been planted at this time last year. The five-year average was 85 percent. Wheat planting was 74 percent complete. Sixty-one percent of the wheat had been planted by this time in 1990. The five-year average for wheat planting was 66 percent.

POTATOES: Potato harvest was 86 percent complete by week's end. A year ago, 76 percent of the state's potatoes had been harvested. The five-year average was 80 percent.

FALL PLOWING: Fall plowing across Pennsylvania was 72 percent complete by week's end. Last year at this time, 72 percent of fall plowing was complete. The five-year average for fall plowing completion was 76 percent.

FRUIT: Apple harvest by week's end was 73 percent complete. A year ago apple harvest was 71 percent complete. Eighty-seven percent of Pennsylvania's grapes were harvested by week's end. Last year at this time, 71 percent of the state's grapes had been harvested.

HAY AND PASTURE: Ninety-two percent of third cutting alfalfa was complete by week's end, compared to 85 percent in 1990. Fourth cutting alfalfa was 70 percent complete by the end of the week. Fifty-five percent had been cut by this time last year. The quality of hay made during the past week was rated 9 percent poor, 63 percent fair, and 28 percent good. The quality of feed being obtained from Pennsylvania's pastures was rated good by 4 percent, fair by 32 percent, poor by 31 percent, and very poor by 33 percent of our respondents.

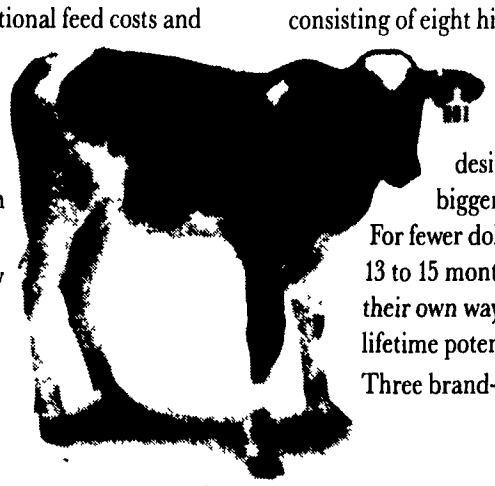
THEY'RE ALL GOING TO GIVE MILK SOMEDAY.

WHEN AND HOW MUCH IS UP TO YOU.

INTRODUCING PAYBACK 24™
A complete feed program for profitable herd replacement from Agway.

Until a heifer freshens and enters the milking string, she's pure expense. And every day beyond the optimum 24 months costs you an extra $2 to $3 per day, per head in additional feed costs and lost milk production. At 28 months, for example, that's $10,000 to $15,000 worth of lost income in a 120-cow herd. A lot of money, even in good times.

Yet on many Northeast dairy farms, first-calf heifers don't freshen until 28, 30 or even 32 months!



The Problem?
Inadequate nutrition and poor management practices that result in undernourished, undersized heifers, unable to achieve optimum growth and full potential.

The Solution? PAYBACK 24.
PAYBACK 24 is a comprehensive program consisting of eight high-quality Agway feeds, intensive nutrition and cost-effective management practices—all designed to help you raise bigger, healthier heifers faster. For fewer dollars. Ready to breed at 13 to 15 months. Ready to start paying their own way at 24 months with greater lifetime potential and profitability.

Three brand-new feeds were specially developed by Agway for use in this program. a Calf Pre-Starter that delivers exceptional performance, unlike any other in the Northeast and a calf starter containing highly palatable Ruma Sweet™, preferred by calves more than 4 to 1 in a Land O' Lakes trial of 15 competitive calf starter feeds A selection of heifer feeds containing Bovatec® in several protein levels rounds out the Payback 24 feed program.

Start Getting Your Payback Sooner.
Talk to your Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson. Get the whole story on Payback 24. And be sure to ask about your free 50 lb. bag of new Agway Calf Pre-Starter. It's the first step toward a more profitable future. Offer expires November 30, 1991.

-A 14 year-old Lititz R2 beekeeper finished his third year in the county 4-H bee club by taking grand prize in the project contest at the club roundup Thursday night at the honey house of Ralph Gamber, 910 State St., Lancaster.

Daniel Hershey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hershey scored a total of 92 out of a possible 100 points. Wilma Wenger, 76 Greenfield Road, Lancaster, was runner-up in the contest, which considered the honey exhibit as well as the project book, with a score of 91.

-Two Lancaster County 4-H dairy club members repeated as champions in project competition when the book scores were totaled at the annual banquet of the combined clubs last Friday night.

Paul Trimble, president of the county Holstin club and Mary Ellen Mumma, president of the Guernsey club, turned in high project book scores for the second consecutive year.

Trimble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Trimble, Quarryville R1, finished the project year with a total score of 97.6 to wins the Holstein breed competition. Miss Mumma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mumma of Manheim R1, scored 97.2 points out of possible 100 in the Guernsey club.

R. Edwin Harnish, Christiana R1, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Harnish, turned in the highest score of any club members when his Ayrshire project record totaled 98.5. He is the president of the county Ayrshire-Jersey club.

Dauphin 4-H Celebrates Achievements

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — It was a time of celebrating achievements and milestones. A time that brought the young and old together - generations celebrating 4-H. Dauphin County 4-H held their Achievement Night at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resource Center. In addition to receiving awards for the years accomplishments and getting project books returned to the 4-H'ers the volunteers were also recognized.

Volunteers spend countless hours with the 4-H'ers which contributes to the success of the program. Receiving plaques for volunteering for 15 years were Harvey Gipe, Jr., Amy Williams, and Carmen Healus. When asked why she has contributed 15 years of service to the 4-H program Carmen replied, "It's a great leadership program! There are opportunities to better 4-H." Not having grown up in 4-H Carmen became involved when she moved to Dauphin County from the Philadelphia area. "I wanted to get involved in horses, at that time it was for my kids, who are no longer in 4-H." Her involvement in the 4-H program helped her get acquainted in a new community. One of the biggest reasons she has stayed with the program, despite the fact that her children are no longer involved, is the personal satisfaction of helping kids. "Seeing them trot for the first time and their expressions makes it all worth while. Plus it offers leadership to the kids." But the kids aren't the only ones who develop their leadership skills. Carmen has witnessed development in others as well as herself. "It has made me a better speaker which has been beneficial for me personally and in my job. I feel more confident and it has boosted my self-esteem." Her advice to new leaders is "don't give up, the first year is the hardest, but it gets better. It really is an opportunity to "Make the Best Better."

Celebrating his last year in 4-H Mark Brubaker commented when asked why he stayed in the program for 12 years, "All the opportunities that were available to me. It kept me active in something structured so I wasn't as prone to getting into trouble." His opportunities to Make the Best Better included being involved in the Exchange Club, camp, IFYE (International Four-H Youth Exchange), the competition at State Days, and a trip to Chicago in 1989 for the National 4-H Congress. His advice to new 4-Her's is "Stay at it, fill out the blue form, keep your head up and strive to make the best better." He emphasized that youth need to be involved enough to be successful and to build on that success.

In addition to the recognition for achievements by 4-Her's and volunteers, participants heard a motivational presentation by Jim Short, of Delaware County Cooperative Extension. Jim's presentation "The Power of Positive Thinking" emphasized that we become what we picture ourselves to be. The 4-H motto is "To Make The Best Better" if 4-Her's apply that they can be what they want to be with their given talents. Jim also stressed the importance of setting goals for oneself and finding one's niche in life.

More celebration came at the conclusion of the evening when youth and adults joined in refreshments and learning new dance steps.

DON'T OPERATE IN THE RED !

HELP YOUR FARM OPERATE IN THE BLACK !

The Big Dutchman Champion chain feed trough allows 3 1/4" wide feed area in front of the cage. The grind auger only 1 1/4". At 9 birds in a 24" cage, this means that Big Dutchman gives each bird 8 2/3 square inches of feed area, the drag auger only a mere 3 1/3.

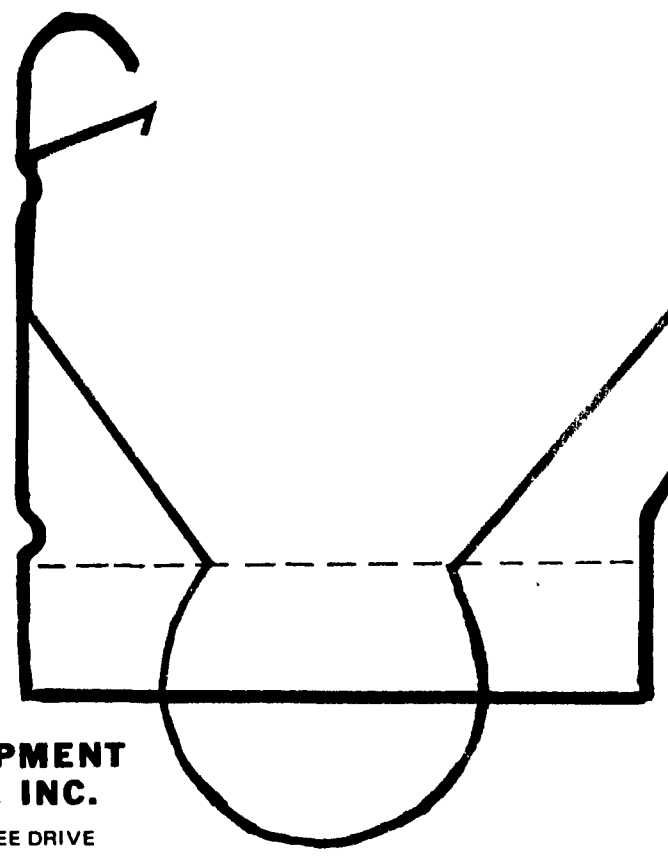
The superior design of the Big Dutchman trough reduces spillage because of the extra high lip and curl.
The drag auger trough wastes feed.

The increased feed space in the Big Dutchman trough allows us to run the feeder as few as 3 times per day while the limited feed space of the auger trough forces the grower to run the feeders at least 8 times daily.

Big Dutchman has over 2 1/2 times more feed space per bird

When you increase the number of times the feeder has to be run, you also increase stress on the birds and movement in the cage causing excess damaged eggs.

Most local producers now realize the value of the chain feeder over the grind auger.



Don't short change your birds of the feed they need for Production !

ture educational program. Maryland is another state that Moore finds has impressive materials.

To develop materials, the Foundation hopes that university students will write classroom curriculum that also would enable the student to receive university credit.

Some curriculum is already available through FFA, 4-H, commodity representatives and others. The Foundation plans to network with these groups to provide materials for the classroom.

"We don't want to compete with these groups — they are doing a great job," Moore stressed, "but we want to make more resources available."

In the summer of 1992, the Foundation plans to offer a five-day workshop for 70 teachers. Teachers will be taught how to teach academic projects with a hands on approach to ag. In addition, teachers will be given classroom material worth $500 to $600 to motivate them to integrate the lessons into classroom instruction. The Foundation hopes the teachers will be enthusiastic with the materials and will introduce it to principals and school superintendents.

This summer, the Foundation sent a Pennsylvania teacher, who does not have agricultural background, to a Maryland Ag in the Classroom workshop. According to Moore, the teacher is excited about the program. She said that it taught her how to motivate her first graders to learn math and science and at the same time how to maintain resources that are so important to the state.

A development committee has been named to organize the teachers' workshop and to decide how to handle requests. In time for the summer workshop, the Foundation wants to have the curriculum materials approved by the U.S. Department of Education.

At this point the Foundation does not want to become a distribution center for curriculum. The Foundation's focus is to market the materials available and to refer inquiries to commodity and ag-interest groups.

"One of the unique aspects with our program compared with other states is that we want to reach all age groups," Moore said.

Executive director Beth Heath Moore reviews curriculum material used for ag education in other states. Moore works at her Chambersburg home since the Foundation does not have its own facilities.

While other states focus on classroom instruction, the Foundation plans to establish a speakers' bureau with a list of speakers that can present the agriculture story to groups such as the Lions' and women's clubs.

The Foundation's slogan is "Feeding Minds for a Successful Tomorrow." Moore said that it is essential that the people understand how ag affects everyday life so that agriculture can continue successfully.

"Our key is not to focus on production but on how agriculture affects life," Moore said. "In the classroom, you can start with lunch or clothes or shoes and show how agriculture was involved in helping produce the finished product."

For agriculture to continue successfully, people must understand the value of the industry and its economical impact. "The general public often does not associate such as health and economy with agriculture," Moore said. "We want them to know that agriculture is Pennsylvania's number one industry, generating $35 billion annually and providing 20 percent of the state's work force.

Although the Foundation does not want to lose its ag identity, the board members realized that if agriculture appeared in the Foundation name, the materials would automatically be discarded by many teachers who resist teaching agriculture.

Board members include Ellis Griffith, Alexandria; Marvin Beshore, Harrisburg; Don Mincemoyer, Mifflinburg; Steve Bussen, Ephrata, Hal Doran, State College; Laura England, North Wales; Jeff Troutman, Lancaster; and Don Unangst, Mercer.

The Foundation is seeking volunteers and dollars. Contact Beth Heald Moore, executive director for Pa. Foundation for Better Living, 5399 Guitner Rd., Chambersburg, PA 17201; (717) 375-2639.

Agreement Signed Between Ohio And Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania and Ohio have signed a reciprocity agreement that will permit farmers and pesticide applicators, certified in either state, to apply pesticides within both states.

The agreement was signed by Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff and by Fred L. Dailey, Director of the Ohio Department of Agriculture during the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture's (NASDA) annual meeting in Seattle, Washington.

Applicators are still required to meet annual licensing and registration requirements for both states, but the agreement eliminates the costly and time-consuming task of completing certification examinations in two states.

"Agricultural activities can't start and stop at state lines. Ohio joins West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey, and becomes the fifth state to sign a reciprocity agreement with Pennsylvania. This agreement is one more sign that agricultural officials can work together to protect farmers and consumers," Wolff said.

Dailey pointed out that Ohio has similar reciprocity agreements with Michigan and Indiana. "An agreement of this sort only makes sense and certainly reduces the hoops farmers must go through in order to be able to complete necessary tasks," Dailey said.

For more information on pesticide applications under the new reciprocity agreement, contact Pennsylvania's Bureau of Plant Industry, (717) 787-4843.

Pennsylvania Dairy Products Are Safe

TERRY MADDOX
County Extension Agent

Milk and dairy products have always played a vital role in good nutrition. Our dairy industry, the leading segment of Pennsylvania agriculture, also plays a major role in the state's economy.

The commonwealth's commercial dairy farmers market 10.2 billion pounds of milk annually (nearly 1.2 billion gallons), so milk inspection is no easy task. This steady supply is taken for granted, but a lot goes on behind the scenes.

About 85 percent of the state's dairy farmers are involved in the Interstate Milk Shippers (IMS) agreement. Plants and supplies that qualify under this program are eligible to bid on contracts to supply dairy products to federal agencies or planes and trains that travel interstate. They may also sell their products in other states without additional inspections.

Sanitation Assured

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is committed to a nationally uniform and reliable program for milk and dairy product inspection, and demands compliance by the dairy industry in all matters that safeguard human health.

The Division of Milk Sanitation enforces the laws that ensure consumers are receiving a safe and wholesome supply of milk and dairy products.

Staff members formulate inspection techniques, develop policy interpretations of new processes, initiate investigations, issue permits and certificates, meet with federal and state agencies to promote cooperative programs among the states, and conduct hearings on new regulations or permit revocations.

Fourteen regional milk sanitarians evaluate the milking system installations and processing procedures for compliance of standards. Because the plant layout directly affects the desirability of a processing operation, milk sanitarians must give final approval of building and equipment plans.

Evaluating Laboratories

One microbiologist specializes in the evaluation of commercial laboratories approved for official analysis of milk and dairy products. One sanitarian heads a program in timing and sealing continuous-flow pasteurizing systems.

Pennsylvania goes further than just milk inspection. Ice cream plants, powder plants, cheese plants, butter plants and single service container manufacturers are also inspected.

A very unique situation exists in Pennsylvania with regard to milk sanitation and inspection. Over 250 additional inspectors are hired by the dairy industry and certified by the department under the approved inspector system.

Pennsylvania was the first state to institute this system. Other states have moved in this direction, but Pennsylvania's system is different because the inspectors are certified to do complete inspections on the farm.

Certification Required

Department milk sanitarians certify the approved milk inspectors and work with each inspector on at least 10 percent of their farms each year.

Not only do approved inspectors have the necessary experience and training, but they are required to apply for a certificate of approval and to re-register with the department every year. Certificates of approval can be suspended or revoked if deemed necessary.

Designated inspectors are qualified to do complete farm inspections, but have been further evaluated by department sanitarians to work on farms shipping interstate with the IMS program. Milk haulers must pass a bacteriological examination before they are certified and licensed by the Division of Milk Sanitation to pick up and transport milk.

Industry Leadership

Pennsylvania's dairy industry has long been a leader in the production and marketing of top-grade food products. Public demand has created this need.

The Division of Milk Sanitation is making it possible with constant surveillance by well-trained and dedicated individuals. So enjoy your dairy products, for the department will strive to keep them safe and wholesome!

Target Date Now A Deadline

DICK BARTH
General Manager

After seven years of discussion, planning and a 2-year voluntary merger period, the PA DHIA Board has established a deadline for reorganization of the DHIA system in Pennsylvania.

At the board meeting on Oct. 3, an action was taken that changes the target date of Oct. 1, 1992 into a deadline for all county associations to merge and allow their members to become direct members of the state association.

Some of you may not know what this issue is all about, so let's back up a little bit. In 1982 the PA DHIA Board adopted its first strategic plan in which three major goals were identified.

The first was to develop a region manager staff to improve communications and support for members across the state. That goal was completed in 1985.

The second was to develop and control its own data processing operation and staff. This goal was completed in 1987.

The third objective was to examine the federated DHIA structure in Pennsylvania and determine if changes were needed to assure members of high quality services into the future.

Work to reach this last goal began in 1987 when a task force was assembled to study the issue. It recommended that the federated structure be replaced with a direct member organization with all DHIA operations centrally controlled and all employees centrally managed. Hence the commonly used term "centralization." Implicit in the recommendation was the understanding that members would be able to control association service rates and policies through its elected board of directors.

In late 1988 the PA DHIA Board adopted principles of control and operation that laid the foundation for the new organization. About a year later, bylaws were adopted for the new organization to be effective on Oct. 1, 1992, a date that was also established as a target date for reorganization to be completed.

The first county to merge did so in 1989 and so far 28 more have followed suit. Another 13 are actively planning merger within the next three months.

The recent board action moved the association into a new phase of reorganization which establishes Oct. 1, 1992 as a deadline and only direct members will receive services from PA DHIA after that.

County associations and their members that have not merged by then will no longer be able to receive laboratory services, data processing services, employee benefits, and a wide variety of other services and products from PA DHIA, including certification of member records as official.

In its action, the board also stipulated that any member may apply for direct membership, and any supervisor may apply for employement as a direct employee of PA DHIA. This provides members the opportunity to retain PA DHIA services and protect their official records if their county association decides to affiliate with another state association.

PA DHIA has worked diligently over the last five years to develop an association that is controlled by members through their elected representatives. Support functions have been put in place that are needed to support a centrally managed operation.

The attitude of staff is that of understanding and responsiveness to members' needs for high quality services at an affordable price. In short, there is no reason to fear this deadline and every reason to look forward to the improvements in operations that will result from it.

In succeeding articles over the next few weeks, I will explain more specifically why reorganization is needed. Please watch this column for more information.

In the meantime, you may hear more about this issue. If you have any questions at all about it, please call Jim Garrity, Dixie Burris or Dick Barth at 800-344-8378. We will be glad to answer them.

ARIS QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

ARIS allows dairymen and their authorized veterinarians and nutritional consultants to access individual DHIA herd records from a personal computer to the main computer in State College. Call the State DHIA office number listed in the FOCUS column head to learn more about how you can use this unique DHIA service to increase the profitability of your herd and the DHIA records you produce.

Q: How much does ARIS cost?

A: The sign-up fee is $95. This covers the manual and the software. There is a subscription fee of $25 per year, billed in January. If you are a consultant, you must pay a one-time charge of $5 per head you acquire release for. The other two charges vary depending on how much time you spend connected to our mainframe and how many reports you run. The connect charge is 30 cents per minute of peak time (8 a.m. to 5 p.m.), and 15 cents per minute of off-peak time. The CPU (Central Processor Unit) charge is $4.20 per CPU minute. The CPU charge is for the work DHIA's computer does when generating and downloading your reports.

How Does Your Herd Compare?

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — This data is pulled from Pennsylvania DHIA's mainframe computer each week. It is a one-week summary representing approximately one-fourth of the herds on test, as they are tested monthly.

These data are valuable from a business management standpoint and can be used for comparing your operations to the averages from almost 1,400 herds across the state.

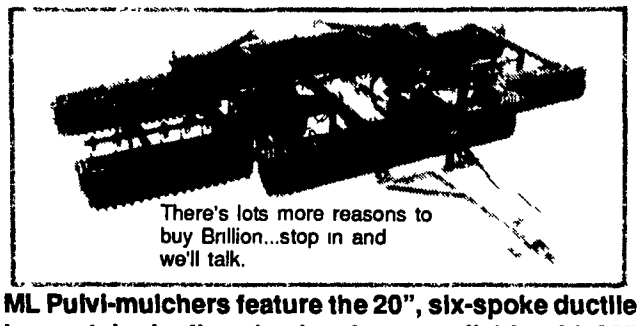
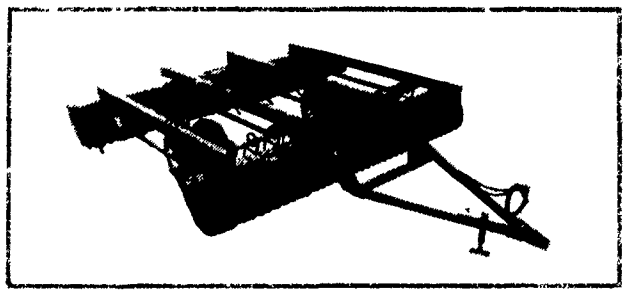
Meet The Challenge

When Looking For Quality Buy Brillion Pulvi-Mulchers



There's lots more reasons to buy Brillion...stop in and we'll talk.

ML Pulvi-mulchers feature the 20", six-spoke ductile iron notched roller wheel and now available with 20" ductile iron crowfoot wheel. The Brillion Pulvi-mulcher crushes both surface and bured lumps and converts fall and spring plowing into a clod-free seedbed. The ductile iron wheels carry a five-year warranty against breakage. Available in 12'6", 13'10" and 15'2".



The WL Series is the latest example of how Brillion has met the challenge of the earth and the competition. The front rollers break up surface clods. "C" shaped ribbon teeth or "S" spring tine teeth break up the soil to 6" in depth and pulls clods to the surface. Available in 21'8", 25' & 30' Widths. Ductile Roller Wheels firm without compaction.

RESEARCH REPORT

Doebler's launches search for new alfalfas

by Bill Camerer

Finding a new alfalfa with big ton capacity is no problem. We have dozens in our new test plots at Jersey Shore and Lancaster.

But it takes long hours, money and patience to find one that also stands up to Eastern winters and rolls out big yields for five to six years.

Doebler's Starmaster and Precedent will give you that now. Both are winter hardy. Both are resistant to the five major diseases that thin out stands. Both have outstanding yield and longevity records at Eastern land grant colleges.

So what are we looking for in our trials? All of the above. Only better.

Currently, we're testing 85 alfalfas. Probably the biggest array of new genetic material in the East.

And we really get fussy about yields, plant vigor, fine stems, leafiness and strong root systems.

But we keep coming back to stand persistance. Nothing hits the wallets of Eastern growers quite as hard as losing an alfalfa stand. $140-$150 per acre for a new seeding. $200-$400 per acre in lost hay production. That's why Doebler will keep shooting for longer living alfalfa stands. You can count on it.

I'm Bill Camerer, Doebler's research director, with a few of the 85 experimental and commercial alfalfas we're now testing at Jersey Shore and Lancaster.

'Co-Rookies' Share 4-H Swine Honors At Banquet

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

BIRD IN HAND (Lancaster Co.) — "Co-rookies" was a word coined by the 4-H swine leader to define the two 4-H swine members who were honored Thursday night for first-year contributions to the Lancaster 4-H Swine Club.

The club's leaders had a difficult time selecting between the two, so they chose both, according to Ed Donough, who presented the awards to Mark Moyer, 11 and Brandon Forry, 9.

Mark attends H.C. Burgard School in Manheim, and has shown hogs at the county roundup and Elizabethtown Fair. Brandon is in the third grade at Kraybill Elementary in Mount Joy, who will be showing at the Harrisburg Farm Show in January.

Karen Becker, 17, a senior at Manheim Central High School, was honored as Outstanding 4-H Member at the banquet. Karen entered her hogs in the Southeast Market Derby, and has shown at Elizabethtown and Manheim fairs and county roundup. Karen, who has been showing hogs for eight years, will be exhibiting hogs at the state farm show.

Top three project books went to Travis Donough, first place; Gerald Boyd, second; and Sarah Boyd, third.

ADC Districts To Hold Meetings

SOUTHAMPTON, (Bucks Co.) — A number of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative districts have announced plans for holding fall meetings.

District 3 is set to hold its meeting on Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. at Muddy Run Park, according to Director Robert B. McSparran.

The purpose of the meeting is to elect officers, delegates and alternate delegates. In addition, a report on cooperative business will be given.

The Lebanon Area Local of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative's District 7 scheduled its annual dinner meeting also on Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the Prescott Fire Hall, according to Director Rhelda E. Royer.

James S. Fraher, economist for Atlantic, will be the guest speaker. Fraher will report on the cooperative's 1990-1991 fiscal year and dairy industry issues. Other business will include the election of officers, delegates and alternate delegates.

In addition, a 25-year membership award will be presented to Wesley and Barbara Harding of Lebanon. Quality premium awards will be presented to Donald P. and Ardell Bausher of Jonestown; Donald G. and Sherry A. Hoffer of Lebanon; Moses O. and Annamary Martin of Myerstown; and Phares Z. and Francis Musser of Newmanstown.

The awards are given to members who qualified for Atlantic's quality milk bonus all 12 months of the 1990-1991 fiscal year.

In District 10, the Waynesboro and central Maryland locals are to hold their annual meeting on Oct. 23 at 7 p.m. at the New Midway Fire Hall near Woodsboro, Md.

According to its director, C. Rodman Myers, Atlantic President McSparran is to report on the cooperative's 1990-91 fiscal year and dairy industry issues.

Also, quality premium awards are to be given to Shawn Garver of Rocky Ridge, Md.; George E. and Ellen H. Mason, of Waynesboro; John and Julie Mayer, of Taneytown, Md.; and Ralph and Deborah Robertson, of Westminster, Md.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative represents 3,500 dairy farm families in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

On Farm Prices Improve

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — The Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series took another leap of 52 cents in September to $12.02 for a total gain of $2 since March.

Of that, $1.79 came mainly from higher cheese prices since May, going up more than 28 cents in five months.

Now those increasing cheese prices are starting to get some help from butter and powder prices, to increase the momentum of rising farm prices to the end of the year. The last two weeks of September, butter prices increased over six cents a pound, and, as of Oct. 11, were still hanging in there.

Non-fat dry powder prices did even better, going from 90 cents the second week of December to $1.21. Even dried whey powder from cheese making was worth seven cents a pound more than last month. Butter and powder prices have increased so much in the last month that butter plants are now competing with cheese plants for manufacturing grade milk.

With the support price of butter at 98 cents and the market price up to $1.20, the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) is selling butter. As of the end of September, the CCC moved 1.6 million pounds out of nearly 600 million pounds in storage.

Still no CCC sales of powder or cheese.

Supply Down Demand Up

Once again, declining milk production in August helped to increase dairy product prices.

August production maintained the decline that started in June, and again the biggest cuts were in the upper Mid West.

In addition, shipments of milk from the upper Mid West to southern markets have increased, from 70 to 80 loads a week in August and September to 102 loads the last week of September.

That's the largest number since November 1989.

In addition, the Sept. 30 USDA Grain Stocks Report didn't indicate any lowenng of feed prices this winter. In fact, the best advice now is, if you'll need to buy grain this winter, you should get it now while Mid West harvests are helping to keep prices in check.

Another consideration is the $185 million in export credits to Russia which will be spent for food and feed grains and, hopefully, later on for dairy products.

Considering all of these factors the forecasts for farm milk prices are for more increases.

Right now the M-W is 48 cents less than last year, but, by December, could be $2.50 higher than last year and the farm price at least $2 more than 1991 and still going up.

Compromise Farm Bill

It will be in this climate of decreasing milk production and increasing dairy product prices that Congress may consider a compromise dairy bill the last week of October or anytime before they adjourn for Thanksgiving.

The trick is to get agreement in Congress on a bill that the President will sign, otherwise the present legislation will continue without any action from Congress. What you get may not look much like what you had expected but at least there are dairy bills still alive in the legislative hopper.

Best guesses now are for a voluntary diversion program with or without an increase in the support price. An increase in the support price may be tied to assessments. Without the increase, there may be no assessments for the incentive program.

A trigger of five billion pounds of milk equivalent in CCC purchases would probably start the diversion program and we're over that already in estimates for next year.

However, the diversion program won't be like the one you had for 15 months in 1984 and 1985. No one knows yet, but it would probably be for a longer period, to discourage producers from keeping the cows during the diversion and putting them back in the milking herd when it's over.

Payment would also change, going from the flat $10 a hundred you got in 1984 to perhaps a bidding procedure like the one used in the herd buy out or Dairy Termination Program in 1986.

Conservation Week Proclaimed

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Governor Robert P. Casey has proclaimed October 20-26, 1991 as Conservation District Week across Pennsylvania.

On behalf of Governor Casey, Secretary of Environmental Resources Arthur Davis presented the proclamation to the president of the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts, Melvin Worley, at the 44th joint annual conference of PACD and the State Conservation Commission.

"Pennsylvania recognizes the importance of preserving our environment in the present and in the future," announced Secretary Davis. "These districts and the people behind them resolve land, water and related resource problems. Working with local, state and federal agencies, the districts develop programs which address such areas as soil and erosion control; environmental education; stream protection; water quality and supply; timber management; farmland preservation; stormwater management and abandoned mine land reclamation."

Since the 1940's, conservation districts have been battling the damaging effects of soil erosion on our Commonwealth's farms. Today, the state's 66 county conservation districts deal with a diverse mix of environmental challenges depending on the home county; Philadelphia is the only county without a conservation district.

Each conservation district has a board of directors who volunteer their time to direct the conservation programs of a particular county.

Conservation districts are funded by a combination of county, state and federal funds. The state is looking increasingly to conservation districts to help administer natural resource programs, such as the Chesapeake Bay Program, Erosion and Sediment Pollution Control Program, and aspects of the stream encroachment and wetlands protection programs. As a result, districts' technical capabilities have increased dramatically within the past ten years.

County conservation districts are unique service agencies in the field of natural resource conservation. For more information, contact the Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts (717) 236-1006 or your local conservation district.

Cover Crops Important

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)— Proper on-farm nutrient management requires the use of several tools. These include soil testing, manure testing, and manure spreader calibration. Another tool which is often overlooked but can provide numerous benefits is the use of winter cover crops.

Many farmers need to empty their manure storage units during the fall season. This means these crop nutrients are applied to cropland at a time of year when they are not needed by a growing crop. Therefore these nutrients are vulnerable to being lost to the environment because of soil erosion and leaching.

Winter cover crops are a valuable tool farmers can use to prevent this economic loss of valuable nutrients and prevent the environmental damage also caused. If you are appying manure to cropland this fall, plan on planting a small grain cover crop such as rye. The rye will take up the available nitrogen and hold it in the plant, preventing its loss to the water supply.

If the rye is harvested, the nutrients will be utilized as high quality feed. This can be especially helpful for drought-stricken farmers who need additional forage to supplement this year's drought reduced crop. If the rye is killed or plowed in the spring, the nutrients will become available to the following crop.

"I try to keep my classes academically oriented. All my students give speeches in class," Paul said, adding that the work is required, not optional. He analyzed the speeches, selecting the best ones for further student presentation to community groups and organizations. "I try to get the kids into state competition," he said.

Paul believes it is essential for young people to somehow serve their community. "I think a student's classroom has to extend beyond four walls," said the long-time educator. "I take them into the community."

Other projects of his classroom prote'ge's benefit and beautify the school premises. Their plant nursery, for instance, has 100 plant varieties which are very pleasant to the eye.

However, the objective of having it was to educate potential home and business landscapers. Here they can see the physical plant and read pertinent information about it. Thus, planning their lawn or garden is easier and their journey to the commercial nursery can get them just the plants they want. No sales are made at the school. It is for exhibition purposes, beautification, and education of the students.

The nursery layout was designed with professional advice. Bark chips neatly surround the base of each plant. Paul said the nursery project gave the kids practical lesssons in forestry, Plant and Animal Science, and proper use of herbicides.

Paul said that when the district parent-teacher organization purchased new playground equipment, it was his students who assembled and anchored everything at its location.

Summer ag-related employment for some of Paul's students is used in conjunction with class assignments. The participating kids are expected to maintain accurate and honest records about the experience, including the jobs performed, skills used, salary and deductions. Finally, they record a self-evaluation.

His influence begins with 8th grade pupils who are taking the required, seven-week agricultural exploratory course. "It is a course in which students are given information about available careers in agriculture," he said. "I think that's good for our students."

On the dull green chalkboard fronting his classroom is a listing of 19 ag-related career choices offered for study at Penn State University. The 8th graders have enough time to digest the information prior to selecting their preparatory high school courses. Paul's job is to thoroughly explain how each related career makes a difference to the work of the actual farmer.

He said that instruction in parliamentary procedure is something else the 8th grade students receive in his class.

When the senior high students arrived for class, Paul gave them various instructions. Volunteers were needed, he said, to repair a badly abused squeegie submitted by the local volunteer fire department, and a sledgehammer brought in by a teaching colleague. Its handle was badly cracked and refitting it with a new one was necessary.

Hung high on the walls, near the ceiling, are numerous plaques and framed certificates honoring the Berlin-Brothersvalley chapter of the FFA, individuals, and Paul. Space is running out because there are so many. Nearby, display cases are filled with trophies behind the glass sliding doors. Paper punch holes in the numerous ag-related magazines and publications allow them to be neatly hung along a lower wall, under a countertop opening to the office of agricultural aide Bonnie Murphy, who has been the ag-aide of Paul for nine years.

Following his 1961 high school graduation, Paul earned his B.S. and M.S. from Penn State University. For the next three years, he taught in the Red Lion School District of York County. Then he came home to Berlin-Brothersvalley where he has stayed.

Named the 1978 Outstanding Conservation Educator by the Somerset Conservation District, Paul holds honorary membership in both the Red Lion and Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA chapters. He was named the Outstanding Cooperating Teacher by Penn State in 1988. In 1979 he received the honorary American Farmer degree. For young farmer and ag-production, he received a letter of commendation from the Pennsylvania Department of Education, and was one of six 1989 finalists in the National Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association. During his tenure, 18 student teachers have worked under Paul's supervision.

Paul is also a member of the Pennsylvania State FFA board of directors and the Somerset County Agriculture Extension executive board. He's the president of the Berlin Community Fair Association, and president of the Berlin Volunteer Fire Dept., serving his 19th successive year, and is an ambulance driver.

Active in his church, Paul is a deacon, Sunday School teacher, and choir member. He is adviser to the Berlin-Brothersvalley Young Farmers Association, the current senior class. He is on the Somerset Co. 4-H advisory committee. His grange memberships include Hillcrest, Somerset Co. Pomona, and state and national granges; Somerset Co. Young Farmers; and several state agricultural boards.

His extensive membership in both educational and vocational agricultural associations extends from local to state to national.

Twenty-one members of the Berlin-Brothersvalley Chapter of the FFA have received the prestigious American Farmer Degree. Steve Landis, a senior, is the current president of the Berlin-Brothersvalley FFA. Asked about his feelings about Paul, Landis replied, "If he wouldn't have been the teacher, I probably wouldn't be as involved. He tries to get students to do better." Landis said Paul is the kind of person you can go to with your problems. In Murphy's office, Landis was busy making telephone calls in behalf of the FFA.

Paul and his wife, Donna, have three children — Deidre (Dively), Debbie, and Douglas. They also have two grandsons.

powder plants. The best guess is that if there are any changes made, it will probably happen before Thanksgiving.

Farm Price

Before we start thinking of what may happen next year, let's take a look at what actually happened last month in your milk check.

The Uniform Price or blend price for September in Order 2 at the 201-210 mile zone for 3.5 percent milk continued to reflect the recent increases in the M-W price with a jump to $12.45 or 41 cents better than last month.

That's still $1.82 less than last year but $1.73 more than March, when blend prices started going up. Most of that increase, or $1.41, came in the last three months.

If that trend continues, your blend price in December would be about $2.50 higher than last year, but $2.50 lower than December 1989 when you got the record high in Order 2.

If that happens, you will have gained back half of what you had two years ago and, hopefully, with more to come in 1992.

All class prices increased with Class I up 41 cents to $13.41 and 42.4 percent of the pool; Class II up 20 cents to $11.71 and 17.5 percent of the pool; and Class III up 48 cents to $12.08 and 40.1 percent of the pool.

New York Referendum

A referendum of New York producers last month voted down their state order under the Rogers-Allen Act by a narrow margin of only 220 votes out of the 10,151 eligible producers.

This was the second referendum on the Act but this time included compensatory payments for out-of-state milk coming into New York or milk produced in New York but sold in other states.

Since the referendum was on the order as amended, and not only on the amendment, the whole order providing a minimum $14.50 price on Class I milk was defeated.

Cooperatives got most of the attention for voting against the order, but there were also 1,200 "independents" who didn't vote and these were essentially "no" votes, because two-thirds of the "eligible" voters were required to approve the referendum for its passage.

However, this isn't the end of over-order pricing in New York by RCMA and the cooperatives who have contributed the most to bringing premiums to New York producers.

Hopefully, they will get together again to agree on an order that everyone can support.

The problem with compensatory payments, including the lawsuits by some of the largest New York handlers, just points out the problem of collecting over-order premiums that are established with state marketing orders or prices. Particularly if the orders and prices are considerably different between the states.

It also indicates a need for a regional cooperative such as RCMA which can provide a level playing field of prices for all handlers, while negotiating maximum over-order premiums for producers.

It's no time for blaming each other or changing the voting rules, but rather a time to close ranks, learn from the experience and give it our best shot.

Milk Processors Won't Say Where Consumer Money Spent

Smaller dairies, which wholesale pasteurized and homoginized milk, butter, sour cream and other dairy staples, have also adopted a closed-mouth policy as to what they pay and what their profit margins are.

Even cooperatives, such Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, aren't sure what happens to the money from retail to on-farm.

Cooperatives are basically marketing agencies which pool milk and pay member producers for their milk contribution, and subtract the cost of hauling and dues.

At the retail level, cold case dairy products, per amount of display space, are the most profitable foods items for groceries. Competition keeps most profit margins in check, but experts said the Philadelphia market may be guilty of gouging, with prices remaining high, while producers income has dropped significantly.

What is known is that dairy producers have just spent a turbulent several years attempting to cope with roller coaster prices for their milk.

Currently — though prices are rising and projections are for that rise to continue as long as milk production doesn't increase significantly — prices for milk are the lowest in the past two decades, perhaps longer.

Prices, on a straight dollar comparison, are at levels received during the late 1970s, according to industry analysts. However, the value of the dollar is much less.

And while better herd management, education and technical skills have given dairymen the ability to produce more milk with less effort, the total overhead cost of milk production is higher.

In southern parts of Pennsylvania, land prices, nutrient management, and other costs associated with living in a higher population area make milk production a more costly enterprise. In less populated parts of the state, higher hauling fees, higher feed costs, shorter growing seasons, and less ideal cropland has them at a disadvantage.

For many individual dairymen, the situation has put them on, if not over, the brink of financial disaster.

Fed up with government price controls and artificially induced competition, a number of dairymen are seeking direction in ways to stabilize the on-farm price of milk.

Not content that existing organizations are doing enough to rectify the situation and disagreement as to what plan of action will guarantee better short- and long-term rewards for dairying has caused a number of factions and offshoots among long-standing organizations.

According to some observers, the result is an overall greater loss of effective power by dairymen to control their prices for raw milk.

Organizations such as the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) have helped get more money for dairymen through premiums. However there is a direct correlation between membership strength and control of the milk supply and the ability of such organizations to bargain for higher prices.

Such organizations are, in effect, farmer unions, but there is apparently not enough agreement among all dairymen to provide the strength needed to increase on-farm prices.

There is also a significant population of fiercely independent milk producers which has not been party to such organized efforts.

And while the raw product, milk, is the same whether it is ultimately used in liquid form or in the manufacture of other foods, the price paid for that milk varies according to how is it used.

Meanwhile, the government's policy toward dairy support programs has been changing to one of decreased help. For years, especially since the wake of the Great Depression, the federal policy had been to ensure a plentiful and cheap supply of food through price supports.

Now, with huge federal deficits and demands for government spending cutbacks, coupled with attempts to open up the world market to free trade unencumbered by government subsidies, the support for on-farm dairy prices has fallen.

The result has been an industry more dependent on market demand, but far from stable.

And in light of the series of recent drought years, this year's extremely low on-farm milk prices and record drought, dairymen have been calling for more of a share in the wholesale and retail profits.

The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board, which has the role of regulating the state's dairy industry and setting minimum retail prices (to keep competing retail outlets from intentionally selling milk at a loss to attract customers), is not as effective as it should be, mostly because of a lack of operational funds and manpower.

The agency has been under the thumb of Gov. Robert Casey whose administration has control of all of its funds and controls its ability to hire replacement..

Currently the PMMB, which audits milk processors and haulers and checks prices in retail stores, has been reduced in staff to the point that work is months behind and regulatory actions have been mainly based on reactions to calls for possible illegal practices in paying dairymen.

Since dairymen never get paid on the spot for their milk, they have no idea what their profit margin has been until the investments have been made and the product taken.

In addition, when he does get his paycheck, or "milkcheck," the dairyman finds large deductions for having to pay to have his milk hauled to processors, to finance the generic promotion of milk consumption, and for other fees or assessments as may apply.

Each dairyman's milk check is

Medium maturity 3527 has superb early growth and exceptional plant health. Ideal for reduced tillage, it has very good grain appearance and test weight, strong stalks, plus exceptional ear flex.

NEW 3394 — 111 CRM
A must on every farm. This exciting new hybrid combines traits corn growers want: exceptional yield, impressive early growth, strong stalks and roots, sound stress tolerance, fast drydown and lengthy staygreen.

3241 — 114 CRM
Excellent early growth and resistance to several diseases make 3241 ideal for conservation tillage. Grain growers will appreciate its outstanding yield potential and strong stalks. Excellent staygreen and reliable drought tolerance.

NEW 3293 — 114 CRM
3293 is similar to 3241 with more top-end yield potential. This hybrid features strong early growth and outstanding stalks.

Eastern Milk Board Re-Elects Officers

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Board of Directors unanimously re-elected officers following the annual business and delegate meeting held at the University Sheraton on October 1.

The officers include: Lewis Gardner of Galeton, Pa., president; Timothy Bryant of Pawlet, Vt., vice president; Edwin Schoen of Phelps, N.Y., secretary; George Mesick Jr. of South Schodack, N.Y., treasurer; and Harold Bailey of Roaring Spring, Pa., assistant secretary-treasurer.

President Gardner, an Eastern member for seven years, was elected to the board in 1987. He served as vice president for a year before being elected to his first term as president in 1989.

As president, he represents about 3,100 farm families in nine states. As a director, he represents about 200 farmers in a district that encompasses all or parts of 18 counties in northwestern Pennsylvania.

Gardner and his wife, Lois, live on a 100-acre Potter County farm where they milk 45 cows out of a herd of 90 Holsteins. They rent another 150 tillable acres, growing mostly alfalfa and corn. Their teenage sons all help on the farm - Lewis III, Lee, and Levi.

Eastern, a Syracuse-based dairy co-op, operates in a nine-state area with 3,100 member farm families. The majority of those member-owners are located in New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

Third row, Erwin Clark; Noel Davis; Warren Herklotz and Dale Paulhamus.

Back row, Robert Thomson; Jerrel Heatwole; Harold Bailey, assistant secretary treasurer, and George Mesick, treasurer.

Small Fruit Growers Guide Book Available

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — People who grow fruit on an acre or less may be interested in a recently released Penn State College of Agriculture guide book, "Small-Scale Fruit Production: A Comprehensive Guide for the Backyard and Amateur Grower."

The guide includes all the basic information a home gardener needs in order to grow pome fruits (apples, pears and quinces), stone fruits (peaches, plums, nectarines, apricots and cherries), brambles (raspberries and blackberries), grapes, strawberries and blueberries. It also tells how to raise gooseberries, currants and elderberries.

Emphasized in the guide are modern production methods that use alternative control strategies, such as integrated pest management, to reduce pesticide use.

"Integrated pest management requires growers to compile detailed, timely information about crops and pests in order to make sound management decisions throughout the year," said Dr. Barbara Goulart, assistant professor of pomology and guide coordinator.

But pesticides aren't the sole key to growing plump, succulent fruits. The guide shows fruit growing as an entire system, so the grower understands the biological complexity involved.

Advice is given on choosing a planting site, determining soil fertility and buying suitable plants. Growers also will find information on cultivars, nutritional requirements, pests and diseases, methods of control, pruning, trellising and harvesting. A monthly maintenance schedule for home fruit plantings is provided as well.

For more information contact Barbara Goulart at (814) 863-2303.

Farmers Aware Of Environmental Concerns

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farmers in the 1990s are very aware of current herbicide issues, such as weed resistance and environmental concerns, a recent survey conducted by The Gallup Organization showed.

At the same time, the farmers are increasingly hiring consultants for specific herbicide and crop production details.

Sponsored by the National Alliance of Independent Crop Consultants (NAICC), the survey studied awareness of herbicide issues among 405 randomly selected farmers producing more than 300 acres of crops. A sample of this size has an error range of + or - 4.9 percent.

The effectiveness of herbicides ranked first as the most important herbicide-related issue among growers, named by 23 percent of the respondents. "This response seemed entirely logical," said NAICC Secretary Maggie Alms, of Alms Consulting in Lake Cryustal, Minn. "When you're paying $15 to $30 per acre for a product, you're going to ask: Does it work?"

But 15 percent of the growers named environmental impact, safety or pollution as major herbicide issues. Another 14 percent mentioned ground and surface water concerns.

"The grower survey gave me a real sense that today's farmers are very knowledgeable about herbicide issues," said Alms. "Many of their primary concerns are similar to those named by consultants and educators in a previous survey - ground and surface water issues and the environmental impact of herbicide use. This information should be of interest to environmental groups, politicians and the general public."

While only 6 percent of the respondents named weed resistance as a herbicide concern, nine in ten (92 percent) of the respondents reported they were very or somewhat knowledgeable about the issue. "Their awareness of this concern reaffirms that current issues are on their minds," Alms noted.

One-third (32 percent) of the grower respondents said rotating or switching herbicides was the most effective way to prevent weed resistance. Another 12 percent suggested crop rotation as a prevention method. While the growers did not mention switching herbicide "modes of action," Alms felt they were on the right track with the prevention methods named.

"A weed can develop resistance to several different families of herbicides if they have the same mode of action — or mechanism — for controlling weeds," noted Alms. "And with the new herbicide chemistry available, a similar mode of action can be repeated in corn or soybeans. So even if growers are rotating crops and herbicides, they also need to be rotating modes of action to prevent resistance development."

A majority of the growers (85 percent) agreed that an integrated weed management system represents the best approach to preventing weed resistance development. Alms said this response was "right on the money." While each grower may define his system differently, Alms noted, an integrated approach will include management practices such as cultivation, rotation, careful product selection, and proper application timing.

One quarter (26 percent) of the growers reported using a crop consultant and 27 percent of the respondents said growers in their areas used consultants. Alms found these percentages very impressive. "When I started a crop consulting business 12 years ago, it was rare that anyone in my area had heard of crop consulting," she said.

The sharply increased use of crop consultants reflects the increasing sophistication of farming in the 1990s, said Alms. Farmers realize there is much to know and more willingly hire consultants to advise them in specific areas, she added.

"Economics have dictated the change," noted Alms. "When profit margins are so small, farmers seek greater expertise. Whether it's buying fertilizer or marketing a crop, farmers must do the right thing, at the right time."

Respondents to the grower survey were randomly selected from a list provided by the National Farm Databank, Inc. The survey was conducted in August 1991. A previous survey conducted by The Gallup Organization for the NAICC studied awareness of herbicide issues among 405 influencers randomly selected from the extension agent directory and the membership lists of the NAICC and The American Society of Agricultural Consultants. The influencer survey was conducted in May and June of 1991.

Headquartered in Washington, D.C., the NAICC is dedicated to the application of sound sciences and professional services in the production of food, fiber and forestry products.

Careful Management Makes A Dairy Of Distinction Farm

manages 75 Holstein cows, including 60-65 milking cows and about the same number of replacements. They keep 200 acres (165 tillable), including an additional 25 acres of rented land.

The Zooks raise corn and hay, but not the soybeans. Milking is at 5 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. from a tiestall to a milking pipeline. Tank capacity reaches 1,500 gallons, and DHIA averages are 21,500 milk, 800f, 678p.

"I enjoy the management," said Zook. "I enjoy the work, too, but I think management is the big thing."

TMR system

Zook uses a closely managed total mixed rations (TMR) system, in place since 1978, composed of corn silage, high moisture ground ear corn, haylage, cooked beans, and about 38 percent soybean meal. Zook has increased the milk production using the TMR.

Adjustments to more fine-tune the TMR are made on a regular basis. Recently, more bypass protein (about 46 percent) was added to help "keep the milk production pretty good," said Zook.

The heat process soy meal (Morameal) has helped increase protein for the cows.

Other improvements include new milking units and special pulsator indicator when the cows are finished milking and an automatic shutoff.

Years been good

The past several years have been good to the farm operation. Recently, the Zooks installed a modified Virginia-style heifer barn and made other improvements to the farm. The milk price plummet has had some negative effect on the operation, but Zook is confident they can weather the difficult times.

"In our situation, we don't have a lot of debt," he said. "So that helps out. But you don't have the money for machinery and so on, like you would otherwise."

Zook said the farm had a good year in 1990, and they upgraded their machinery and tried "to stay on top of things. So we can ride this out. But you can't keep going like this indefinitely," he said.

This year, the farm experienced little in the way of a drought. Some counties, including Chester, were spared the worst of the drought this year. From Morgantown on east, according to Zook, the rain has been nearly adequate; but from Morgantown west, farmers weren't so lucky.

Sending hay west

"We've had a lot more hay than we can use," he said. "We were sending some hay west to some of the other counties, (where) some of the fellas didn't have as much."

But having the extra help on the farm has meant an easier life.

"When it was just Dad and I in it, I thought about the milking more than than since there's three of us," said Zook. "You don't think about the routine as much if you can get off every once in a while."

Michael's chores also inlude sweeping the hay for the farm's young stock.

Book rack program

In 1978, Zook moved to Fairfax, Va. to begin work for a book rack program near Washington, D.C. The program was sponsored by the Mennonite Church as part of their mission outréach.

"They'd buy the books and resell them," he said. "But they don't quite make enough to hire full-time employees. And so the mission sends young people down there, like a voluntary service type of program, where they work for six months or a year or two years or whatever."

He returned to the farm in the spring of 1980.

Selling books was a good experience, but Zook returned because his father needed help on the farm. None of his other brothers wanted to farm — one opted to be a mason, the other shoeing horses, and the other with a mission, beginning a church in New Jersey as an assistant pastor.

Good experience

"It was a good experience," said Zook, about life in Washington. "I probably drove around the D.C. beltway about two times a week, on the average, in the two years I was down there."

For a a few years, Zook and his father operated the farm. But the work became too much for them, and they hired Merlin Petersheim, which helps them rotate the milking chores to allow time off.

The Dairy of Distinction Award means a great deal to the family.

"The extension office sent out the application for the award, and so I just filled it out and sent it off. I didn't know what would happen. Pretty soon I got this letter saying we won this contest," he said.

Zook said he and his family "would like to thank the grace of God for the sunshine, the rain, and for the knowledge to help them in growing their crops and managing their farm."

Received compliments

Zook said they've received compliments about the farm.

"I don't remember people actually just driving in to say something, you know. But we keep hearing good things about the farm," he said. "The award was not a lifetime goal of mine, but it was an honor to receive it."

Zook intends to place the Dairy of Distinction Award sign at the entrace to the farm, after he makes some improvements to the lane.

"I think the whole program is good. I think it's a privilage to be a part of the community that does show some respect for a farm that's neat. I think it helps with your public relations, your public image," he said.

Michael Zook pulls his brother Steven, 8 months, in the cart while Katrina watches.

Melvin Zook recently installed this modified Virginia-style heifer barn. The barn has seven stalls and accommodates 50 heifers.

Katrina Zook, 4, feeds hay to the young stock on the farm.

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.)—Nineteen years ago the singing Paul Miller family from Linglestown was the featured entertainment at the Lancaster County Holstein Association's annual banquet. This year they are back, a little older, of course, with six added grandchildren who weren't even born at the last outing. And they call themselves The Singing Millers Plus Six. They will sing a variety of gospel, popular, and patriotic songs.

For those who like to keep track of these things, the added grandchildren are: Heather, age 10; Crystal, age 7 and Blake, age 5, and they belong to Deb and Lowell Brubaker, Mt. Joy. Heidi, age 8; Holly, age 7; and Harrison, age 6, belong to Mike and Linda Miller, Linglestown.

Not only will the Millers be an interesting attraction for the whole family, a new feature will be part of the annual meeting. A calf will be awarded to a junior member.

Distinguished youth members will be named. Those 16 and under are competing for a September show calf, and the older youths are competing for a Holstein jacket and an expense-paid trip to the State Jr. Convention at Warrendale in February.

Jack Coleman, Paradise, youth committee chairman, said the award calf has not been selected to date, and anyone with a good calf born last month who would like to be considered for the selection should call him at (717) 687-6844. Some money is available to the donor to partically reimberse the value of the calf.

In addition, production awards will be given, and officers will elected.

This annual meeting is scheduled to be held Tuesday evening, November 12, at the Hoffman building at the Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville. Starting time is 7:00 p.m.

A full course dinner will be served, and the cost for the entire evening of food, fellowship and entertainment is $9.00 for adults, $4.50 for children ages three to ten, and children under three are free.

Tickets can be ordered from any of the board members including Coleman. Deadline for reservations is Wednesday, November 6.

The banquet committee is: Lowell Brubaker, Elvin Hess, and Don Risser.

These kid cousins are the Plus Six of the Singing Miller Family Plus Six that is scheduled to entertain the Lancaster County Holstein breeders at their annual meeting in November. ULTRAFLO OUT-PERFORMS CHAIN

for layers, pullets and breeders

We have probably been too modest up to now about the merits of our new generation ULTRAFLO® cage feeder vs. the old style chain feeders some of our competitors are still trying to sell you. In fact, the only negative comments about our feeder come from our competition, not our customers. So we would like to point out the bare facts:

FEED SAVINGS: On-farm results show a feed savings of ½ lb. per 100 birds per day – over $10,000 per year savings on a 100,000-bird house. Year after year.

TROUBLE-FREE DESIGN: Our feeder has only two moving parts – the one-piece auger plus each drive wheel; their chain has more. Our corners are heavy 12 ga. zinc plated tubing for long life; their corners have a reputation for trouble and short life.

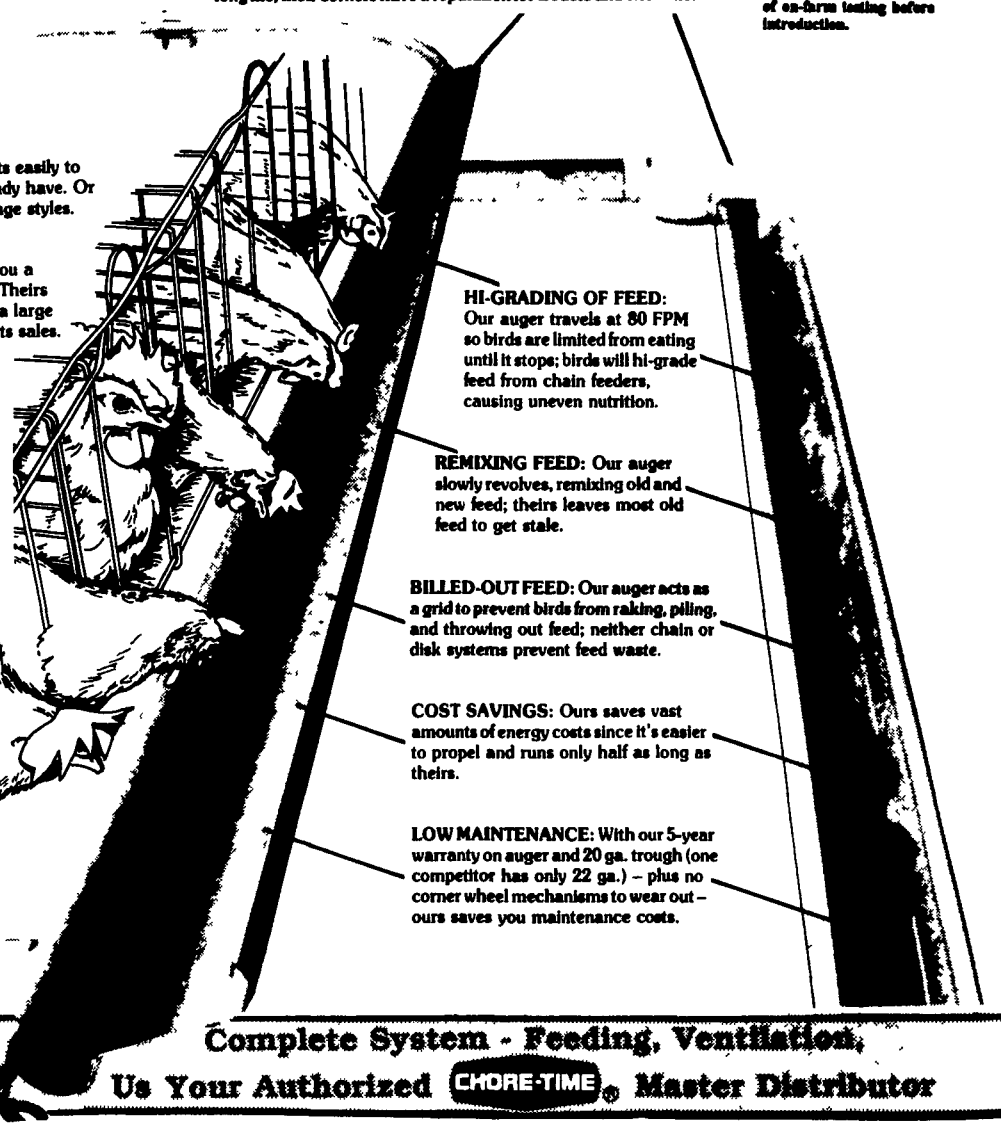
PROVEN DESIGN: Over 45 million birds are already on our feeder worldwide. Also, it was proven in 5 years of on-farm testing before introduction.

EASY ADAPTABILITY: Ours adapts easily to existing cage systems you may already have. Or choose from our wide selection of cage styles.

5-YEAR WARRANTY: Ours gives you a 5-year warranty on auger and trough. Theirs doesn't. In fact, their dealers derive a large percentage of their income from parts sales. Ours don't.

MICROPROCESSOR CONTROL: Our control lets you program feeding time to the second, to match the exact time of one circuit. Control number of feedings, time of each feeding – also 10-second "Stimulation Cycles" between feedings, to minimize separation, and improve your birds' feed intake.

SIMPLE OPERATION: "Push-pull" Power Units with ⅓ or ½ HP motor are located in a cage, have hardened steel gears for trouble-free operation.



HI-GRADING OF FEED: Our auger travels at 80 FPM so birds are limited from eating until it stops; birds will hi-grade feed from chain feeders, causing uneven nutrition.

REMIXING FEED: Our auger slowly revolves, remixing old and new feed; theirs leaves most old feed to get stale.

BILLED-OUT FEED: Our auger acts as a grid to prevent birds from raking, piling, and throwing out feed; neither chain or disk systems prevent feed waste.

COST SAVINGS: Ours saves vast amounts of energy costs since it's easier to propel and runs only half as long as theirs.

LOW MAINTENANCE: With our 5-year warranty on auger and 20 ga. trough (one competitor has only 22 ga.) – plus no corner wheel mechanisms to wear out – ours saves you maintenance costs.

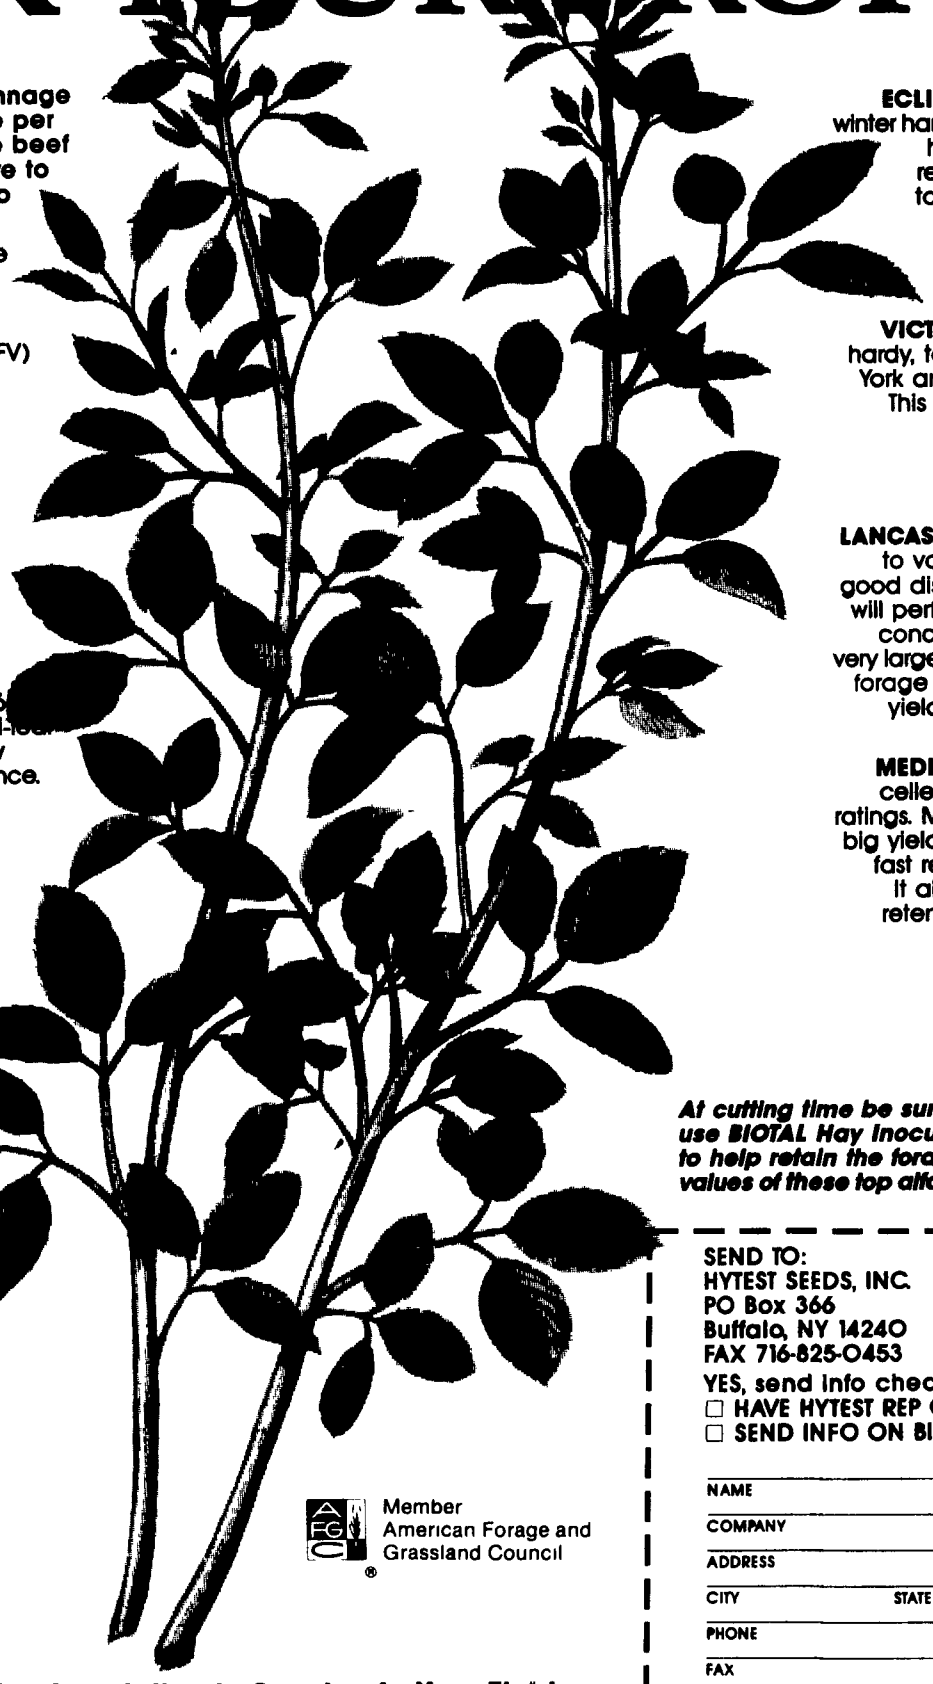
PICK YOUR PROFIT!



It's a fact! The higher the tonnage and crude protein of forage per acre you produce, the more beef or dairy production you have to sell. This translates directly to more profit in your pocket!

HYTEST ALFALFAS will increase your profits with high performance varieties specifically selected for:
- High Relative Feed Value (RFV)
- High Crude Protein
- Low Fiber (ADF, NDF)
- High Leaf-to-Stem Ratio
- Fine Stems
- High Disease Resistance
- High Yield Potential
- Long Term Persistence

PICK YOUR PROFIT!

PRISM–Our new multi-leaf variety is the latest in alfalfa technology. Excellent disease resistant package including Aphanomyces coupled with 6 to 75% expression of the multi-leaf trait enable PRISM to set new standards in alfalfa performance.

ALLSTAR–New generation alfalfa exhibits superior disease resistance ratings. Has fast regrowth after cutting, good winter hardiness, high forage quality, and consistently places in the top percentile in independent yield trials.

ECLIPSE–One of the most winter hardy varieties available, has excellent disease resistant ratings. Suited to moderately drained fields, has long term persistence, and is a consistent top performer in yeild trials.

VICTORY–Extremely winter hardy, tested in Upstate New York and Quebec, Canada. This fine-stemmed variety has a good disease resistance package... a top yielder in independent trials.

LANCASTER PLUS–Adaptable to variable soil types. Has good disease resistance and will perform well under stress conditions. Has fine stems, very large leaves and excellent forage quality ratings. A top yield performer with long term persistence.

MEDISTAN EXTRA–Has excellent disease resistance ratings. Matures early, delivers big yields and has extremely fast recovery after cutting. It also has excellent leaf retention and consistently tests high in protein.

At cutting time be sure to use BIOTAL Hay Inoculant to help retain the forage values of these top alfalfas!

YORK (York Co.) — Is your reproductive management slipping? With higher production, do you see more reproductive problems in your herd?

Long calving intervals, poor heat detection, high services per conception, and reproductive diseases can cost you many invisible dollars.

If your answer is "yes" to any of these questions or situations, the York/Adams Dairy Herd Reproductive Workshop is for you!

The two-day workshop will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. November 11 and November 20 at the York County 4-H Center near Bair Station.

Presenters for the workshop will be Dr. Mike O'Connor, Penn State Dairy Extension; Dr. Larry Hutchinson, Penn State Veterinary Science Extension; and Dr. Donald Yorlets, local veterinarian. Workshop topics will include reproductive efficiency/goals; the reproductive anatomy and function; examination of reproductive tracts, heat detection, and aids; milk progesterone testing; reproductive health, nutrition, and reproduction; semen handling; AI technique; and herd health programs.

The cost of the workshop is $25 per person. The registration fee covers two lunches, refreshments, meeting room costs, and a workbook. To register, call Jennie Hess at (717) 757-9657 or (800) 441-2025 (ext. 9408) or Thomas Piper at (717) 334-6271 on or before November 4.

4-H Reaches All Kids, Adults Too

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — When people think of 4-H, often they picture freckle-faced youngsters with prize calves and sheep.

But this is only part of the picture. Today, 4-H youths live in cities, suburbs and small towns as well as in rural areas. And they're learning about subjects such as embryology, photography, nutrition and government, in addition to the animal science and home economics skills that 4-H originally was all about.

"These programs are designed to help young people develop their potential and become the best adults they can be," said Dr. Alan Snider, professor of agricultural and extension education in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"Through hands-on experience, they learn about current issues and life skills. At the same time, they gain self confidence, leadership skills and a capacity to care for others. These qualities last a lifetime."

A nationwide total of 5.4 million youths, ages 8 to 19, take part in 4-H. In Pennsylvania, more than 150,000 young people are enrolled or otherwise involved in 4-H youth development programs.

In Chester County, 4-H programs are held in churches, public housing facilities, halfway houses and even in private homes in low-income neighborhoods. These programs teach horticulture, nutrition, job hunting and other skills.

Tioga County 4-H has established an after-school recreation program for more than 80 children in first through fourth grade.

Tioga County 4-H also participates in a five-county teen retreat called "Life: Use It, Don't Abuse It," where teenagers can discuss social problems with peers and receive professional assistance.

4-H programs in Philadelphia County, such as career workshops and field trips to universities with high minority populations, are designed to instill pride in minority youths. In addition, Penn State's Philadelphia Recruitment Center provides college preparation workshops for teens.

Other counties provide 4-H programs in such areas as therapeutic horseback riding for the handicapped, entrepreneurship and self motivation.

4-H in Pennsylvania is conducted by Penn State Cooperative Extension through the U.S. Department of Agriculture. If you are interested in enrolling your child in 4-H, or becoming an adult 4-H volunteer, contact your nearest Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

Wilkinson Gets Nod For Reappointment

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Leon Wilkinson, of Landenberg, Chester Co., received the nod from the state Senate Agricultural and Rural Affair Committee Wednesday for reappointment to the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board.

A member of the PMMB since April 1986, and a retired dairyman whose sons operate the 4,000 acre, 1,000-milking herd Wilkinson Farms, was given unanimous support by the members of the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee for another term on the board.

The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board is a controlling board which is in place as a check of the regulation of the milk industry in Pennsylvania, charged with ensuring safe, fairly priced, fluid milk for consumers and processors, and also to ensure fair prices for dairymen.

Wilkinson is a nominee by Gov. Robert Casey, but is at odds with the Casey administration's control of PMMB funds.

In discussing his first term on the board, Wilkinson said, "I had some priority issues when I came on, and I'm sorry to say I haven't gotten them all accomplished yet. I think with the budget restraints as most all of the department have found that some of these things had to be put aside.

"Through our fees and licensing we raise about $1.300.000 a year and that goes through the general fund (as do state income tax revenues) and some way it sort of got detoured and didn't get back to us to utilize.

Leon Wilkinson

"It has been very upsetting to me to think that we have spinning our wheels for the last four or five months worrying about budget, when there are so many jobs out there that need to be satisfied."

Wilkinson was talking about the fact that even though the PMMB had received a general fund allocation of $950,000 this year from tax funds, the Casey administration's policy of releasing funds has been on a limited basis.

According to Wilkinson, the agency is short a number of auditors and expects to lose several more through early retirement.

Even though additional auditors are needed in order for the agency to carry out its mission in an effective manner, the Casey administration has neither freed funds to the agency or allowed the agency to hire replacements for existing positions, much less additional ones.

The Casey administration, faced with a huge budget deficit over the past couple of years has not given the agency the money it raised for its own operation, but has kept the funds to offset spending in other areas.

Even more, when the dairy industry supported increasing licensing and fees to increase operational revenue for the PMMB, the Casey administration kept the money.

After giving testimony, the agriculture committee, most of whom know Wilkinson, readily approved his reappointment and also asked of his support for H.B. 872, legislation which would remove the governor's authority over any allocated tax funds set by the Legislature to the PMMB.

Wilkinson said he supports the measure, though he said he didn't know if it would matter as far as being able to hire replacement auditors for the PMMB, since Secretary of Budget Michael Hershock, has been refusing to authorize hiring of personel to the PMMB.

The committee later approved reporting H.B. 872 out of committee for consideration.

Promotional Activities Highlight Beef Month

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Numerous promotion and education programs, designed to increase consumer awareness of Pennsylvania's beef industry, highlight this year's "October is Beef Month" celebration. Sponsored by the Pennsylvania Beef Council, the month-long activities are taking place when traditionally a large number of cattle are marketed.

An initial mailing to daily and weekly newspapers within the state helped to heighten consumer interest and knowledge of Pennsylvania's beef industry. Hoss's Steak & Sea Houses, this year's beef backer winner, cooperated with the Beef Council on the October Beef Month promotion through the use of special napkins, placemats and crew buttons. Laneco Supermarkets, a retail chain consisting of 24 stores, displayed special Beef Month point-of-purchase materials.

County beef organizations have actively placed foodservice and retail materials at local restaurants and grocery stores. The Beef Council also sponsored two retail meat merchandising seminars and cosponsored, with Dairy Council, Inc., a dietitian conference.

"The scope of activities being conducted, from retail and health-care seminars to an extensive media mailing, will help the industry market its products during a period of heavy meat supplies," says David Ivan, Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council. "The industry benefits from the merchandising and educational seminars, however, will far outlast our October timeframe."

In addition to the activities outlined above, the Beef Council is also preparing a mailing for high school libraries which will serve as a reference booklet on the state's beef industry.

The month of activities will culminate with Beef Day at Penn State, on October 26 for the Penn State versus West Virginia football game. A special beef pressbox luncheon is planned, and the Beef Council will sponsor a tailgate appreciation dinner for various faculty representatives at Penn State.

The October Beef Month promotion is just part of a coordinated marketing program funded by the $1 per head beef checkoff program.

BARN PAINTING
Aim For The Best -
In Coating Film Thickness

To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed)

1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed The best method is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas This is resurfacing!!!
2. BEST NEW START ON RESURFACED WOOD SIDING After spraying on this kind of barn paint or stain take time to pay attention to brush out in all directions to create a film thickness that will prevent future peeling & resurfacing costs & effort This film will let excess moisture breathe through it Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10-15 years Southern exposures usually wear faster

Dairy Industry Faces Supply Adjustment

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Milk producers and building contractors might seem like strange partners, but they have been traveling parallel paths through the businesses jungle for the past quarter-century or more, according to John W. Wysong, a Maryland extension service agricultural economics specialist.

Wysong is with the cooperative extension service at Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources (MIANR), which is one of three research and public service institutions of the University of Maryland System.

According to two scientific papers authored by the economist, both dairymen and builders face a similar problem — oversupply, lower demand for their products.

While dairy farmers find themselves facing price-depressing milk surpluses, commercial builders and developers have produced an oversupply of office space and shopping centers.

Both situations can be attributed in part to modern technology, disappointing consumer demand and the current economic recession.

Other parallels between dairymen and builders also exist, Dr. Wysong recently said.

While dairy farmers have depended partly on federal government price supports, builders were encouraged by depreciation allowances, tax write-offs and liberal bank lending policies.

Dairy farmers also have benefited from substitution of capital for labor and fairly favorable feed grain prices.

In a recent study, Wysong noted that on a typical U.S. dairy farm, from 1935 to 1939, it took three full-time workers to handle the operation of a 30-cow herd.

By 1991, a three-person team could handle 150 cows. In addition, milk production per cow by 1991 far exceeded average production per cow in the pre-World War II era.

For more than 40 years a dramatic 83-percent drop in labor and management hours per cow and a tripling of average milk output per cow have been major factors in creating excess farm laborers and forcing them to join the non-farm work force.

Wysong said that trend slowed in the 1970s and 1980s when off-farm employment opportunities became tight — particularly in the Lake States and the Northeast.

Even in a drought year like 1991, Maryland's milk production for August was up 3 percent from a year ago, and Pennsylvania's production was virtually unchanged. Meanwhile, the nation's milk output declined 1.6 percent.

The federal government's whole-herd dairy buyout program of 1986-87 cut the nation's milk cow numbers to less than 10 million head — a reduction of about one million cows from the previous level.

It also released additional labor to pursue non-farm employment opportunities.

As many persons predicted, increased productivity per cow soon erased the expected milk production drop brought on by the buyout program and its reduction in milk cow numbers.

Repeating the release of additional farm laborers and managers to the non-farm labor pool in today's recessionary economic climate appears to rule out the possibility for another herd buyout program anytime soon.

Wysong also noted in his study that the national average milk production per cow appears likely to average close to 15,000 pounds of milk per cow when statistics for 1991 are released.

Even without adoption of bovine growth hormone, the average output per cow probably will increase another 3,000 pounds during the 1990s. This could offset a decline of two million dairy cows in the U.S. milk herd.

Here's another troubling statistic for the dairy world:

Total U.S. population of 132 million persons in the 1940 Census had expanded to nearly 250 million persons by 1990. But the decline in per capita milk consumption has nearly offset the increased production that this increase of 118 million persons would have been expected to require.

Things changed so dramatically in the nation's dairy industry during the mid-1970s, Wysong said, that economic projections based on earlier trends are no longer valid.

The 1990 farm bill has placed a floor of $10.10 as a support price for manufacturing milk. Local blend prices range upward from this level, depending on Class I utilization (fresh milk consumption) and the Minnesota-Wisconsin basic manufacturing milk price.

The federal government's current budget deficit reduction program has established tight limits which threaten continuation of the current economic crunch for dairy farmers.

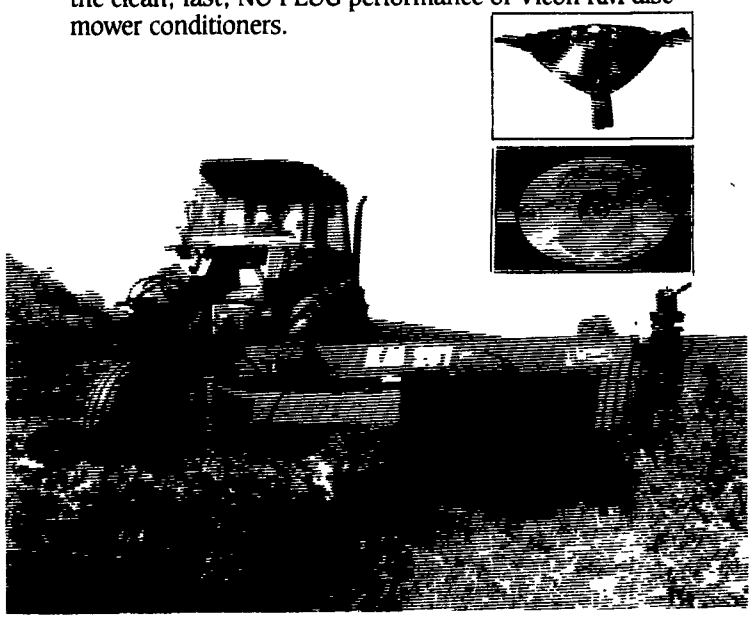
GET THE EXTRA EDGE

Put a Vicon three-bladed disc mower conditioner through wet, heavy, tangled crops. Then compare the difference.

With almost double the number of cuts per minute over two-bladed disc competitors, and six times the cuts per minute over sicklebar systems, it's easy to understand the clean, fast, NO PLUG performance of Vicon KM disc mower conditioners.



Add the extra suction created by Vicon's unique triangular discs, the full swivel hitch that lets you cut square corners on the move, and gentle, full width conditioning, and you're looking at a high capacity machine that puts productivity in a whole new dimension. Four models cut from 7′ to 10′6″ widths.

Vicon's got the edge. The extra edge.

Increase Use Of Newspaper Bedding

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Cooperative Extension has completed a second annual survey on the use of newspapers as animal bedding.

The surveys show that between 1990 and 1991 Pennsylvania farmers increased their use of newspaper for bedding by 28 percent. The results also indicate that 29 newspaper publishers were involved in providing or encouraging the use of newsprint for livestock bedding.

The 53 Penn State Cooperative Extension agents who responded to the 1991 survey estimated that 733 herds with a total of 58,383 head of cattle were using newsprint. The agents indicated that beef cattle, horses, sheep and hogs also were bedded with newsprint.

The agents estimated that 68 percent of the farmers used their own chopping or shredding equipment. This may indicate that farmers are willing to chop or shred their own newspaper bedding in areas without centralized facilities to provide it.

Three main methods are being used to get old newsprint from curbside collection to the barn in a useable form.

In the central part of the state many farmers now place a small truck, cart, or shed at the end of their lane. Neighbors and townspeople place their paper in the facility. The farmers feel that by taking the newsprint from their neighbors or friends they are doing a good deed, while the neighbors and friends feel they are helping the farmers out. This appears to be a good example of "farm-city" cooperation. In Union County the number of carts, sheds, and trucks has doubled in the past year.

Lebanon County used another innovative method. On a designated Saturday each month people bring their newspapers to a recycling site on the county courthouse parking lot. Cooperative Extension agent Ken Winebark, via meetings and newsletters, invites farmers who use newspaper for bedding to bring their truck or wagon to the site. County prison workers help to transfer the newsprint from recycling trucks to handle any paper the farmers don't take, then offers its customers the excess paper.

In the northern part of the state, the Northern Tier Solid Waste Authority provides waste collection services to Bradford, Tioga and Sullivan Counties. Newspaper collected by the authority is chopped and baled at two facilities in the areas, then sold to area farmers. Manager Dave Terrill indicates that he can't supply all the chopped paper farmers want.

Donate portion

As hunters take their deer to be butchered, they will be given the opportunity to donate a portion of the processed meat to a local food bank.

The butcher that has agreed to participate can contact a local food bank to pick up the portion of the kill donated to the cause, according to Brandt.

The program was initiated to take aim at the ever-increasing number of deer in Pennsylvania and an avenue for the deer hunter to donate a portion of his or her "harvest" to the needy, said Brandt.

According to a food bank director, "We are always in need of red meat items."

Conference on animal use

PRUA will be initiating a conference on December 6, "The ABC's of Responsible Animal Use," from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Building in Harrisburg.

The conference will review and discuss animal handling techniques and broaden understanding of responsible animal use, evaluate current animal care standards, and identify areas where changes are necessary.

Speakers include Peter Duncan, executive director, Pa. Game Commission; Dr. H. Rozmiarck, director of animal handling, U. of Pa.; Mike Kredovski, Bio-Associates, research and animal providers; and Paul Linard, director of animal research, Wyeth Laboratories.

Other presenters will include Stevette Wood, mink farmer and member of Fur Farm Animals Welfare Coalitition; Dr. L. L. Wilson, professor of animal science, Penn State; H. Clay Criswell, executive director, Humane Society of Harrisburg, Inc.; Adele Douglass, director, American Humane Society; Boyd Wolff, secretary, Pennsylvania Dept. of Ag; and others.

Prone to attacks

Animal housing is particularly prone to attacks by animal rightists. In the veal study, Penn State researchers surveyed producers and reviewed literature on individual stall housing.

"Nearly all research indicates that individual stalls allow caretakers to recognize sickness and other problems more easily, offer correct amounts of feed, and prevent defecation in milk and feed pails," said Wilson.

Wilson said more research is needed on innovative individual stall and group housings compared to stalls in which the calves are tethered.

Changed research

"The animal welfare cause has changed the type of research we're doing," said Kenneth B. Kephart, extension swine specialist. "We now have a lot more institutions conducting experiments on animal behavior and well-being."

Kephart said the swine industry needs to increase their own and the public's knowledge of animal behavior "and how facilities and equipment affect pigs," he said.

Through articles that appear in Lancaster Farming in his column, "Pork Prose," Kephart often has discussed the importance of examining what is happening with animal welfare in the industry. He recalled how other countries are taking animal welfare even more seriously than the U.S., including:

• Germany. They require anesthesia for pigs that have tails docked after day four, and for cattle and pigs that are castrated after two months of age.

• Sweden. Legislation passed in November 1988 calls for decreasing the number of hens from four to three per cage, with, he wrote, a total ban on cages in 10 years. Sows in stalls must have access to a separate area for "'bedding, eating, and voiding,'" according to Kephart. "Tethers are outlawed. All new technology is subject to testing by governmental agencies before approval. The government can legally forbid the use of genetic engineering, hormones, or other substances which may affect animals (other than veterinary therapy). Violators of any of these laws may be fined $1,000 and imprisoned for a maximum of one year," according to Kephart.

Geared to businesses

PRUA also emphasizes programs geared to businesses who fall prey to protests by animal rights groups. PRUA maintains close contact with the restaurant and hotel industries and monitors the activities of many animal rights groups.

Organizations who hold memberships in PRUA include the Pennsylvania Beef Council, Pennsylvania Farmers' Association, Pennsylvania Farmers' Union, Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, Pennsylvania Livestock Association, Sire Power, Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, Pennsylvania Association of Meat Processors, and other groups.

"We need to communicate to animal welfare groups how much we are concerned about animals

You can expect top performance from this stress tollerant hybrid. It offers exceptional late season standability, and is well-suited to continuous corn or crop rotation operations. Moves South well as an early hybrid, and should be planted at higher populations to maximize its high performance potential.

N5729 (X529) RM:106-110.
If you like S5340 maturity you'll find this new hybrid is taking over as the yield and standability leader in the East. It delivers top yields carried on stalks with outstanding strength. N5729 is a medium tall hybrid with semi-blocky ears. Has excellent staygreen, with somewhat slower drydown.

To get the most from your corn dollar, you can't beat Northrup King hybrids. They consistently come on strong and deliver top yields, even under tough growing conditions. And Northrup King has a selection of hybrids to match your soil type and management practices. So this year, go with seed corn you can really put stock in. Northrup King hybrids.

4-Hers Gather For Trail Ride

UNIVERSITY PARK (Center Co.) — 4-Her's and leaders from across Pennsylvania recently gathered for the seventh annual state 4-H competitive trail ride, known as the "Keystone Ride".

Sponsored by Penn State's College of Agriculture, the 28-mile trail covers territory in Centre, Huntingdon and Mifflin counties. Headquarters for the ride is at the Alan Seegar Camp Grounds in Rothrock State Forest.

Riders condition themselves and their horses for months prior to the ride and are judged on the condition of their mounts before, during and at the completion of the event.

The scores are tallied according to condition, horsemanship and trail manners.

This year's judges were Dr. E. Scott McAllister of Centre Equine Practice in Centre Hall, and Mary Coleman of Country Aire Farm in Cassville.

Mrs. Coleman is the Pennsylvania representative of the East Coast Trail Riders Association (ECTRA), and a veteran of more than 3,000 miles of trail riding competition.

1991 division winners were: Kristi Ryder of Dillsburg, York County, Pony Division, junior rider; Janel Pesarchic of Johnstown, Cambria County, Pony Division, senior rider; Theodore Bunnell of Millville, Columbia County, Horse Division, junior rider; Nicki Brallier of Hopewell, Bedford County, Horse Division, senior rider; Liz Henry-Dolmetsch of York, York County, lightweight adult rider; Dennis Burns of Warriors Mark, Centre County, heavyweight adult rider.

The Trail Ride is dependant upon volunteer support from several central Pennsylvania organizations: NARC of State College, U.S. Forest Service Personnel, PA Air National Guards' 11 2th TFC of State College, Patton Township Lions Club, members of Penn State's Pre-Vet Club, 4-H members, Leaders and parents of 4-Her's and members of Penn State extension staff.

For more information on the 4-H trail riding project write to Ben Nolt, Ag & Extension Education, 4-H & Youth Development, The Pennsylvania State University, 323 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802-2601 or call (814) 863-0387.

Milk Processors Won't Say different.

Earlier this week an Associated Press story reported that U.S. Sen. Partrick Leahy, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, has charged that retailers are "price gouging" in light of a report from the federal General Accounting Office that shows that retail prices for dairy products have not come down, although on-farm dairy prices have dropped significantly.

However, according to numerous objective dairy industry analysts, price gouging in Pennsylvania is largely confined to the Philadelphia area.

In other areas of the state, retail competition of Class I milk (fluid milk products) has kept shelf prices fluctuating along with flucuations in on-farm prices.

(Next week, a closer look at milk pricing).

Small Streams Are Not Drainage Ditches

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Small streams are natural treasures, supplying some of our cleanest and healthiest water and feeding larger trout streams and rivers. Managing these small streams properly helps protect and improve the environment, said an aquatic ecologist in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"People shouldn't be too quick to 'clean out' their small streams," said Dr. James R. Pratt, assistant professor of aquatic ecology in the college's School of Forest Resources.

"They'll probably find some small fish in the pools that debris creates, and by giving the algae and microbes in the water a chance to break down fertilizers and other materials, they'll be helping the environment.

"Bacteria, algae and protozoa live in these streams and break down sewage and other organic matter and take up nutrients from fertilizer runoff." Microbes help streams "clean" themselves, Pratt said.

"When sewage or chemicals enter a stream, the microbes function like a small treatment plant, feeding on the pollution."

Bacteria, molds and protozoa also feed on leaves, wood scraps and debris that fall into the stream. Microbes and the small leaf fragments left behind are eaten by larger organisms such as insects and fish.

An important way to care for a small stream is to leave intact piles of brush and logs that clog it. "These little dams help the stream and the environment in several ways," Pratt said. "Even insecticides and other chemicals can be broken down in small streams when the water pools up."

"These pools slow the water flow during rainstorms and stop contaminants, such as manure and fertilizer, from washing downstream." When water is retained behind debris dams, silt and sediment settle out. In turn, the nutrient-rich silt helps feed the microbes that break down leaves, pollutants and debris.

Pratt said this process also produces more and better food for fish in the stream.

"Holding back the water even slightly gives nutrients more time to be absorbed by algae and other stream organisms that the fish feed on," he said.

Damming also holds back damaging storm water. "The energy of water rushing downhill is diminished by the little debris dams," Pratt said. "This keeps the stream from cutting deeper into the ground and keeps the stream channel stable.

"Removing debris from a stream, particularly with heavy equipment, can cause erosion and other problems. This erosion can undercut culverts and bridge abutments, slump stream banks and destroy cross-stream fencing."

Pratt said that very large debris dams that cause flooding should be thinned, but not completely destroyed.

Move Doesn't Lessen Family's Commitment To Farming

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

NEW PARK (York Co.) — Deb Rohrbaugh's first date with her husband Allen was a fitting opening for her career today as a dairy farm partner.

"He picked me up in a cattle truck and we went to auction," chuckles this York County farm woman. "We probably dropped off calves; I don't really remember." She does remember that the end destination of the date, though, was a game of miniature golf.

Appropriately, Deb and Allen first met at an FFA party held at the Leader farm near New Freedom, where his father, George, was herdsman for the registered Guernsey operation. Allen was just two when the family began their 25-year association with the Leader herd. He grew up there, helping with the cattle and exhibiting Guernseys as a York County 4-H'er.

Deb spent her childhood in the Rinely area, where the Hyson family tended beef cattle and crops on their general farm. She, too, was an active 4-H member, winning county and state awards in photography and representing Pennsylvania at Club Congress in Chicago.

By the time Deb and Allen were considering marriage, his "number" came up near the top of the selective service Vietnam War draftee lottery list. Allen instead enlisted in the Army in 1972, leaving within a day of Deb's own departure for a 4-H exchange trip to Canada.

"I cried the whole way there," she recalls.

They married after his early training, with a wedding ceremony on a Saturday and a departure Sunday for San Antonio where Allen was temporarily based. Less than three weeks later, after another relocation to Fort Bragg, North Carolina, Deb received word that her mother had died.

While the frequent, distant moves and emotional upheavel of such sudden changes might have caused problems for some newlyweds, Deb and Allen found strength as a couple to face them together.

A medic with a paratrooper unit, Allen also enjoyed working with the base's vet clinic and using his animal knowledge in caring for the clinic's clinentele, primarily horses. Deb worked as a seamstress at the nearby Wrangler shirt company. They remained at Fort Bragg until his discharge in 1975.

Allen and Deb Rohrbaugh, with Scott, are firmly committed to the dairy industry as a way of life and a lifestyle in which to raise a family. Absent from the picture is daughter Jill, who was attending school.

Early in their marriage, the Rohrbaughs discussed the possibility of Allen's returning to the dairy business. But, on their return, they both landed jobs at BMY, a large York manufacturer of armored, motorized field equipment for the military. And, they built a new house near Deb's home.

Still, there was "something" missing in their lives.

"Allen just wasn't happy working in the factory," remembers Deb.

"And, there was no guarantees that we would be able to keep these jobs. We were on strike for awhile, and never could make that back up. We could have lost job security at any time," she said.

The Rohrbaughs began looking for a suitable farm to rent - and found one just 10 miles from home. With the Leader herd's dispersal, George, his wife Audrey and their youngest son Darryl, were interested in joining Allen and Deb on a family operation. By renting the farm and buildings, and buying their own cows and equipment, the Rohrbaughs were able to realize their dream of dairying on their own.

Located on the Pennsylvania-Maryland border, the Charles Birch farm, which the Rohrbaughs rent, sports a Mason-Dixon survey marker on the property. The buildings are on the Maryland side, so daughter Jill, 10, attends elementary school in nearby Norrisville. But their mailing address is Pennsylvania-based.

Despite some seasons of drought and the recent lowest milk prices they've ever received, Deb is totally committed to farming and the dairy industry.

"I can't remember ever questioning Allen's wish to dairy farm," says this ag supporter and enthusiast.

"But I did cry the day I left my new house," she confesses with a smile.

Being able to stay home with their children, Jill and Scott, 2, has been a family farming dividend that Deb really appreciates. She learned to milk, handles the farm books, recordkeeping, and runs errands.

Deb Rohrbaugh has also become something of a farm activitist, primarily through her work with the York County and Pennsylvania Farmers Associations. She credits fellow PFA enthusiast Pat Sueck with spurring her interest.

"I opened my mouth," Deb says of a county farmers association meeting she attended where a lack of volunteers for an activity was being discussed. "I said I hadn't been asked to help."

"I got asked," she jokes of Pat's ability to enlist others to become involved. She helped at the association's annual York farm tour, then was appointed county women's committee chairman. Local involvement led to participation in statewide PFA events, including annual meetings and women's activities. Deb now writes, publishes, and mails the county association's monthly newsletter.

"It's something I can do at home, and I do like to do it," she says of the informative mailings she handles. "I use items from here and there, and PFA sends out materials for newsletter use. It isn't hard to find information to include."

Since Scott was born two years ago, Deb has relinquished some farm chores, like milking, but continues her participation in farm and community activities by taking her friendly, outgoing son along. A recent move by PFA to provide babysitting services at state activities has made participation for young mothers easier. In fact, if organizations want young people to be involved, this farm woman activitist believes they need to seriously look at providing facilities for care of young children.

"When Scott was six-months-old, I took him along to spring conference. At the Hershey convention, babysitting was part of the service. I thanked them and let them know how important it is. I like to go but can't unless there is something like that available," she adds.

State activities have been the source of many friendships for Deb, who has become acquainted with farmers from around Pennsylvania. A few of those familiar faces will soon become neighbors.

In March, the three families of the Rohrbaugh's Deal Holsteins plan to relocate to a 200-acre farm in Somerset County. Because land prices in York County have become prohibitive for dairying purposes, the Rohrbaughs searched for several years across surrounding states for a suitable farm to purchase.

"Having been with the Army, we know we can live somewhere else. We also already have friends in Somerset County that we've made through PFA," explains Deb.

The 125-freestall and parlor setup is not too different from the facilities in which they presently milk, so herd adjustment should be fairly easy. Computer feeders are in place, equipment on which Deb hopes she and her sister-in-law Denise can be helpful.

Denises is presently employed in computer work with a Maryland firm. Deb took a 20-hour introductory course a few years ago with the York Business Insti-

Best Values in New Equipment

MAGNUM means more than ever.

There's no doubt about it. MAGNUM™ tractors have set new standards for durability, reliability and performance. It's the reason more and more farmers are choosing them. But that's not all.

Every model is backed by the industry's best warranty* — five years or 5,000 hours. So you can buy a MAGNUM tractor knowing that your investment is protected. And at trade-in time, the warranty is completely transferrable, which is just one reason resale values are higher than ever.

But the real test is in the field. So why not call us today to set up an on-farm demonstration. Once you make a few passes, you'll understand why MAGNUM means more than ever.

* Excluding tires, which are covered by their own manufacturers' warranties. A $200 deductible applies to each repair after the first year.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

I'm a victim of domesticated violence.

Wait. Lest you get the wrong idea, let me explain.

Domesticated violence is far different from domestic violence, a national crime that's risen to horrifying and saddening prominence. Even one incident of domestic violence is too many in our supposedly civilized and advanced nation.

Domesticated violence is also common and can be extremely hazardous to one's health. I have a slightly blackened eye to prove it. Again.

As black eyes go, this latest is the least noticeable of several I've sported over the years, resembling an errant splotch of eye makeup. They've all originated from one of my favorite animals - domesticated animals which occasionally beat up their caretakers.

Cows.

Anyone who milks cows on a regular basis is - sooner or later, to some degree- going to get kicked. In our herd of mostly gentle cow friends, this domesticated violence of kicking the "milker" is usually just an instinctive reaction. A cow is surprised or perhaps has an injured teat or is especially sensitive of udder after freshening with calf.

But, like herds, we have a few of those girls who kick with intent to do harm. Oreo is one of those, kicking only on occasion - but with meaning.

So when her left-rear hoof connected with my cheek, it was not a total surprise. And the safety glasses I wear to protect my contact lenses against swishing tails apparently got pushed toward the corner of my eye, enchancing the burise.

A little later, still nursing a sore cheekbone, I nearly fell over a guinea hen hunkered down in the alleyway of the heifer pens. Guineas are interesting (but extremely goofy) birds to begin with, flightv. erratic, skittering from here and there, landing in trees and on the barn roofs, screeching their powerful lungs out for any reason - or no reason at all.

But guineas normally roost somewhere up high after dark and this one was on the cement floor, snuggled up next to a straw bale.

"That's a dumb place to start a nest," I observed to the motionless feathered clump, gently lifting her tailfeathers with my toe to spy for eggs.

Emitting ear-splitting screams, she sailed past my arm and onto the feed trough. On the floor, three teeny, tiny, brown fluffs on stick legs moved at my feet.

And in that same split-second, a favorite fluffy black kitten - one I've been training to catch mice behind bales in that very alleyway - grabbed one of the chicks. In turn I grabbed the cat, pried loose the chick (to the cat's biting, scratching protests), and fled the scene before one MAD bird made good on her screeching, flapping threats to tear my eyes out.

Fleeing the alleyway, writhing cat clutched close, I snapped off the light, hoping mother guinea could collect her trio under cover of darkness.

I'd like to say it worked. It didn't.

Another "mouser" got in on the action, seizing not only the injured chick, but another as well. I pushed a bale close to the hen, squatted over her remaining chick, as protection and suffered guilt the rest of the evening.

And next morning, when mother guinea tried to move her remaining chick the cats were waiting. You can guess the rest.

On checking her original nest in the haymow, the Farmer found several other eggs with fully developed chicks- which she had simply abandoned after the first few hatched. Guineas win no mothering awards.

The guinea keeps her distance, my cat-scratches are healing and the black eye is nearly faded.

Domesticated violence - that's what helps keep farming right up there near the top of the hazardous profession list.

Commitment

tute, then purchased a system during an ag computer seminar. Mostly self-taught, she has computerized the farm accounts and hopes to add a herd program after the move to Somerset.

And, she definitely intends to remain involved in agricultural activities and the farming industry in which the Rohrbaughs so strongly believe. With Jill just completing her first year in 4-H, youth work is another area in which the Rohrbaugh's expect to become more deeply involved.

"She loved it," Deb says of fifth-grade Jill's initial 4-H showing experience. "It's something she and Allen can do together, something special they can work on as father and daughter.

But regardless of what the activity, or where the family is located, Deb Rohrbaugh is one of those cheerful, willing people who can be counted on to lend a hand to promote the agriculture industry.

"God has worked in our life," she emphatically says of the Rohrbaugh's realization of their dairy farm dream and the direction her life has taken.

Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

NUTRITIONAL BLINDSPOTS IN ADVERTISING

In recent years, advertising messages have echoed what consumers want to hear. They say it's possible to be thinner and healthier and to have more fun while eating delicious, convenient food. Depending on the product, those advertising claims may have been more or less true.

The purpose of advertising is to sell products. To do so, it is essential to put the product in the best light. Advertising agencies call this a "point of difference" or "a unique selling proposition." For example, advertisers of soft drinks and snack foods often sell fun, the idea being, "you drink this soft drink or eat these chips, and you will have fun." The advertisement shows attractive, slim well-tanned young people having fun. The more subtle message is "you buy this and you will be attractive, slim, well-tanned and popular." In truth, heavy users of soft drinks and snacks may or may not be any of the above. And if they are, it is not because they are heavy users of soft drinks and snacks.

Do people believe such ads? Yes and no. Surveys indicate that consumers are skeptical of advertising, but still are swayed by it. For example, in a survey done by Consumer Network, Inc., 52 percent of those surveyed considered food ads "dishonest" or only "somewhat honest." This also means that 48 percent considered them honest or did not have an opinion.

Much of the current skepticism has developed since 1987, when the Food and Drug Administration abandoned a 90-year-old ruling that prohibited making "health assertions" about food. Three years of uninhibited health-related food advertising resulted. In 1989, according to U.S. News and World Report, 40 percent of all new food products had disease-preventing messages.

Since February 1990, the FDA has been attempting to enforce new food-labeling guidelines that severely restrict the use of claims that a food can prevent disease or promote health. According to their new guidelines, a manufacturer can make a health claim only if it is backed by scientific evidence. Also, the total product must be considered. For example, an advertiser cannot make a claim that one ingredient can help reduce the risk of heart disease if other ingredients increase the risk.

Setting guidelines and having the time and resources to enforce them are two different things. For the most part, it is up to us as consumers to battle advertising's pull. Ask yourself the following questions before submitting to the siren call of advertising:

* Does the ad rely purely on image or emotion to sell? Do images of vibrant, healthy people make the product seem more nutritious than it is?

* Is an obvious ingredient or nutrient omitted from the message? Is it cholesterol-free but high in fat, such as cholesterol-free mayonnaise?

* Is portion size too small? Seventy calories for a slice of fat-free cake sounds quite low, but how big is the slice?

* Are nutrients unfairly compared? Cholesterol-free peanut butter is nothing to brag about. No vegetable product, including nuts and peanut butter, contains cholesterol. Similarly, "more Vitamin C than a glass of fresh-pressed grape juice" is nothing to shout about. Grape juice naturally contains very little Vitamin C.

Chambersburg Teen Becomes 2-Time International Champion

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — For Rodney Garling, 18, and his 8-year-old spotted palamino Pany of Americas, Bonanza's Gold, winning the Hi-Point Pony and Rider award at the 1991 International POA Show, was a great way to end their show career.

Although the Pony of Americas breed shows offer a few adult classes, basically the breed shows are designed to offer a variety of classes for youth up to the age of 18 years.

Rodney and Bonaza's Gold competed at the 33rd annual Pony of Americas International Show in Des Moines, Iowa, where they won the coveted silver Royal Trophy Saddle. With more than 3,500 entries competing during the week in the nation's largest POA breed show, winning the trophy saddle in 1990 and again in 1991 was quite an accomplishment. Competing in a weeek-long show of this caliber is tiring and stressful. Rarely does a rider and pony win this award more than once.

Registered POA ponies are Appaloosa-type ponies which measure up to 56 inches at the withers, up to 14 hands tall. Unlike horse breeds, the Pony of America competition requires one youth rider to compete on the pony in all classes in orde1 to win the International award. Rodney and Bonanza's Gold competed in English and Western classes, jumping, pleasure driving, trail, reining, authentic Indian costume, showmanship, open costume, and ten game classes, a total of 28 classes to win the Hi-Point award.

Rodney has been riding and driving ponies and Appaloosa horses since the age of three years. he has raised and trained several champion ponies and Appaloosa horses as 4-H projects.

Of all the animals Rodney has trained and shown, Bonanza's Gold was his favorite. On Bonanza's Gold, Rodney was able to win numerous trophies and other awards in 4-H shows and open shows, state fair shows, as well as National Medallions and the POA highest award presented to a pony during his life-time, the Supreme Champion Pony of Americas award.

Now that Rodney is a freshman majoring in Electrical Engineering at the Mont Alto campus of Penn State University, he has ended his days of showing POA ponies. Bonanza's Gold is now residing in Florida, but already, his new owner, 11-year-old Sonni Chernega reports they are doing well on the fall POA show cirsiut and hope to duplicate Rodney's show record at future shows.

Rodney Garling on Bonanza's Gold are pictured in a Woodlands Indian costume created from research in books and at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C. POS shows offer Indian costume classes as a tribute to the Native Americans who purified the Appaloosa breed. Rodney's family spent hours making the hand-crafted items on the costume. Rodney had to create a concise but detailed story about his costume which he gave orally each time he competed. He painted the pony with symbols which he explained in the story.

Buzzin' Recipes Use Honey

When it comes to cooking with honey, the tables have certainly turned. Once relegated to desserts and tea time, honey has moved from the back of the cupboard to the forefront of the food world.

And things have never tasted better.

With major sweetening power that's naturally healthy, it's no wonder restaurants, quality food products and palates everywhere are experiencing a honey renaissance. Spread the news. Honey's back.

SWEET AND SOUR SAUCE

1 cup unsweetened pineapple juice
¼ cup wine vinegar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
⅓ cup honey
¼ cup catsup
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup unsweetened pineapple juice

In a small saucepan, combine 1 cup pineapple juice, vinegar, soy sauce, honey, and catsup. Stir over moderate heat to simmering. Dissolve cornstarch in ¼ cup pineapple juice. Add to sauce. Stir until clear.

Dairy Princess Report
By Carrie Bryant

October is national cheese month and even if you don't like drinking milk, almost everyone has a favorite cheese.

Cheese should be stored in it's original wrapper, or any wrapper that will create a barrier to moisture, such as plastic wrap. Cheese should always be refrigerated and can be frozen if necessary. If cheese happens to dry out while being stored in the refrigerator or freezer, it can be grated and used for cooking.

Occasionally mold will develop on cheese. Although most molds are harmless, some may produce toxins, so to be safe, discard a half-inch of cheese on all sides of the visible mold.

When cooking with cheese, the secret is to use low temperatures. Cheese usually becomes tough and stringy when overcooked. In the oven, cook at 325 degrees F. with pizza, cook between 350 degrees and 400 degrees F. In sauces, add cheese at the end of the prescribed cooking time, and heat until the cheese is melted. When topping casseroles, add cheese near the end of the baking time when microwaving cheese, use lower power settings (30% to 70% power). Stir and rotate as often as recipe directs.

CREAMY TACO SALAD

1 8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 tablespoon sour cream
½ package taco seasoning mix
Taco stuffings (lettuce, tomatoes, green pepper, cheese, salsa, etc.)
Nacho cheese corn chips

Mix the cream cheese, sour cream, and taco seasoning. Spread this mixture onto a serving platter, so that it is about 1/4 inch thick. Top with your favorite taco stuffings and salsa. Use the corn chips to scoop it up, and eat.

QUESTION — D.H. Wallach, Bryn Mawr, would like a recipe for baked beans made with lima beans.

QUESTION — Estella Fink, Allentown, would like a recipe for sweet and sour cauliflower.

ANSWER — Jane Kendig, Orrstown, wanted the recipe for freezing strawberries that uses unflavored gelatin, and sugar, and is cooked until it thickens. Thanks to a Silver Spring, Md. reader, who sent the recipe.

Freezing Strawberries

4 cups sugar
5 pints whole or sliced strawberries
2 cups mashed strawberries
1 package Sure-Jell
¾ cup water

Fill five 1½ pint containers with fresh strawberries (whole or sliced). Add sugar to the 2 cups of mashed strawberries. Boil Sure-Jell and water for one minute. Remove from heat and add mashed strawberries, stirring well until all sugar is dissolved. Divide into five containers. Freeze.

ANSWER — Norman Hartman, Willheim, requested a recipe for homemade pumpkin ice cream. Thanks to Susan Breckbill, Lincoln University, for sending a recipe.

Pumpkin Ice Cream

1 16-ounce can pumpkin
1 cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1 cup half and half
½ teaspoon grated orange peel
¼ cup orange juice
2 cups whipping cream

In a large bowl, combine all ingredients. Mix well. Pour into ice cream canister. Freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Makes 2 quarts.

ANSWER — A Greencastle reader requested a recipe for bean salad. Thanks to Martin Roy, Warrenton, Va., and others for sending recipes.

Three Bean Salad

1 pound can green beans
1 pound can cut yellow wax beans
1 pound can red kidney beans, butter beans or black-eyed peas, etc., rinsed
1 small green pepper, finely chopped
1 small onion, finely chopped
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground pepper
½ cup vinegar
½ cup salad oil

Drain the liquid from the green beans, wax beans, and kidney or other beans. Place beans in a bowl and mix in green pepper and onion. Combine sugar, salt, pepper, vinegar, and oil. Pour over bean mixture and mix well. Refrigerate until ready to serve. This is best if mixed the day before so vegetables are fully marinated.

ANSWER — Melanie Jones, Annville, would like a recipe for fluffy, buttery 3-inch Southern biscuits. Thanks to A. Moyer, Bernville, for sending the following recipe.

Southern Raised Biscuits

1 cup buttermilk
4 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 teaspoon salt
1 package yeast
½ cup warm water
⅓ cup shortening

Heat buttermilk until it bubbles at edge. Cool to lukewarm. Sprinkle yeast over warm water; add sugar. Stir in buttermilk. Cut shortening into flour, salt, and baking powder. Make a well, add buttermilk mixture. Knead 5 minutes. Roll ½ -inch thick on floured board. Cut with cutter. Place 1-inch apart on greased sheets. Prick tops with fork. Cover; let rise 30 minutes or until doubled. Brush tops with butter before baking. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes.

Yield: about 30 biscuits.

Honey

HONEY BREAD

1 package dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons shortening
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup scalded milk
1 cup cold water
5 to 6 cups flour

Dissolve dry yeast in warm water. Set aside. Place in large mixing bowl: honey, shortening, and salt. Pour in the scalded milk and stir until salt and shortening are dissolved or melted. Pour in cold water and cook the mixture to lukewarm. Add yeast mixture. Stir. Gradually add flour until the dough is stiff. Turn onto a floured surface and knead until elastic.

Grease a bowl and place ball of dough into it. Grease top of dough. Cover with a damp cloth, place in warm area and let rise to double in bulk. Knead and form into two loaves. Place loaves into greased bread pans. Cover with damp cloth, place in warm area and let rise until nicely rounded above top of pan. Remove cloth and bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 40 minutes. Remove from pans and butter the tops of hot bread.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — C.L. Wilson of Silver Spring, Md., requested the recipe for whole wheat bread that appeared on Pillsbury's whole wheat flour bag about 25 to 30 years ago. Thanks to Helen Mahosky, Columbia, for sending the recipe.

Whole Wheat Bread

2½ cups white flour
2 packages yeast
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt

Blend together all ingredients in a large bowl. Heat until very warm:

1 cup water
1 cup milk
¼ cup oil

Add to flour mixture:

2 eggs
warm liquid

Blend at low speed until moist and beat 3 minutes at medium speed. With a spoon, stir in:

3 cups whole wheat flour

Knead in:

¾ cup white flour

Place in greased bowl. Let rise 1 hour or more. Punch down. Put dough in bread pans. Let rise 30 minutes or more. Bake at 350 degrees until bread sounds hollow when tested.

ANSWER — Regina Bauer would like a recipe for hoagie spread, a hot pepper relish used on deli subs. Thanks to Ginny Atkinson, Bridgeton, N.J., for sending a recipe that her mother-in-law passed on to her.

Connie's Relish

3 quarts green tomatoes
1 quart onions
3 red sweet peppers
5 green peppers
1 quart vinegar
5 cups sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon tumeric
3 tablespoons celery seed.

Finely chop vegetables in blender or food processor. Combine ingredients and cook 30 minutes. Can and seal in 1 or half-pint jars.

QUESTION — C.L. Wilson, Silver Spring, Md., wanted a recipe for Spanish rice. Thanks to Cindy McFarland, Lincoln University, for sending a recipe.

SPANISH RICE

Chop 4 slices bacon and fry until crisp in medium saucepan. Remove bacon; add ½ cup chopped green pepper and ½ cup chopped onion. Saute until onion is tender. Add 1 cup uncooked rice and saute about 2 minutes. Add 28-ounce can round peeled tomatoes with liquid, ½ cup boiling water, 4 chicken-flavored bouillon cubes, ½ teaspoon paprika, ½ teaspoon chili powder, 3 dashes cayenne, and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Crush bouillon cubes and break up tomatoes. Mix well. Heat to boiling over high heat; stir frequently. Cover pan; reduce heat and simmer 20 to 25 minutes or until rice is tender. Stir in bacon. Makes 5 cups.

Farm Kids Win First Prize In Pet Show

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — What animal do you take to the pet parade at a Fair?

If you are like Apryl, Angela, and Stephen Becker, you'll take a calf.

The three Becker cousins and Annabelle the calf won first prize for their float in the New Holland Fair Pet Parade on October 5.

Apryl, who is 3, and her sister, Angela, 2, daughters of Merle and Janet Becker, are cousins to Stephen, 3, son of Helen and Leonard Becker.

"The parade was lots of fun," said Apryl. "I waved at the crowd. There were lots and lots of people."

Apryl and Angela's daddy enters corn and hay in the Fair competition. He thinks people should enter Fair competition because it makes things interesting for the Fair visitors. He can hardly wait until his daughters are old enough to join 4-H and enter their projects in the Fair. To show them how much fun, Fair competition can be, he told the girls they could enter a calf in the pet parade.

This was not without problems. What if the calf got curious during the parade and wandered off the parade route? What if the girls got tired of walking before they finished the parade?

What the children and their calf needed was a float to ride on. Since Merle's a farmer, he wanted the float to look like a barn. But people would want to look inside, so he built an open barn with a white wooden fence and placed it on a cart with wheels. He layered the bottom of the float with sawdust — in case the calf needed to go to the bathroom. A straw bale provide seating for the children. Pumpkins, corn stalks, and mums gave the float an autumn touch.

When the girls were dressed in bib overalls with sunbonnets, the parents decided a farmer boy would complement the farm girls. Stephen, whose parents raise calves on seven-acres in East Earl, and who often spends time on his counsins' farm joined the float. Stephen also wore bib overalls. His tattered straw hat gave him the appearance of a hard-working farmer.

The farm children and their calf won a blue ribbon, but the most surprising news was the reaction of the crowd. They were intrigued with the calf. Many had never seen a calf before. Some asked if the three-day-old calf were a steer or a goat.

"It was good publicity for the dairy industry," the girls mother said. "I was surprised how many people said that they had never seen a calf before."

Annabelle cooperated very well in the parade. She lay down almost the whole time except for one time, Annabelle stood up and mooed — much to the delight of the crowd.

The girls are well acquainted with dairy animals. They help feed calves and go with their daddy to get the cows in from the meadow.

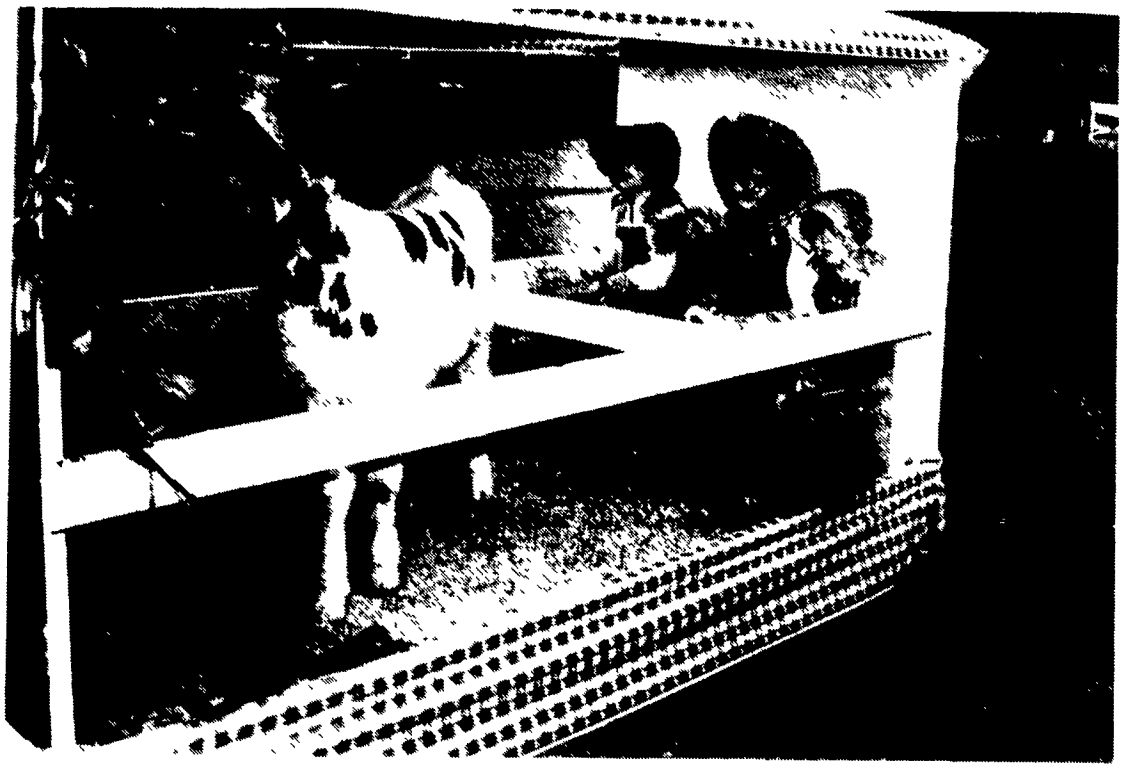
"I yell, 'Hey,' and the cows walk to the barn," Apryl said.

Apryl's favorite job is scraping manure. "I use the scraper," she said. She wants to definitely milk the cows when older.

The Beckers farm 100 acres, milk 40 Holsteins, and raise their own replacements on a rented Kinzer farm.

Now that the Fair is over, what will the Beckers do with their little barn?

It will become a play barn for the children, and already the family is thinking of ideas to use it in next year's pet parade.



Annabelle the calf wore a bell tied around his neck with a red handkerchief. The girls wore bib overalls and sunbonnets. Stephen wore bib overalls and a tattered straw hat.

Apryl, Stephen, and Angela wave to the crowd as their float was pushed by the girls' dad, Merle Becker.

Parents, Helen, Janet and Merle Becker planned the float that won first place for the Pets on Wheels category at the New Holland Fair.

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 19

LANCASTER — Farm Women Society #19 held their September meeting at the home of Vivian Warfel, Blossom Hill. Corinne Nissley had devotions... including beautitudes for Women. Suggestions for programs for next year was the response to roll call. A donation was approved for abused women and children. Crafts was featured, displayed by Vivian and members and consisted of screen painted poles, crewel work, stuffed animals, note paper, sea shell arrangements, baskets, dolls, etc. In celebration of Farm Women Day the group will have a 6:00 dinner at the General Sutter, Monday, October 14.

Lancaster Society 20

Farm Women #20 met on October 3, at the home of Verna Hess with Mary Rintz as cohostess. Delicious refreshments were enjoyed by the 17 members present and at 1:30 the president, Vera Herr called the meeting to order. Verna read the 43rd Psalm and the Lord's Prayer was prayed in unison.

Vera reported that the Kirkwood Park has been reserved for the annual picnic the first Thursday in August 1992. Motions were made and carried to give $25 for sponsoring a Miss Solanco; $25 donation to the Quarryville Library and to operate a stand at the Bi-Centennial. The County Convention was announced for November. Marian Hastings, Chairman of the nominating committee reported the mominations for new officers are Vera Herr, president; Nancy Axe, vice president; Anna Mary Groff, recording secretary; Vivian Hess, corresponding secretary; and Jean Ressel, treasurer;

Each member brought a food item for sale and Vivian Hess auctioned items which amounted to $20. Members will meet in November with Dorothy Crowford. Pauline Reingart will be the co-hostess.

Pumpkin Patch Weekend At Landis Valley Museum

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — With a carving tool and a pumpkin even a fledgling artist can create a scary jack-o-lantern. On the Saturday and Sunday just before Halloween, Landis Valley Museum will provide horse drawn wagon rides to the huge "nothing over $4" pumpkin patch. Old tractors and antique wagons will back up the horses for the return trip to the free pumpkin decorating station. While there, undecided pumpkin carvers or painters can evaluate or imitate the excellent examples provided by the students of Pennsylvania School of Art and Design.

Free cookies will be available to eat or decorate - or both! For a wider choice of yummy baked goods, the Brownstown Vo-Tech Culinary Trades Program will offer authentic old-timey pumpkin recipe products to benefit museum education programs. Landis Valley's numerous stone hearths and brick bakeovens will be fired to provide visitors an even closer view of the traditional foodways of the Pennsylvania Germans.

What enduring Halloween observation would be complete without folk music and traditional storytelling? The Lancaster County Folk Music and Fiddlers Society will provide their usual robust, group-gathering, knee-slapping, toe-tapping brand of non-electrified harmonizing. The South Central Pennsylvania Storytelling Guild will spin a web of tales more encircling than a spider's net. Two characters will be loose on the Landis Valley grounds for visitors to encounter: Mike Showalter will become an itinerant "Dutch" knickknack seller; and Ubie Adams will minstrel Halloween music when the weather and the spirit move her.

A first-time ever feature will be introduced: Pumpkin Caricature Art will be practiced for those daring enough to have their persona sketched onto the hemisphere of the great orange orb. Dan Heffner, a skilled artist with many talents, will draw caricatures of individuals directly onto the side of a pumpkin. For the slightly less playful this caricature art can be performed in a more traditional way - on flat white paper.

Admission fees for this event are as follows: Adults- $6; Older People- $5; Youth- $4. For information about Pumpkin Patch Weekend call (717) 569-0401 weekdays 9 to 5. Proceedes benefit Landis Valley Museum, operated by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission and supported by Landis Valley Associates. The museum is 2.5 miles north of Lancaster on Rt. 272-Oregon Pike, a marked exit off both Rt. 222 and Rt. 30.

Berks Society 1

Berks Society of Farm Women Group I met at Martha Levan's.

Gerald Yoder who lives along Pricetown Road showed and talked about red ware dishes. some of the clay used was gotten along the river beds in Oley Valley. Some of these dishes are for everyday use and some are very fancy.

Psalm 121 was read and flag saluted.

Lose Weight For A Lifetime

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's College of Agriculture has introduced a weight-management program designed to help people shed pounds permanently.

"Although many people lose weight on traditional diets and weight-control plans, 95 percent gain the weight back," says Madeleine Sigman, assistant professor of food science and a registered dietitian.

To address the problem, Sigman developed "My New Weigh of Life," a program that teaches participants to integrate weight loss into their lifestyles. "Managing your weight is a personal issue," Sigman says. "To be permanent it must become part of your life."

The program grew out of current research into theories about obesity, weight loss and coping management. Participants are given accurate, up-to-date information about food, nutrition and exercise. They are encouraged to recognize their own needs and choices and to be more physically active.

Participants also learn how to lower the fat content of favorite recipes. The program's philosophy is that there are no forbidden foods, only those a person might choose to eat less often and in smaller amounts.

By keeping a diary of their food intake and mood patterns, participants identify behaviors that have led them to overeat. Record keeping also helps them set realistic goals.

For permanent results, the program calls for a slow loss of wieght, 1/2 to 2 pounds per week. Enrollees must eat three meals daily. "If you don't eat for a long time during the day, your body signals to itself that whatever comes in next should be stored as fat," says Sigman. "If you skip a meal to lose weight, you actually are defeating the purpose."

Toward the program's end, participants are shown how to cope with relapses and how to establish a weight-maintenance support group.

My New Weigh of Life begins in September in some Pennsylvania counties and is offered for a small fee. For more information, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Cars and planes allow us to travel great distances in a short time. Thus we can visit relatives with comparative ease. Sometimes traveling great distances is the only way to see one's family.

Fifty years ago all of my near relatives lived within a few miles of my home. We could visit grandparents, uncles, aunts and cousins every week and they in turn visited us. My one grandmother, a widow, lived with us until her death. It was a great opportunity to really know her and give her a chance to know her grandchildren.

A few days ago I took our daughter and her two young girls to the Lancaster Airport on their way home to Atlanta, Georgia. It was a different five days as we lived and ate with a one-year-old and a three-year-old. To complicate things they didn't feel too well when they were here. So, their mother was their best friend and I was an outsider.

I did take them on a long express wagon ride up our lane to the house that we are building. They seemed to enjoy that as we found eight different flowers along the road to make a bouquet for their mother. When I drive by in the car, I don't even see the small flowers.

Our one son has uprooted his family for the umpteenth time. At least by living in Virginia instead of Tennessee, they will be closer to home as they are both from Lancaster County. It is a hard adjustment for their three children as they change schools and find new friends. Maybe in the long run it will be an advantage as they must learn to adjust to new people.

At least the telephone and mail service help us to keep in touch with our far-flung family.

Holiday Meeting To Be 'Nostalgic'

YORK (York Co.) — "Holiday Nostalgia- 1741 to 1991" is the theme of the Penn State Extension Service's annual holiday meeting scheduled for Tuesday, November 19, at the 4-H Center near Bair. The all-day session starts at 9:30 a.m. and concludes at 2:30 p.m.

The morning program features Christenna Stamm from Lebanon County, who will demonstrate how to use baskets and other items to make holiday decorations for your home.

"How the Pennsylvania Dutch Celebrated Christmas" is Rev. Frederick Weiser's topic for the afternoon program. Rev. Weiser, a pastor from New Oxford, has presented this program in Colonial Williamsburg and the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

Short subjects include a discussion of creative and thoughtful gifts for the older folks on your list by Mary Ellen Bahn, director of educational services at Pleasant Acres Hospital and Home; a demonstration by Sheila Arnold on how to make a lap quilt that hides in its own pillow when not in use; and holiday entertainment by the Kindly Keens from Hanover. "Nostalgic" exhibits by Extension Homemakers groups will be on display throughout the day.

Tickets for the event cost $3.50 and may be purchased before November 12 from the Penn State Extension Office, 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402. Please make checks payable to "Extension Service Special Fund." No tickets will be sold at the door. Those attending should bring a bag lunch. Beverage will be provided. The committee will be accepting donations of non-perishable food items to be used in holiday baskets for families in the Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program.

Child care will be available on a limited basis for toddlers and preschoolers at a cost of $3 per child. Please register children in advance and provide a bag lunch for each child.

For further information please contact the Penn State Extension Service at (717) 757-9657.

Designer Crafts At Artworks

EPHRATA (Lancaster) — The Lancaster Designer Craft Market will be held at the Artworks Expo in Ephrata on November 1,2, and 3. The hours are from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. on November 1 and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on November 2; from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on November 3. The Market is sponsored by the Lancaster Designer-Craftsmen of Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

More than 100 juried craftsmen will participate in the Lancaster Designer Craft Market, which is in it's 19th year. The craftspeople will be coming from thirteen states, as well as Pennsylvania.

The Craft Market will feature demonstrations of Fraktur by Meryl Griffiths of Lancaster, leather crafting by Carol Rosenbaker, Mac Clay Leather of East Petersburg, Jay Irwin, from Avondale, will be demonstrating wood carving to create birds; Cory La Brasca of Lancaster will be the on-site caricaturist, and Barbara Newman of Paramus, N.J. will be showing the art of silk painting.

From Ohio, Lana Lynch, who is an award winning jeweler, will be showing the art of making jewelry using precious metals. In addition to the demonstrators, many craftspeople will be exhibiting and selling their crafts of clay, fiber, jewelry, leather, folk art, basketry, woodcarving, musical instruments, dolls and more. The Craft Market is juried by the standards of the Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen.

The admission is $4 per person for the week-end. Children under 12 are free. There is food provided by the Restaurant at Donecker's, which owns the Artworks and the Expo area.

The Artworks Expo Center is located on North State Street, just north of Route 322 in Ephrata. From Lancaster, Take route 222 north to the Route 322, Ephrata exit and follow the signs.

Proceeds from the Lancaster Designer Craft Market benefit the Market House Craft Center which promotes crafts throughout Pennsylvania through workshops and gallery exhibits. It is located in the Southern Market Center at the corner of Queen and Vine Streets in Lancaster.

Bonnie Becker Greets Life With A Smile

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Tall, stately pines line the driveway to Dave and Bonnie Becker's home. Flower beds, without a weed in sight, accent the spacious lawn and the freshly pointed sandstone barn. Steers graze on the rolling farmland.

It's a peaceful, beautiful setting that belies the trauma the Beckers have faced since they purchased the farm in 1980.

The door opens and Bonnie, wearing her usual sunny smile, hurries down the brick sidewalk to welcome visitors. Her cheeriness and optimistic outlook give the impression of a woman who never has any problems.

But Bonnie has faced cancer, had one son diagnosed with a brain tumor and another undergo three hip surgeries, and suffered financially from the four droughts that have affected their crops since 1981.

The Beckers farm 600 acres in the Elizabethtown area. They raise 28 acres of tobacco; 300 of corn, soybeans, and barley, and have capacity for 500 steers.

It was only four months after the family had purchased the farm in 1981 when Bonnie was diagnosed with having cancer.

When she had gone to her family doctor about a cyst on the facial nerve on her face, he sent her to a surgeon who, during the examination, found a growth on her thyroid gland.

"I had no symptoms of illness and the surgeon said there was only a 10 percent chance of cancer," Bonnie said. "I didn't worry about it at all."

But Bonnie was part of that 10 percent who did have cancer. During the four-hour operation, Bonnie's thyroid was totally removed instead of partially removed as she had expected.

When the doctor told Bonnie and her husband that the operation could not remove all the cancer, and that she would need to undergo radioactive iodine treatment, Bonnie wasn't alarmed.

"I had such peace," Bonnie said. "I can't explain it other than to say that I just really felt the power of prayer."

Because Bonnie remained so optimistic and calm, nurses kept questioning Bonnie to see if she really understood the severity of cancer.

Bonnie did. But she was not worried.

"It's hard to explain," she recalled. Before this, I had heard about the power of prayer, but that experience taught me the great power of prayer. I felt wrapped in love. I believe that I experienced both spiritual and mental healing to overcome cancer. It was a spiritual mountaintop experience."

The tears that she shed weren't for herself but in response to the love she felt when she received cards and flowers that people sent her.

"I couldn't believe that people loved me so much," she said.

Six weeks later, Bonnie was back in the hospital where she needed to drink radioactive iodine to kill the cancer cells. She remained in isolation for three days. Everything she touched was considered contaminated and destroyed.

"Nurses were petrified. They didn't want to take care of me because they were scared of the radioactivity my body was giving off from the treatments," Bonnie said. "It gives you a strange feeling when everyone considers you dangerous."

Because of her body's radioactivity, she was not allowed for three weeks to be near her sons, who were then 6 and 8 years of age. For six months, her voice was not much more than a whisper because the operation had affected her vocal cords.

"I had always been a giver and it was hard to be a receiver," Bonnie said. So many people helped by preparing meals, cleaning, caring for our children, and washing my hair.

Ironically, the facial cyst for which Bonnie originally had consulted the doctor disappeared of its own accord.

"I think God used that (facial cyst) so the thyroid tumor could be found. It would have been a long time before it would have been big enough for me to notice it," she said.

Other good things also came out of the experience. Bonnie said that the support of her family was overwhelming. When Bonnie was diagnosed as having cancer while in the hospital, her father, who formerly wasn't demonstrative in his emotions, came in and laid his head against her and cried. He said, "I'd rather it was I going through this than you."

According to Bonnie, doctors told her that 50 percent of the battle with cancer is attitude. She considers herself fortunate. Because her family and friends were so supportive, Bonnie felt she recuperated quickly. Subsequent annual X-rays show no sign of cancer.

Facing cancer firsthand has left an indelible mark on her. "Before I had cancer, I had a high school friend who was diagnosed with cancer. I never went to see her because I didn't know what to say. Now, I realize that it isn't what you say, it's just being there that counts," Bonnie said.

Another lesson she learned was to show affection. One of her sons helped her learn that lesson when he pointed out that people who came to visit her when she was sick always hugged her. Months later, her younger son asked, "Why don't people hug you anymore?"

Bonnie said that his comment has encouraged her to take the first step in hugging others.

Her hospital experience has taught her the importance of sending cards to those suffering. She tries to pick out those with special messages that apply to the situation.

Sometimes, doctors ask Bonnie to visit others who have been diagnosed with cancer. "I enjoy giving others hope," Bonnie said.

A more devastating experience than cancer happened two years ago when her son started having severe headaches that affected his vision and balance, and caused nausea. A CAT SCAN, computer-aided tomography, revealed a cyst on the left side of his brain. "I knew then how my dad felt when I was sick. I wished it were me instead of my child," Bonnie said.

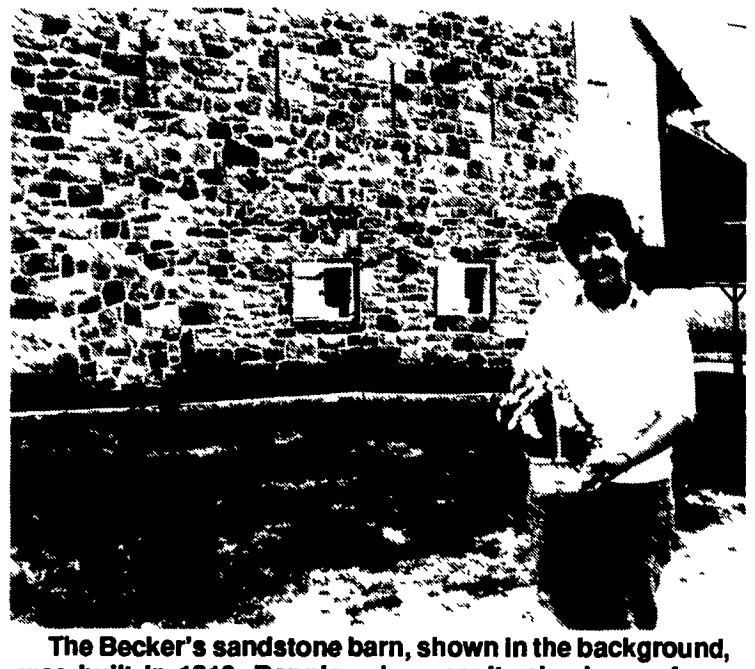
Doctors could not operate on the arachnoid cyst, but they do not expect it to grow, and the headaches are controlled by medication.

Another of the Becker's son had needed three hip operations.

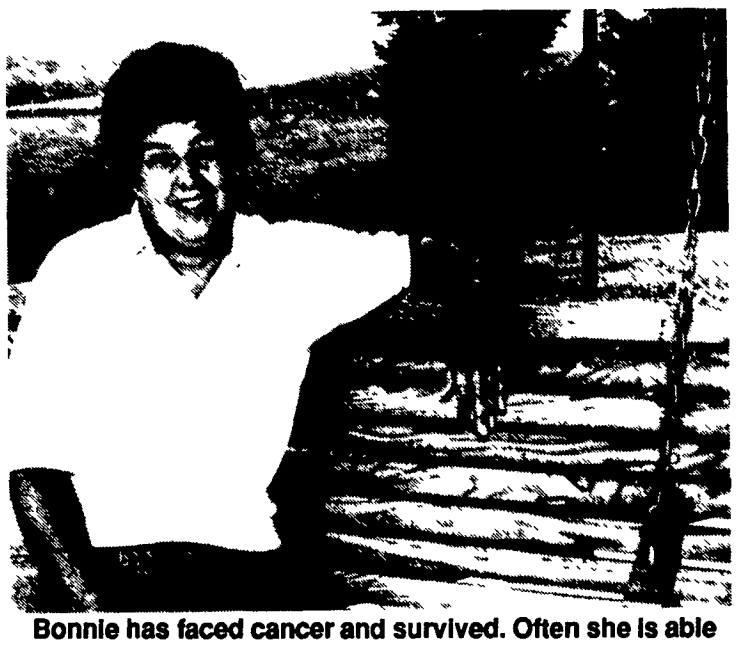
Despite the family's health history, Bonnie does not worry. "Everyone is healthy now," she said.

But the family's problems are not limited to medical ones. The four droughts that have affected the Becker's crops in the past 10 years have caused financial hardship. To increase their income, Dave and his sons are putting their welding and fabrication skills to use by opening a shop on the farm. Currently, they are making 24 catwalks for a Maine company.

Illness, financial hardship, and difficulties don't hinder Bonnie's smile. She said, "It isn't that I never get discouraged, but I have learned that if I want to complain, I can always find something to complain about. If I look on the bright side, there is always something for which to be thankful and it makes everyone feel so much better."



The Becker's sandstone barn, shown in the background, was built in 1810. Bonnie, who wasn't raised on a farm, loves working outdoors. She mows the spacious lawn and weeds the flower beds scattered around the property.



Bonnie has faced cancer and survived. Often she is able to offer hope and encouragement to others who face severe illnesses.

Bonnie helps care for the 500-head of cattle the Beckers raise on their property.

Wool Fashion Show Scheduled

COLLEGE PARK, MD — Contestants in Maryland's annual "Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool" competition will model their garments during a fashion show at 2 p.m., October 26, in Woodies' Court at White Marsh Mall north of Baltimore.

The 80 contestants will be judged on garment construction and suitability, as well as on poise, fashion sense and modeling ability. Their outfits, which can be sewn, woven, knit or crocheted, must contain at least 60 percent wool.

More than $4,500 in merchandise prizes will be presented.

Champions in the junior and senior categories will win a trip to compete in the national "Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool" contest, scheduled for January 8 to 12, 1992, in Orlando, Florida. There, more than $20,000 in prizes will be offered, including luggage, savings bonds, college scholarships and fashion trips to new York City.

For the first time, a national winner in the adult division will be chosen from photographs of the state winners.

The national contest is sponsored by the American Sheep Industry Association and American Sheep Industry Women. In Maryland, the event is co-sponsored by the Maryland Sheep Breeders Association and the Cooperative Extension Service, Maryland Institute for Agriculture and Natural Resources.

CONSIDERATIONS IN HOG CONTRACTS
KENNETH B. KEPHARD
Extension Swine Specialist

Reasons for Using Contracts: Production contracts for hogs have been popular in Pennsylvania for a number of reasons: (1) They permit producers to get started in the business with a limited amount of equity since a smaller amount of operating capital is needed; (2) There is less risk of fluctuating income; (3) Lending instituions usually prefer and often demand the use of contracts. An indirect advantage to contracts is the service and management that encourages producers to operate the enteprise as a business.

Typical Payments: A recent check with the major companies offering contracts in Pennsylvania shows that contract payments are fairly similar across the board and that the payments have increased somewhat in the last five years.

For example, contract payments for finishing hogs range from $8 to $10 per head. The $8 payment corresponds to older facilities, and the $10 figure is the popular rate for newly constructed barns. With a few companies, the total payment per hog may approach $11 with incentives for low mortality and a low F/G ratio.

Farrow to feeder pig contract payments range from $18 to $21. All the companies that I'm aware of cover the cost of propane. Since some also pay for utilities, it makes sense to shop around.

For most companies offering farrow to finish contracts, payments for farrow to feeder and finishing are combined, resulting in a total payment of roughly $28. At least one company pays on a per-pound basis which also provides a payment of around $28.

Potential Problems With Some Contracts:

(1) Service: My own observation is that service is not the same from one company to the next.

(2) Breeding stock: You may not consider this a major problem, but within a given feed company you will probably have little if any flexibility on the type of breeding stock that you can use.

(3) Finishing contracts paid on $ pound of gain: There are a few companies that offer about $.045/pound of gain. For a load of pigs that average 40 pound initially and 230 pound at the time of market, you would be paid $8.55 per head (190 lb. gain x. $.045). The final weight for this program will be determined at the market, so the producer must cover the shrink which can range from seven to 12 lbs. This represents a potential loss of more than $.50 per head to the producer.

(4) Feed conversion incentives: For all-in-all-out facilities, it's relatively easy to calculate F/G. In a continuous flow facility, a F/G calculation is next to impossible on a group-by-group basis. So you might be entitled to an incentive payment for good feed efficiency, but because it can't be documented, you won't get it.

(5) Deaths on the truck: Some companies make no grower payment for a hog that dies on the truck.

(6) Quality of feeder pigs: Lot's of variation here. When a group arrives in your barn that is coughing or suffering from diarrhea, you're pretty much stuck with them.

(7) Time until re-filling the finishing barn: Some companies have provisions to refill your barn within a week or two. Others do not, which results in some barns sitting empty even though the producer's mortgage payments must keep flowing.

Contracts have offered good opportunities to many producers. But it's also clear that there are enough differences among contracts that you should talk to as

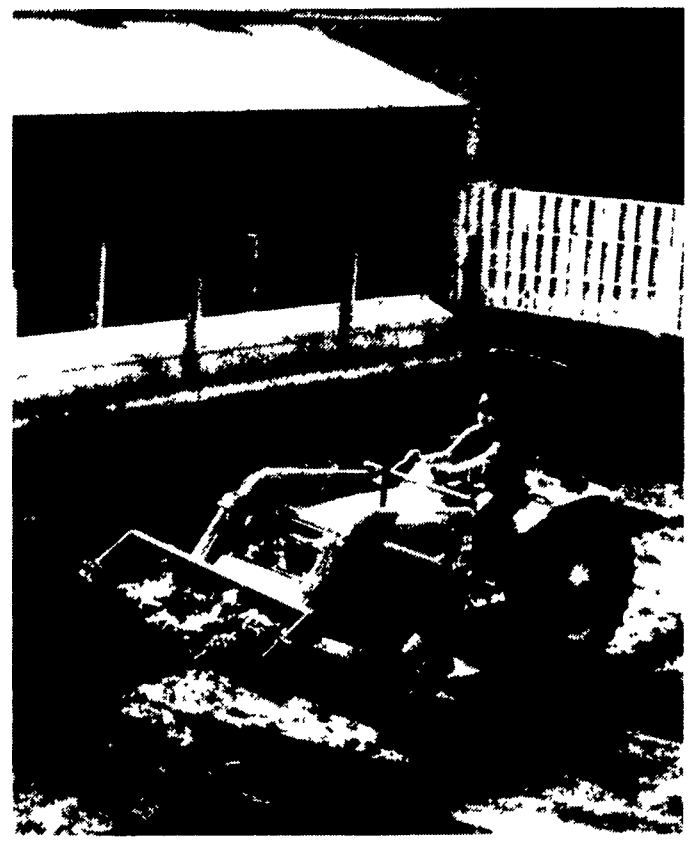
GOOD HOMES WANTED



If you're at home performing general or weekend farming, light construction or landscaping chores, take a look at Kubota's B and L Series tractors.

They're compact and powerful, ranging from 10 - 49 PTO HP. And they're friendly to use, with many options including: Hydrostatic and Glide-Shift transmissions, power steering, Bi-Speed turn and the new "Ever Clutch."

Versatile, durable implements include a line of rotary cutters and mowers, box-scrapers, tillers, front loaders, backhoes and more.

Give a Kubota a good home and you'll have a friend for life.

Kubota Tractor Corporation markets a full line of tractors through a nationwide network of over 1,000 dealers.

many companies as possible, as well as to other producers under contract.

FEEDING GILTS DURING THE PREBREEDING PERIOD

Researchers at the University of Delaware recently investigated the effort of feed intake of gilts during the period from 240 pounds until breeding on reproductive performance during the first two parities. Forty-three crossbred gilts either remained on the self feeder or were limit-fed six pounds per day of a corn-soy diet at the end of the finishing phase. All gilts were bred at the second observed heat then treated and fed equally for the remainder of this study.

Self-fed gilts were fatter when weaned from their first litters and at day 110 of the second gestation period, but there were no differences in litter size, litter weight, or gilt body size at any time during the first two lactations. These results are in agreement with a Penn State study which showed no difference in ovulatory rate of self-fed vs. limit fed-gilts.

If we assume the self-fed gilts in the Delaware study ate an average of nine pounds of feed per day, were gaining 1.9 pounds per day, and were bred when they weighed 280 pounds, the self-fed gilts would require 63 pounds more feed than the limit-fed gilts during the prebreeding period. At $.075/pound of feed, limit feeding would save $4.73/gilt in feed costs with no change in reproductive performance.

Keep in mind that the Delaware trial was conducted with only 43 gilts. It is possible that a trial conducted with more pigs may show differences in reproductive performance. Also, gilts from heavy milking sow lines may be more apt to benefit from additional body condition at weaning.

Under conditions of these studies, there is no economic advantage to self feeding gilts during the prebreeding period on subsequent reproductive performance.

PA SWINE REGULATION CHANGES

Swine regulation changes were adopted on August 17, that will require pseudorabies testing of Pennsylvania swine herds that wish to sell or transport feeder pigs. Feeder pigs from counties with PRV infected herds will be allowed to move intrastate or interstate only if the swine are test negative within 30 days of movement or from qualified pseudorabies free herds or from pseudorabies monitored (negative) herds. Pseudorabies monitored herd status is granted by the department on the basis of a statistically significant negative pseudorabies sample of the herd at least once a year.

Livestock markets will be advised that feeder pigs may not be marketed unless from PRV-free counties or from qualified herds. This will mean that owners of feeder pigs must provide proof of one of the following: (1) The herd of origin is a qualified pseudorabies negative herd; or (2) the herd-of-origin is a pseudorabies monitored herd; or (3) the feeder swine for sale are pseudorabies test negative no more than 30 days before sale; or (4) the herd of origin is located in a county not known to contain swine infected with or quarantined because of pseudorabies. A properly completed bureau test report (AAI-11) including test results will be acceptable documentation that test requirements have been met.

Proper identification of feeder and breeder swine will be necessary to document PRV status and to permit trace of movement. Tattoo of the ear or flank with a department registered; herd number of herd acronym or a unique eartag or an eartag bearing the registered herd number or herd acronym will be acceptable identification of feeder pigs. Breeder animals must be individually identified with a unique eartag or registered ear or flank tatoo with a department registered herd number or herd acroyny and use of a standard ear notch system. Feeder and breeder swine must be identified prior to leaving the herd or origin. A herd number may be obtained from the Bureau of Animal Industry. Eartags may be obtained from animal and veterinary supply companies.

The department recommends that feeder pig producers throughout Pennsylvania who wish to sell or transport feeder pigs should qualify their herds as soon as possible. Collection and testing of blood samples is likely to require several weeks — longer if sample quality is not satisfactory. Blood samples must be collected by a licensed veterinarian and accompanied by a department submittal for AAI-11).

Swine producers need to take special precautions to keep pseudorabies out of their herds. Recent spread of pseudorabies threatens to infect most counties in the eastern half of the state. Only test negative swine should be added to herd and producers should avoid contact of any kind with infected herds of contaminated premises, equipment or conveyances.

If you have any questions, please call your veterinarian, a department regional office, or the bureau of Animal Industry Division of Animal Health, 717-783-5301.

300 4-H, FFA Members Participate

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Three hundred 4-H and FFA members participated in the 17th Pennsylvania Dairy Judging Forum yesterday at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

The judging forum is just one of several events held for young people during the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show.

Five cow classes and two heifer classes were selected from the quality cattle on display at the All-American. Contestants were scored on their judging talents and knowledge of dairy herd management.

The Cumberland County 4-H Dairy Club picked up the win with 1,050 points. Team members included Matthew Day, David Day, Michael Hensel and Mary Ellen Deaven. The team received $40 and a handsome engraved plaque for their efforts.

The second place 4-H team was the Somerset County 4-H team. Members Mark Ream, Matthew Welch, Charles Johnson and Brian Deal scored a total of 1046 points. Rounding out the top five were the Warren County, Lebanon County and Crawford County 4-H teams.

Matthew Welch had the highest score of 378 from a possible 400, followed by Matthew Day with 363, David Day with 357, and Annie Rauheuser from York County with 351 points.

The high scoring team of FFA members was from Chambersburg. Scoring 1,019 combined points were Damon Harwood, Dale Beidel, Donald Harwood and Russell Lake.

The second place FFA team was Cumberland Valley with a score of 1,007 by team members Megan Souder, Audrey Lehman, Heather Lehman and Amanda Peak. Rounding out the top five were the Solanco, Northern Bedford and James Buchanan FFA teams.

Donald Harwood had the high individual score among FFA contestants with a 356. He was followed closely by Amanda Peak and Allen Husohn with 349's and Joel Dietz and Heather Lehman with 345's.

The forum was established by show directors as an educational activity for 4-H and FFA members. Many current agricultural leaders received valuable experience in evaluation and decision making during dairy cattle judging events.

Red Meat Sales To Soviets Will Increase

DENVER, Colo. — Good news on the Soviet front for the U.S. red meat industry as officials of the U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF) returned from a five-day trade mission to the Soviet Union.

A request for 10,000 tons of U.S. beef livers and a clear indication that the Soviets will be looking for up to 1.3 million tons of additional meat purchases this winter was the result of the mission.

The request for U.S. beef livers was announced recently by Alexander Krivenko, president of Prodintorg (the USSR's central buying agency), in hearings before the House Agriculture Committee. Krivenko also indicated in a letter to USDA Undersecretary Richard Crowder that, in addition to 10,000 tons of beef livers, the Soviet's are seeking 100,000 tons of U.S. poultry products and 50,000 tons of butter under the GSM 102 credit program.

Mike Skahill, USMEF director of International Programs, noted that, to his knowledge, this is the first written request to the U.S. government from the Soviet Union for red meat products. However, USMEF contacts in the Soviet Union over the last year have clearly showed strong interest on the part of the Soviets in purchasing red meat protein from the U.S.

The U.S. red meat industry has been frustrated that prior GSM 102 credit allocations to the Soviet Union have been void of beef and pork products.

Skahill is hopeful that this recent breakthrough will lead to more sales in 1992 from the U.S. Skahill explained that the need for meat protein in the Soviet Union today is far more pressing than when USMEF completed its study of export opportunities in the Soviet Union in 1990.

The purpose of the latest USMEF mission was to meet with trade officials for the central Soviet government and representatives of semiprivate trading firms that are springing up in Soviet republics. USMEF also met with many of the newly built western hotels. These hotels are geared to the growing business and tourist travel from the West and are interested in high-quality meat from the U.S. In addition, Skahill noted, these hotels have hard currency to pay for it.

"Our main point to the trading firms was that the U.S. can supply more than the high-quality, higher-priced meat products," said Skahill. "We stressed that we can also be a major supplier of high-quality but lower valued variety meats that can compete on a price basis with meat commodities from the EC." He said that EC boneless forequarters were trading at approximately 60 cents per pound.

The mood of the Russian people over this winter's food supply, Skahill said, is one of panic. "We heard estimates that the USSR will need to import from 800,000 to 1.3 million tons of meat this winter," he said. "Our opinion is that aid from the U.S. should be targeted at the larger cities where shortages will result in the highest levels of frustration for the Soviet people." By supplying the major cities, Skahill predicted that the hoarding that was so prevalent earlier in the year could be avoided this winter.

USDA currently has $585 million remaining in GSM 102 credits approved for the USSR for the 1992 fiscal year. USMEF has urged the Bush Administration to increase the level of credits to the Soviet Union to assist the Soviets and its republics in buying much-needed red meat protein from the U.S.

Groundwater Education Project Set

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — The Pennsylvania Groundwater Policy Education Project is sponsoring a day-long conference Saturday, November 2. It will be held at the Chester County Hospital School of Nursing.

The project is a joint effort of Penn State Cooperative Extension and the League of Women Voters of Pennsylvania Citizen Education Fund funded by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

High quality water is vital to the health and economic well-being of Pennsylvanians, 37 percent of whom depend on groundwater for their drinking water. The conference will focus on education and leadership development for improved groundwater policy-making in Pennsylvania.

Citizens and municipal officials will receive training on groundwater issues and leadership skills that will enable them to more effectively participate in public policy decisions affecting groundwater.

A hydrogeologist, familiar with the local geology, will discuss the specific groundwater situation in southeastern Pennsylvania.

The workshops are open to the public. For more information on the workshop and to register, call Renee Abrams (412) 363-3112, the League's toll-free number (800) 692-7281, or your local county extension office.

Small Co-Ops Search For Survival Tools

ST. PAUL, Minn. — The leader of a Vermont organic produce cooperative shared stories with an Idaho sheep rancher who is investigating marketing alternatives.

Organizers of black farmers' cooperatives in the South shared their experiences with the manager of a North Dakota fish co-op.

More than 40 invited participants met here recently to explore the challenges facing small member-owned businesses. Billed as the National Cooperative Round Table, the meeting provided a forum for the small co-op organizers to exchange information with co-op lenders and resource institutions.

Their stories were unique, but their concerns were identical: What tools are available to help small cooperatives survive and prosper in the volatile economic climate of the 1990s?

Leaders from the small cooperatives cataloged the problems they are facing in obtaining financing, recruiting volunteers, educating members, and developing leadership. The small co-op leaders then worked with representatives for cooperative banks and resource institutions to develop new approaches to addressing those problems.

Nationally acclaimed cooperative pioneer Maria Varela told the conference participants that small cooperatives can play a vital role in protecting the "cultural ecology" of communities throughout rural America. Varela was awarded a MacArthur Foundation Fellowship last year for her work in organizing cooperatives in the isolated mountain valleys of northern New Mexico.

Varela's cooperative organizing in the region began as a drive to help financially strapped ranchers hang onto their land and culture.

"When your wife has cancer, or when your kids need to go to school, or when you have to pay off your pickup, you're going to sell your land," said Varela. "And when you sell that land, a basic root of your culture is gone."

She helped organize Ganados del Valle, a sheep growers cooperative that has since spawned a weavers' co-op with a national reputation for unmatched quality.

Varela noted that small cooperatives need development capital which is structured to meet the realities of each member-owned business. Those co-ops also need locally based ongoing technical assistance.

John Gauci, executive director of the Washington, D.C.-based Cooperative Development Foundation, agreed. He said, "I think our challenge is to make the resources in mainstream organizations available to the local groups. Development has to be local. Someone in a small cooperative has to be able to pick up the phone and talk to someone an hour or two hours away."

Ralph Paige, executive director of the Federation of Southern Cooperatives, noted that the resources and programs must be tailored to reward the creativity of small farmers and their cooperatives.

"A lot of time local producers are on the cutting edge of new product development," said Paige. "When you develop new technology, can you take advantage of it? I think a lot of the large institutions have largely forgotten about us in the small co-ops."

In his address at the Round Table, National Farmers Union President Leland Swenson said, "As we make a recommitment to public policy, we have to make a recommitment to cooperative development and a recommitment to basic cooperative principles."

The National Cooperative Round Table was cosponsored by the National Farmers Union, the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, the St. Paul Bank for Cooperatives, and CoBank.

Department Of Ag Accepts Lancaster Century Farm Applications

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County Extension Director John Schwartz has announced that applications for Lancaster County Century Farm nominations are being accepted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

"To qualify as a Century Farm, the farm must have been owned by the same family for 100 consecutive years," said Schwartz. "A family member must currently live on the farm, and the farm must consist of at least 10 acres of the original holding or gross over $1,000 annually from the sale of farm products."

Lancaster County currently has 115 registered Century Farms.

Schwartz said that Century Farm nominees whose applications are processed prior to November 5 will be honored at the Lancaster County Farm-City Ag Chamber Banquet on November 26.

Century Farm information and applications may be obtained from the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster, PA 17601 or by calling (717) 394-6851.

Fair Season Ends With Sale

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — A record price for all animals — $45,040.28 — was tallied at the end of the Manheim Farm Show Sale last week.

Hog prices were doubled across the board at the sale, according to one official.

Travis Donough, who won champion hog, steer, and reserve market lamb at the fair, totalled $6,267.55 for all his animals at the auction. Bomberger's Store bought Travis' 248-pound grand champion hog for $5 per pound. Stiegal Construction bought his 1,355-pound supreme champion market steer for $2.25 per pound. Elmer Murry, Elvin Yeagley, and Farmer's First bought his 126-pound reserve champion market lamb for $4.50 per pound.

Manheim Auto Auction bought the 131-pound grand champion market lamb from Wendall Landis for a sale-record $7.50 per pound.

The 228-pound reserve grand champion hog, also owned by Travis Donough, went for $3.35 per pound to Philips Ford. The 236-pound champion medium-weight hog, also shown by Travis, went to Keystone Farm Credit for $1.50 per pound. Hatfield Quality Meats bought the 210-pound champion lightweight for $1.40 per pound.

The 236-pound reserve light heavyweight shown by Melissa Becker was sold to Hatfield Quality Meats for $1.10 per pound. Karen Becker sold her 228-pound reserve lightweight for $1.10 per pound to Hatfield. Karen sold the 214-pound reserve lightweight for $1.10 per pound to Wenger's Feed Mill. The 256-pound reserve heavyweight hog, shown by Lisa Pfautz, sold to Stony Ridge Farm for $1.30 per pound.

Matt Hoover's supreme champion market steer, at 1,255 pounds, went to J.H. Brubaker Lumberyard for $2.05 per pound. The 104-pound lightweight champion market lamb went for $1.75 per pound to Keystone Farm Credit. The 106-pound lightweight reserve champion lamb, shown by Jeremy Erb, sold to Willie the Butcher for $1.60 per pound.

Average price without champions was 99 cents per pound for hogs, $1.26 per pound for lambs, and $1.34 per pound for market steers.

4-H'ers Show True Colors At Activities Week

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — When people think of 4-H, often they picture freckle-faced youngsters with prize calves and sheep.

But this is only part of the picture. Today, 4-H youths live in cities, suburbs, and small towns as well as in rural areas.

And they're learning about subjects such as embryology, photography, nutrition, and government, in addition to the animal science and home economics skills that 4-H originally was all about.

"These programs are designed to help young people develop their potential and become the best adults they can be," said Dr. Alan Snider, professor of agricultural and extension education in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"Through hands-on experience, they learn about current issues and life skills," said Snider. "At the same time, they gain self-confidence, leadership skills, and a capacity to care for others. These qualities last a lifetime."

A nationwide total of 5.4 million youths, ages 8 to 19, take part in 4-H. In Pennsylvania, more than 150,000 young people are enrolled or otherwise involved in 4-H youth development programs.

In Chester County, 4-H programs are held in churches, public housing facilities, halfway houses, and even in private homes in low-income neighborhoods. These programs teach horticulture, nutrition, job hunting, and other skills.

Tioga County 4-H has established an after-school recreation program for more than 80 children in first through fourth grade. Tioga County 4-H also participates in a five-county teen retreat called "Life: Use It, Don't Abuse It," where teenagers can discuss social problems with peers and receive professional assistance.

4-H programs in Philadelphia County, such as career workshops and field trips to universities with high minori-

Super All Traction 23°

R-1

- New top-of-line bias-ply tractor rear, featuring our long bar/long bar design for tread stability, and heavy bar bracing to extend tread life.
- Long wearing and smooth riding, due to the more uniform, flatter contour of the long bar/long bar design.
- Proven 23° bar angle for traction and open center for self-cleaning.
- Bead and rim protector shields the rim to help keep stubble and soil from getting between the bead and rim flange.

ty populations, are designed to instill pride in minority youths. In addition, Penn State's Philadelphia Recruitment Center provides college preparation workshops for teens.

Other counties provide 4-H programs in such areas as therapeutic horseback riding for the handicapped, entrepreneurship, and self motivation. "In addition, 4-H programs can provide counseling to potential dropouts, youths with substance abuse problems, pregnant teens, and other troubled youngsters," said Snider.

National 4-H week was celebrated recently, celebrating nearly 80 years of programs that aid and educate youths. There are about 45 million 4-H alumni, many of whom now work as 4-H adult volunteers.

4-H in Pennsylvania is conducted by Penn State Cooperative Extension through the U.S. Department of Agriculture. If you are interested in enrolling your child in 4-H, or becoming an adult 4-H volunteer, contact your nearest Penn State Cooperative Extension office.

The following awards were presented at the 4-H Activities Week.

AYRSHIRE SALE

The moment the first heifer walked into the sale ring at the 50th NY Ayrshire Production Sale at the Sunshine Fair Grounds, Cobleskill, NY, all echos of "Farmers Don't Have Any Money" were blown away as the arena-packed sale crowd quickly established a positive tempo for the sale.

The tops of $2,350 and $2,500 were modest. However the demand was uniformly strong. The 63 cows and bred heifers averaged $1,301.11. This is the highest average since 1981. The biggest buyer was McNeff Dairy of Chickasha, OK, who purchased 18 head, including the $2,500 sale top, a fancy bred heifer from the Sycamore Meade herd of Earl Keefer at Millersburg, PA. The records of the dams of 15 of the bred heifers and one heifer calf (2 dams didn't have records) in this select load have 305-day records that average 14,491 Milk 4% 482 Fat.

This group of Ayrshires will be the foundation nucleus of a Red and White unit at a farm where the milking herd includes about 700 cows. The second-high animal at $2,350 was a young cow, soon due with 2nd calf, from a dam with 28,073 M 4.3% 1,199 F. Her buyer was Lynn Lee of Smyrna, TN. The consignor was Royal Flush Ayrshires, at Navan, Ontario.

Nine PA breeders consigned 177 head to this feature Breed Club Sponsored Sale. They sold for an average of $1,278.

The demand for the young cattle in a separate section of the sale was also strong with five short yearlings, 2 young bulls, and 22 calves (several under four months of age) averaged $509.48.

There were a total of 46 buyers from 8 states. The sale was managed by Tom P. Whittaker of Brandon, VT, who has done this job at all 50 of these annual sales.

RIGIDPLY RAFTERS' "GLU-LAM COLUMN" SPECIFICATIONS

All columns shall be Rigidply Rafters' "Glu-Lam Columns," manufactured of foundation grade #2 southern yellow pine. The laminations shall be glued together at 12% moisture content with waterproof phenol-resorcinal glue. They shall be assembled and clamped under pressure in a controlled environment until the glue is cured.
The columns shall be CCA pressure treated to a .60 retention factor, a minimum of 12" above the ground line on the ground contact end. The columns shall meet the following test procedures: Block Shear Test, Cyclic Delamination Test, Finger Joint Test and A.S.T.M. D905-49.

We Use Wolmanized® Pressure-Treated Lumber by Cox.

DISCOVER THE LABOR SAVING ADVANTAGES:

- Glued laminated with waterproof glue
- Lighter, straighter and stronger than solid sawn or nailed laminated posts
- C C A treated laminations are used on the ground contact end
- C C A penetration is greater than solid sawn posts
- Untreated wood above ground eliminates the need for galvanized fasteners
- Finger jointed to form one piece laminations
- Eliminate cracking, splitting and checking

Hey! Folks

If your cows are slipping and falling, it ain't my fault because I have a machine called a Scabbler that will fix that concrete so your cows won't keep slipping all the time.

We've got service all around this section of the country, and I have a fellow just jumping to do your job mighty fast.

And that ain't all, our prices are right reasonable, and if you're a tightwad we'll let you do the job yourself if you've got over 500 square feet. It can save you right smart a money.

So call me on my nickel at 800-692-0123. If I'm not by the phone, some real live person will take your number, and I'll try to get back to you real soon. Usually somebody is awake in this outfit, so you just call any time day or night. But, please mind the Lord, and don't call on Sunday.

Just one more thing. We fellows make our living doing this kind of work, and we've got children to feed and bills. That's our side of it, but you've got such things too. A lot of people tell us that this Scabbling saves a whole lot more than it costs. So go ahead and do it. It'll put shoes on everybody's feet.

Be looking to hear from you folks right soon.

Eastern Milk Uses $1.8 Million For Cash Bonuses

SYRACUSE, N.Y.— Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative paid out $1.8 million in profits to dairy farmers in the form of cash bonuses over the past fiscal year, co-op officials announced at Eastern's annual meeting held at the University Sheraton

That payout is the largest since the co-op started to use profits for on-going bonuses, Eastern President Lewis Gardner said.

In 1987, he said, the board of directors decided to return profits monthly to member farmers in the form of cash premiums, rather than retaining profits in the co-op. As a result, he said, Eastern returned over $300,000 to farmers in fiscal 1988, over $600,000 in fiscal '89, over $1.2 million in fiscal '90, and now $1.8 million in fiscal '91.

A highlight of Eastern's Annual Meeting was the awards presentation, which honored a field representative, a journalist, a cooperative educator and 10 top quality producers.

Marlin Bilger of Ephrata has been named 1991 Field Rep of the Year. He has worked with Pennsylvania producers primarily in Lancaster, Lebanon, Berks and Chester counties for a total of 12 years, and carries the biggest dairy load of any Eastern Field rep.

Ona "Chip" Lines is the recipient of Eastern's Ag Journalism Award. She began her newspaper career in 1977.

Hal Doran is Eastern's first recipient of the Distinguished Service to Agriculture Award because of his leadership and commitment to cooperative education. From 1966 to his retirement in 1991, Hal was director of Penn State's Cooperative Business Education Program.

The top 10 quality farmers were chosen after lab tests over a 12-month period showed they had the best quality milk in the nine-state area in which the co-op operates. Those recognized were: Chuck and Shelley Walker of Geneva, N.Y., as '91 Quality Farmers of the Year; Bruce Bartley, Jr., Cogan Station, Quality Producer in Pennsylvania; Daniel Peet, Richmond, Vt., Quality Producer in Vermont; John and Gail Bunting, Treadwell, N.Y., '90 Farmers of the Year; Aaron and Anna Mary Lapp, Loganton; Philip Reinhardt, Middletown, N.Y.; Marianne and Charles Rogers, Cogan Station; Vollmans Dairy Farm, Trout Run; Frank E. Welcher, Newark, N.Y.; and Jeffrey and Karen Zuck, Myerstown.

Eastern General Manager Michael Donovan said the co-op has been profitable for 10 consecutive years, allowing not only the monthly bonus program, but also a reduction in member dues from 14 cents to 11 cents per hundred pounds of milk during that period.

Donovan said Eastern had sales of $216.7 million on 1.6 billion pounds of milk. Eastern, as the marketing arm for its members, passed the majority of those sales dollars to farmers through twice-a-month milk checks.

Eastern, a Syracuse-based dairy co-op, operates in a nine-state area with 3,100 member farm families. The majority of those member-owners are located in New York, Pennsylvania and Vermont.

Chore-Time Equipment's Model C2™ poultry pan feeding system was named to "The Agricultural Engineering 50" by The American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE).

ASAE Recognizes Feeder System

MILFORD, Ind. — Chore-Time Equipment has been honored for developing one of the year's most outstanding innovations in engineered products for food and agriculture.

The company's Model C2™ poultry pan feeding system was named to "The Agricultural Engineering 50" by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE).

Chore-Time's new Model C2™ round pan poultry feeder is part of what the firm calls the "next generation of broiler feeders," according to Les Kreger, floor feeding systems product manager for the company.

"The Model C2 includes all the popular features of the company's famous Model C™ and Model 2000™ feeders," Kreger said. Th features from the Model C feeder include a deep pan with Chore-Time's unique feed-saver features, a grill that allows birds to easily pass in and out, and free-swinging pan assembly. Ideas used from the Model 2000 feeder included chick-starting feed windows, rugged high-impact polypropylene plastic construction, and overall simplicity.

The Model C2 feeder also includes new features. The feeder has anti-rake fins on the feed level tube to help discourage birds from raking and wasting feed. The feeder's pan can be unlocked from the grill with a simple twist to swing it down or remove it for cleaning, drying, and storage.

The Model C2 Feeder is being showcased in the September/October 1991 issue of "Agricultural Engineering" magazine.

"The AE 50 recognition program is conducted each year by the magazine to emphasize the important role of new products and systems in transferring technology to the marketplace for application by a wide variety of users in food and agriculture. These significant engineering developments are known to help farmers, processors, and equipment makers to cut costs, enhance quality, boost nutrition, become competitive, and improve profitability," Kreger said.

ASAE's panel of judges selected new products that incorporated the use of new technology or innovative application of an older technology. Products selected were judged most likely to make "worthwhile contributions to the advancement of engineering technology for food and agriculture."

Think Cover Crops

YORK (York Co.) — Several reasons make 1991 a good year to give strong consideration to planting a cover crop on cornfields, said John Rowehl, county extension agent.

"Due to poor growing conditions and reduced yields, it took more acres of corn to fill the silos this year," said Rowehl. "Fields that normally had large amounts of cornstalks are now pretty bare. If the soil conservation plan calls for more residue, a cover crop planted in early October can help provide this to help control erosion."

Other corn fields, even if harvested for grain, have reduced residue, according to Rowehl. A 110-bushel corn crop leaves approximately 6,000 pounds of residue. This is expected to provide 90 percent ground corn. Corn yielding half this much will leave half the pounds of residue, but this still translates into about 75 percent ground corn.

"I recommend rye because it will put on the most growth this time of year," he said.

A no-till drill would be ideal since it disturbs little of the existing residue and doesn't loosen up the ground. But when one isn't available, broadcasting the rye and then a single light disking with the gangs set as straight as possible should do the job with minimal disturbance to the residue. Too much tillage to get the rye planted will defeat the purpose of doing it.

P. L. Rohrer Attends Alfalfa University

NAPIER, Iowa — The sales and marketing group of P.L. Rohrer and Brothers, Inc. recently attended Alfalfa University at the ABI Research Center here.

P.L. Rohrer and Brothers, Inc. markets ABI's America's alfalfa brand varieties, including Apollo Supreme, Arrow, and Aggressor. The university session focused on alfalfa research and management, and was capped with a tour of America's alfalfa research field trials.

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Monsanto Agricultural Co. has entered into a licensing agreement with Nissan Chemical Industries, Ltd. of Japan to market a new herbicide that controls many of the toughest broadleaf weeds through an environmentally compatible low application rate.

The technology, invented by Nissan, will be developed by the two companies for the corn market initially, said Louis J. Meyer, new products director for Monsanto. The product also holds promise for sugarcane and turf markets, he said.

"The new herbicide provides excellent control of velvetleaf cocklebur, and nutsedge," Meyer said. "The new product is used at a very low application rate, and according to current test data, it has no significant adverse effects on the environment.

"Field studies to evaluate carryover potential have confirmed no effects on crops such as wheat and soybeans that were planted after corn treated with the product was harvested."

The new product can be applied either before or after the corn plant emerges, Meyer said. All planned products will be dry and mixable with water and fluid fertilizer.

The companies plan to jointly develop the technology and expect to present an initial data package to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency later this year. The product is not expected to be available commercially until the mid-1990s. No trade name has yet been chosen for the product.

Economic Data Accessible Locally

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The latest economic development information will be available free of charge to personal computer users in Pennsylvania, thanks to a joint effort of Penn State's College of Agriculture and the State Data Center at Penn State Harrisburg.

The State Data Center's Economic Development Information Network (EDIN) now can be accessed through local phone lines connected to the College of Agriculture's Pennsylvania Extension Network (PEN). PEN links each of the state's 67 counties to a computer at University Park.

EDIN is an on-line interactive database with thousands of items of statistical and demographic information useful for businesses, local governments, chambers of commerce, and other economic development professionals. It includes facts and figures on agriculture, population projections, government spending, crime statistics, health care costs, personal income, and other subjects for each of the 50 states, Pennsylvania counties, and municipalities.

A new component of EDIN is the Economic Development Directory (EDD), a catalog of more than 1,300 economic development programs and agencies operating in the commonwealth. EDD users can access information on particular types of programs and agencies according to geographic area, the type of benefit or assistance offered, and eligibility requirements, among other criteria.

"In the past, users could access the EDIN only by dialing University Park," said Michael Behney, director of the State Data Center. "Now most users will have toll-free access, while others will pay only the toll charge to their local Penn State Cooperative Extension office."

"This collaboration makes it easier for local economic development officials to access the State Data Center's information," said G. Art Hussey, director of the College of Agriculture's Computer Services. "It's also a valuable way for the college to assist Penn State's Economic Development System."

Penn State's Economic Development System is a collection of facilities, resources, and programs designed to assist development efforts in the commonwealth, including the Pennsylvania Technical Assistance Program (PENNTAP), Penn State Cooperative Extension, Continuing Education, the Ben Franklin Technology Center, the Industrial Research Office, the Intellectual Property Office, and EDIN.

EDIN users also will be able to access PENpages, a computer-based library of consumer and agricultural information maintained by the College of Agriculture. PENpages contains helpful information on topics ranging from accounting to youth development.

Most of the information is generated by Penn State's College of Agriculture. Other contributors include Penn State's College of Health and Human Development, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Cook College of Rutgers University, and national poultry, family living, and human nutrition specialists.

People interested in using the Pennsylvania Extension Network to access either PENpages or EDIN should pick up a free PENpages User Guide from their local extension office. The guide provides step-by-step access instructions and the telephone number you should call to get the lowest possible phone charges. More information about accessing EDIN is available from the State Data Center at (717) 948-6336.

Deere Income Reflects Lower Retail Demand

MOLINE, Ill. — Deere & Company reported third quarter 1991 net income of $31.3 million or $.41 per share, compared with net income of $114.1 million or $1.50 per share in the same period of 1990.

Total worldwide production declined by 19 percent in the third quarter of 1991. The third quarter of Deere & Company's fiscal year ended July 31.

Worldwide net sales and revenues decreased 13 percent to $1.790 billion in the third quarter of 1991 from $2.053 billion one year ago.

Deere & Company Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Hans W. Becherer said, "Operating results for the quarter continued to reflect the effects of producing at a significantly lower volume than last year in response to lower retail demand and to facilitate our planned reduction of company and dealers' inventories during the year. Additionally, sales incentive costs were higher during the third quarter due to extremely competitive conditions in all our markets."

Net sales and revenues include net sales of farm and industrial equipment to dealers, which were $1.486 billion in the current quarter, a decrease of 17 percent from sales of $1.780 billion in last year's third quarter. Net sales and revenues also include revenues from the company's credit, insurance and health care operations, which increased 12 percent to $272 million in the third quarter this year, compared with $243 million in the same quarter of 1990.

Worldwide net income for the first nine months of 1991 was $61.3 million, or $.80 per share, compared with net income of $336.6 million, or $4.44 per share, in the first three quarters of 1990. Worldwide production tonnage declined 19 percent on a year-to-date basis.

Worldwide net sales and revenues of $5.153 billion for the first nine months of 1991 decreased 11 percent from $5.811 billion in the same period of last year. Net sales of equipment decreased 15 percent during the first nine months of 1991 to $4.264 billion from $5.008 billion during the like period of 1990. The company's financial services revenues grew 11 percent to $797 million during the first three quarters of this year, compared with $715 million in the same period of 1990.

"Retail sales of John Deere agricultural equipment in North America declined in the third quarter of 1991 compared with the same period last year, but were slightly higher for the first nine months of this year," Becherer said. "Total overseas retail sales of our equipment were lower in the third quarter and during the first nine months of this year, particularly in Europe.

"The low level of North American construction activity resulting from the recession has caused retail sales of industrial equipment for the industry and John Deere to be significantly below 1990 volumes during the third quarter and first nine months of 1991," Becherer said. "North American retail sales of our lawn and grounds care products were somewhat lower than in last year's third quarter and first nine months as consumer spending for durable goods declined and dry weather conditions affected sales across a large part of the Midwest."

The company's worldwide equipment operations, which exclude the financial services subsidiaries, had net income of about $1 million in the third quarter this year compared with $87.9 million in the same period of 1990. For the first nine months this year, the equipment operations have incurred a net loss of $28.3 million, which compares with net income of $244.0 million in the first nine months of 1990. The company's equipment operations are expected to incur a net loss for the entire year. Results thus far in 1991 have benefited by $9.2 million in the third quarter and $19.4 million in the first nine months from the expected reduction during the year of inventories valued on a last-in, first-out (LIFO) basis.

Net income of the credit operations was $21.7 million in the third quarter this year, compared with $18.4 million in the same quarter of 1990. For the first nine months, net income of these subsidiaries was $62.0 million in 1991, compared with $59.2 million last year.

Net income from insurance and health care operations was $7.6 million in the third quarter of 1991 compared with $6.1 million last year. For the first nine months, income from these operations totaled $29.0 million this year compared with $28.8 million in 1990.

"The outlook for North American agriculture for the remainder of this fiscal year and into early 1992 has become somewhat less favorable and we expect farmers to remain cautious in making new product purchase decisions," Becherer said.

"The general economic environment currently is expected to show steady but moderate improvement. Domestic retail sales of both industrial equipment and lawn and grounds care products are expected to gradually benefit from such a recovery, but fourth quarter 1991 demand is forecasted to be below fourth quarter 1990 retail volumes," Becherer said. "Total retail sales overseas also are expected to decline in this year's final quarter.

"Scheduled worldwide production tonnage in fiscal year 1991 has been reduced somewhat from previous plans due to lower-than-anticipated retail sales of both agricultural and industrial equipment," Becherer said. "Total 1991 production is now expected to be 17 percent lower than actual 1990 output, with fourth quarter production schedules being down about 10 percent from last year. The lower volumes and strong price competition will continue to affect our performance. Therefore, the financial results of our equipment operations are expected to show a significant decline during the fourth quarter of 1991 compared with last year's final quarter."

The company's North American farm equipment division, which includes both agricultural equipment and lawn and grounds care products, generated operating profits in the third quarter and first nine months of 1991, but at levels significantly lower than in the same periods last year. Overseas operating profit was much lower for the third quarter and first nine months this year compared with last year's income. The industrial equipment division has incurred a substantial operating loss for the first nine months this year, compared with an operating profit in the same period last year. Operating profit is defined as income before interest expense, income taxes and certain other expenses.

The normal seasonal increase in dealer and company-owned inventories has been much less than during the first nine months of 1990 because of the lower production. Dealer's agricultural equipment inventories are higher than a year ago, mainly due to higher used goods inventories, while industrial equipment and lawn and grounds care dealer inventories have declined.

"The economic environment we are now facing causes uncertainties regarding the level of retail demand in the coming months extending into 1992," Becherer said. "We, therefore, continue to schedule production conservatively and emphasize cost containment in all facets of our operations. Concurrently, we are proceeding aggressively with our product development and efficiency-enhancing capital expenditure programs."

Pioneer Sales Representatives Receive Training

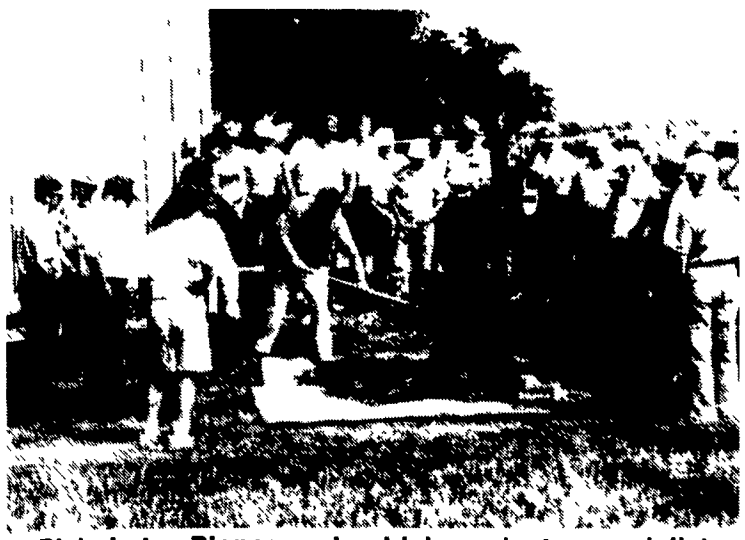
FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — Farmer sales representatives for Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., recently gathered for a product knowledge field day and customer service seminar at Norm Kurtz's seed warehouse here. Kurtz is a Pioneer sales representative.

The group was greeted with a banner suspended from a crane. "The banner simply said KCH — keep customers happy," said Pioneer District Sales Manager Don Newhard. "That is the 'motto' of Pioneer sales representatives. Even though we have outstanding product performance and a strong yield advantage, Pioneer sales reps know how important it is to take good care of their customers."

The group then traveled to Giorgio Foods for a tour of mushroom growing/processing facilities. "The purpose of touring a food processing facility was more than to provide something of interest," said Newhard. "The philosophy at Giorgio is very similar to the one at Pioneer. They are a very customer-oriented, service-driven company."

Pioneer Field Sales Agronomy Manager Ed Lazowski reviewed Pioneer corn hybrids and soybeans, including new and experimental hybrids. Rich Lutz, microbial products specialist, then demonstrated how to set up "bucket" comparisons with the company's hay and silage inoculants. Lutz encouraged the group to set up comparisons for their customers who raise hay and corn for silage.

Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., is the world's largest hybrid seed corn company. Headquartered in Des Moines, Iowa, the company serves farmers in the northeast with the following Pennsylvania locations: a sales office in Mt. Joy, a corn breeding station in New Holland, an alfalfa research station in Quarryville, along with a shipping center in Elizabethtown.



Rich Lutz, Pioneer microbial products specialist, demonstrates how to set up a comparison with the company's hay and silage inoculants.

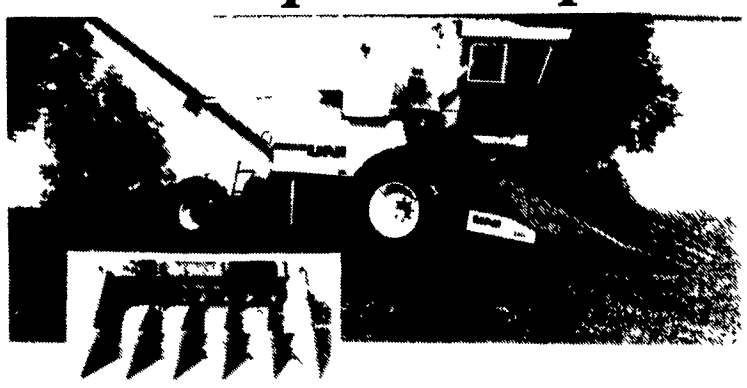
Corn Head Has Skip-Row Option

COLDWATER, Ohio — White-New Idea Farm Equipment Co. announces skip-row options for use on their improved 6500 series corn heads for hybfld seed corn harvesting. The options are also available for use with older model 6500 series corn heads.

The new skip-row option allows conversion of four-row wide heads into five-row narrow heads with a skip-row or all rows active. It will also convert six-row wide heads into seven-row narrow heads. Again, the user can select the location of the skip-row or keep all rows active.

The improved 6500 head features a longer stalk roll with more area for removing stalk and trash. This design, when used in combination with any ear corn harvesting system, improves capacity, especially when compared to heads designed for use with combines.



White-New Idea Farm Equipment Co. announces skip-row options for use on their improved 6500 series corn heads for hybrid seed corn harvesting.

Other features include easy, accurate stripper plate adjustments; one-piece, full-length vine knives; slip clutch protection on each row; choice of extended-life chain or rubber belt gathering systems; heavy-duty gearbox; and 16 stalk-roll blades per row.

These improved 6500 heads improve capacity of both the UNI model 839 (husk-off picker) and the model 880 series (husk-on harvesters) as well as some older units and competitive harvesters.

Mange — A Very Expensive Itch

RAHWAY,N.J. — Though swine veterinarians widely regard mange as the most prevalent and costly skin desease in swine, many hog producers are either unaware their herds are infested or don't realize how much the mange mite is eating into their profits.

Now, a recent scientific report published by researchers at North Carolina State University and the MSD AGVET Division of Merck & Co. Inc. underscores the importance of working with a veterinarian to control this costly external parasite.

According to the study, low levels of mange can cost producers $84-$115 per sow a year. It is estimated that mange is a problem on 90 percent of U.S. hog operations.

"Regardless of how many pigs you're running through your operation, mange can represent a significant drain on your bottom line," said Dr. Jay Brown a technical services veterinarian at Merck. "It's a very expensive itch!"

Dr. Brown adds that even though a herd may look healthy, chances are good that mange is present and reducing herd performance. "Trouble is, low levels of mange are difficult to detect and often the only signs are behavioral signs that producers may see as normal."

Mange can hinder pig performance in many ways.

"Mange mites live off of blood. Eventually mange mites cause a pig to become anemic, which depresses its immune system and makes the pig more susceptible to bacterial and viral infections," said Dr. Joseph Connor, swine practitioner in Carthage, Illinois. "Nervous, active sows are also more likely to crush their piglets, while aggressive rubbing and barbiting can cause costly damage to equipment and facilities."

The best way to determine the presence of mange mites is to take deep scrapings from the inside of the pig's ear, using a spoon, bone curet or other sharpened spoon-like instrument. (Veterinary supervision is recommended.) The debris is then examined by a veterinarian under a dissecting microscope or similar instrument. While this technique is effective, it should be noted that it is not uncommon for scrapings to be negative - even when mites have infested the herd.

"Any producer who suspects mange should get their veterinarian actively involved in assessing the problem amd planning a treatment program," said Dr. Brown.

For the past four years, Dr. Tim Loula, a swine practitioner in Nicollet, Minnesota, has been eliminating mange in swine herds using injectable IVOMEC® (ivermectin) a broad-spectrum endectocide that destroys mange mites as well as lice, roundworms, and lungworms.

"The program we've found most successful is to inject all pigs on a farm twice, treat and then isolate incoming breeding stock for 30 days, and make sure mange is not accidentally reintroduced to the farm on anyone's boots or coveralls, " he said.

Though mange sprays are also available, Dr. Loula explains that his clients prefer to inject hogs with IVOMEC because it's "a one-time business expense — whereas simply contolling mange

Transgenic Expert To Speak

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Can dairy cows be turned into "medicine factories?"

A national leader in the field of transgenic animals will discuss this possibility during a visit to Penn State this month.

Dr. Jeffery M. Rosen, professor of cell biology in the Baylor College of Medicine, Houston, Texas, will speak to Penn State students, staff, and faculty on October 11. He will present a technical seminar entitled "Milk Protein Gene Expression: From Basic Research to Biotechnology" at 11:15 a.m. in 107 Wartik Lab at the University Park campus.

Rosen also will discuss "The Mammary Gland as a Bioreactor" with students at 2:30 p.m. in 101 Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building. This classroom lecture is open to all Penn State students and the university community.

Rosen has been associated with the Baylor College of Medicine since 1973. Since 1984 he has codirected the college's medical training program.

He received his bachelor's degree in chemistry from Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., and his Ph.D. in biochemistry from the State University of New York, Roswell Park Division, in Buffalo, N.Y.

Rosen's visit to Penn State is sponsored by the department of dairy and animal science in the College of Agriculture; the intercollege Lactation Research Group; the department of molecular and cell biology in the Eberly College of Science; and the department of nutrition in the College of Health and Human Development.

Canine Heartworm Still Threatens

HARRSIBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Canine heartworm, a potentially fatal disease transmitted by infectious mosquitoes, continues to threaten dogs in south central counties of Pennsylvania, according to the latest study of the Pennsylvania Veterinary Medical Association (PVMA).

Forty-three veterinary hospitals in eight counties reported 147 cases of heartworm disease in 1990, up from 139 cases in 1989.

The veterinary association reports the following county totals for 1990 and 1989: two Adams County hospitals, 30, down from 32; nine Berks County hospitals, 22, down from 25; six Cumberland County hospitals, 17, up from 12; five Dauphin County hospitals, 15 for both years; four Franklin County hospitals, 17, Up from 10; 11 Lancaster County hospitals, 31 for both years; two Lebanon County hospitals, 0, down from 4; and four York County hospitals, 6, down from 10.

While there was an increase in the region, there was a general decrease in the number of reported cases statewide, according to Dr. Bruce E. Ilgen, of Reading, president of the more than 1,300-member veterinary association.

The survey found 688 confirmed cases of the disease in 157 hospitals reporting on the problem, down from 709 at the same hospitals in 1989. The figures were compiled with responses from about 25 percent of the veterinary hospitals in Pennsylvania.

"The slight decline statewide can be largely attributed to an increase in the number of dogs being given preventive medication," Dr. Ilgen said. "Responsible dog owners and wary veterinarians are slowly making progress against what is a devastating disease.

"Last year, 50 percent of the 566,000 dogs being seen in the hospitals responding were being given medication to prevent occurrence of heartworms," Dr. Ilgen continued. "In 1989, there were only 43 percent being treated and in 1988, only 35 percent. Each year, we have made a significant reduction in the total number of dogs at risk."

Some 70 types of mosquitoes carry the parasite that causes heartworm disease. Any dog that spends time outdoors is at risk, particularly those who live near water or wetlands where mosquitoes proliferate. However, even dogs who live primarily indoors can be afflicted by the disease.

When an infected mosquito bites a dog, it leaves behind microscopic heartworm larvae which enter the puncture wound and migrate through the tissue. Within a few months, the larvae migrate to the heart where they grow to adulthood, often as long as 14 inches. These worms reproduce, creating new larvae to be picked up by a mosquito again, repeating the cycle.

The disease kills by causing damage to the heart as well as the lung, liver and kidneys. Weakness, fatigue, chronic cough, loss of appetite and weight loss are signs that heartworm may be present. Unfortunately, by the time these signs are present, a dog may already have suffered irreversible damage.

Dog owners can protect their pets from heartworm disease by taking them to a veterinarian for testing each spring. Even if a dog tests positive, it can be saved if the disease is detected early enough.

If tests show no evidence of the disease, a dog should be put on a heartworm preventive. Monthly or daily preventives are available, but neither can be given to a dog if it already has adult heartworms.

with sprays requires labor and product costs on a regular basis."

Dr. Loula also thinks that increased earnings from this past year's $60 hog market should give hog producers added incentive to plan a mange-elimination program with their veterinarian.

"With higher prices and record profits, a lot of my clients are looking for some kind of tax deduction, so they don't mind the one-time business expense of treating for mange and making an all-out effort to eliminate this costly problem," the veterinarian said.

"In the future, when profits go back down, they'll want to have lower production costs and better margins - which they will have if they have successfully eliminated this external parasite."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds
BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.
MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.
ON-FARM MIXING
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

EBY ALUMINUM GRAIN BODY

CONSTRUCTED FOR YEARS OF MAINTENANCE-FREE SERVICE.

Look over these outstanding features.

- Less weight. Eby aluminum bodies weigh up to 30% less than comparable steel and wood construction.
- Less maintenance. Aluminum construction won't rust or rot - never needs painting.
- Long-life durability. Heavy-duty structural components and hollow-tube frame combine with aluminum floor and sides to stand up to years of hard work.

Distributor for WCCO Roll Tarps

TIPS ON TURKEY TO KEEP YOUR FESTIVITIES FESTIVE

Alan McConnell
Poultry Products
Extension Specialist
Department of Food Science

Many families will be inviting their relatives and friends to join them for Thanksgiving turkey. But they could be inviting unwanted food poisoning bacteria to dinner as well unless a few basic precautions are followed.

Most food poisoning, no matter what the type of food, occurs because of improper storage, handling, and preparation within the home. Careless handling — especially failure to keep food cold enough before preparation and during storage of the leftovers, and warm enough after cooking and during serving — allows the growth of food poisoning organisms such as Salmonella, Staphylococcus aureus, and Clostridium perfringens.

These microscopic bacteria cause flu-like symptoms of diarrhea, vomiting, and stomach cramps. Since these pathogens can be killed by cooking and controlled by refrigeration, common sense can keep them from putting a damper on your festivities.

When you're talking turkey — holiday turkey, that is — you need to pay special attention to four key areas: thawing, stuffing, and cooking the bird, and storage of the leftovers.

Properly thawing the turkey is something that should be planned ahead. Thawing it at room temperature can cause problems because the outside of the bird will warm up, giving microorganisms a chance to grow, while the inside remains cold or frozen.

The best way to thaw a turkey is in the refrigerator. Thawing will take about two days for an eight to 10 pound bird and three days for a 20 pound bird. Turkey can also be thawed in cold water, but be sure to change the water often to keep it cold. Or use your microwave and follow the manufacturer's instructions.

It may seem like a good idea to save time by stuffing your turkey the night before. But that's inviting trouble — harmful bacteria can multiply in the stuffing, even if you put the bird back in the refrigerator, and cause food poisoning. Do the stuffing right before the bird goes into the oven. If it is necessary to prepare stuffing in advance, cook and store it in a separate dish. Frozen, prestuffed turkeys should not be thawed before cooking.

Cook your turkey in a 325 degree F oven. Never partially cook it, thinking that you can finish it at a later time. Cookbooks and labels give a rough estimate of how long cooking will take, but the best way to tell when the bird is done is by using a meat thermometer.

The turkey is done when the temperature reaches 180 degrees F in the inner thigh of whole turkeys and in the center of the thickest part of turkey pieces. Stuffing temperature should reach at least 165 degrees F. When inserting a meat thermometer into the turkey, be careful that the tip isn't touching a bone. Bones will heat faster than the meat, giving the impression that cooking is done before it really is. Pop-up thermometers are also quite reliable.

After cooking, don't put the turkey back on the same cutting board or surface used for preparing the raw bird unless these are first thoroughly cleaned. Always carefully wash your cutting board, countertops, and hands after handling raw poultry and before handling other foods to avoid recontamination with fresh bacteria.

There are always leftovers after a holiday meal, but don't leave the turkey out for people to nibble while the festivities continue. A turkey that has remained at room temperature for several hours is the perfect environment for the growth of food poisoning bacteria. We can all potentially recontaminate food with unwashed hands, a misguided sneeze, and so on. Refrigerate your leftovers promptly to avoid any problems and use the leftover turkey within three to four days and the gravy and stuffing within one to two days.

Store your leftovers in containers with tight-fitting lids. Never place cooked foods on a shelf in the refrigerator that is below raw, uncooked foods.

This Thanksgiving, and every time you talk turkey (or chicken or whatever), take a little extra care to make sure your festivities remain festive, during dinner and after!

FARM MANAGEMENT

WAYS TO LOWER TAXES

Alan Strock
Farm Management Agent

Tax planning time is here again! With the drought and low milk prices of 1991, most farmers feel that their tax liability may be low this year, after all "I didn't make any money!"

We are still, however, feeling the effects of losing investment tax credits, minimal capital gains tax savings, increasing social security taxes, income averaging repeal, and slower depreciation.

So it's very difficult to get a feel for your tax liability by remembering how tight your cash flow was. So now, or at least before mid-December, is the time to project your income and expenses and calculate your tentative tax liability.

Remember that the goal of tax planning is to even out one's tax liability from year to year, not necessarily reduce liability to zero. If your projected liability is higher than you desire and/or higher than previous years, the following methods are available to lower your tax liability.

Six Ways To Lower Your Income Taxes

Like losing weight, there are many ways to lower your tax liability. Expenses on schedule F can save you up to 47.8 percent in taxes. The following are six basic ways to lower your tax liability: 1.) Prepay operating expenses. 2.) Purchase machinery or equipment. 3.) Pay your children for farm work. 4.) Increase the deductible portion of your itemized deductions. 5.) Make deductible payments to your IRA or Keogh plan. 6.) Defer income until 1992.

Each of these methods has unique advantages and disadvantages.

Prepaying Farm Expenses

Prepaying deductible farm expenses such as feed, seed, fertilizer, supplies or other regular operating expenses is the simplest way to lower taxes. The advantages of prepayment include dollar for dollar deductibility on schedule F (which will lower federal, state, and local income taxes along with social security taxes), ease of purchase, early order and quantity discounts, and avoiding possible future price increases and shortages of supply of commodities.

When prepaying or prepurchasing any service or commodity, you must obtain a receipt for a specific service or quantity of commodity at an established price per unit. An IRS auditor won't accept simply prepaying $5,000 on the feed bill.

The main disadvantage of prepaid expenses is that the total deductible prepaid expenses are limited to 50 percent of that years total deductible farming expenses (including depreciation, but excluding prepayment of supplies). The remaining balance of the prepaid expenses may be deducted in the year the items purchased are used. This rule, effective since March 1, 1986, will rarely affect any fulltime farmer.

Most times, once this practice is started, it takes an extremely unprofitable year to break the cycle. Look at this option very closely, because even if you must borrow money to prepay expenses, your tax savings could greatly exceed the interest expense.

Purchasing Machinery

Purchasing equipment is probably the second most commonly used method of lowering one's tax liability.

Its main advantage is that up to $10,000 of purchases can be expensed the first year under the IRS section 179 election. Section 179 expenses are also limited to farm profit, so the 179 expense can't reduce the schedule F to a loss.

Depreciable items not written off immediately under section 179 are allowed a half year's depreciation, unless more than 40 percent of your capital purchases are made after September 30.

If more than 40 percent of your capital purchases were made after September 30, then you can use only half of one quarter's depreciation, based on the quarter the asset was acquired, rather than the normal half year. The main disadvantage is that large amounts of money may be spent to receive a relatively small tax advantage.

Farmers have also spent large sums of money to save taxes and then later found themselves in financial distress and forced to borrow money to pay their taxes.

Itemized Deductions

To increase itemized deductions, you may want to make some or all of your normal 1992 charitable contributions in 1991. You could also pay your fourth quarter or yearly state estimate that's due January 15, 1992 before January 1.

Paying Your Children

Paying your children for their labor is an excellent way to retain money in the family and help your child pay for college and/or help them establish their own business. These payments must be a reasonable amount in relation to work performed and should be paid on a regular basis, not just annually.

Similar to any other employee, a record of hours worked must be kept. Consult your accountant before exercising this option because new rules apply to the taxation of minors. This alternative is not as attractive as previously because the minor could wind up paying taxes on their income at their parent's higher rate.

Retirement Plans

See your accountant for all the details concerning IRA and Keogh deductibility.

The big advantage of the IRA deduction, especially if your cash flow is tight, is that contributions can be made until and including the day your taxes are filed. Another advantage of the IRA's and Keogh's is that taxation is delayed until the money is withdrawn when more money may be

Agronomist Offers Nutrient Management Tips

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — As the weather gets cool and the leaves turn color, Pennsylvania farmers should be carefully planning their nutrient management strategy for the fall and winter months.

But many farmers delay or ignore fertility planning during the busy fall harvest season, said Dr. Douglas Beegle, associate professor of agronomy in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"It is economically and environmentally important to make time for nutrient management," he said.

The first step in the process is the soil test. "Fall is the best time of year to perform soil tests," said Beegle. "It's the time when nutrient levels are lowest, so you can get a good idea of what nutrients are needed most in your fertility program. Fall testing also gives farmers plenty of time before spring to get results back and make good decisions about the types and quantities of nutrients to apply."

Whether a farmer has soil tests in the spring or fall, it's important that they be done at the same time each year, Beegle said. "That way you can get consistent data and keep track of trends in your soil's nutrient level," he said.

Autumn is a time when a lot of manure is spread on fields, although the ideal time to apply manure is in the spring, closer to the time of peak plant growth. If you do plan a fall manure application, Beegle said it is important to plan carefully and not arbitrarily apply equal amounts to all fields.

"Fields should be prioritized, based on several factors," he said. "High priority fields should be those that test low for various nutrients, or those going into corn next season, since corn needs a lot of nitrogen. Also, consider fall or winter manure application for fields that usually are wet in the spring, so you can avoid digging ruts or compacting soft soil."

He said fields to avoid in the fall are those on steep slopes or near streams, where nutrients are likely to wash off before they can be utilized by next year's crops.

Before deciding how much manure to apply, said Beegle, have it analyzed so you know what you are spreading on the fields. Then, take into account the nutrient needs of the crops you plan to raise. It also is a good idea to calibrate your manure spreader to be sure the correct amount is being applied.

Planting a winter cover crop in the fall is usually a sound decision for a couple of reasons, according to Beegle. Without a cover crop, only about 20 percent of the nitrogen in the manure applied this fall will still be available to new crops next spring. By planting a winter grain or a cover crop, such as wheat or rye respectively, you can increase nitrogen utilization to about 40 percent. "The cover crop will scavenge nitrogen so it can't be lost," said Beegle. "Then when it's killed or plowed under in the spring, that nitrogen will be released for the next crop."

Beegle said a cover crop also will help drought-stricken farmers by providing forage for livestock feed. "A winter cover crop can help farmers overcome this year's short forage crops by giving them something to put in their silos in early May."

He said cover crops can be planted as late as November, but the earlier they are planted, the more nutrients they will take up before winter sets in and the more yield they will produce in the spring.

Deferring Income

Deferring livestock sales, capital asset sales, or any farm income may effectively lower your 1991 tax liability.

In Summary

Don't get frustrated, because if you are in the 31 percent federal tax bracket, for every $100 that you can lower your schedule F profit, you will save $47.80 in taxes. That is $31.00 federal income tax, $13.20 self employed social security, $2.60 state, and $1.00 local income taxes.

I hope this article offers a few ideas that you can use to lower and/or even out your tax liability. Be sure to consult with your accountant to determine which options will work best for you.

LIMIT SELECTION TRAITS FOR FASTEST RESULTS

Whether to keep or cull an animal should be based on objective, well thought-out criteria. Too often, though, culling decisions are made in haste and without regard to the long-term goals of a livestock enterprise.

Producers need to determine these goals first. For example, if you are in the business of producing feeder pigs, you may want to consider placing emphasis on selection for litter size. Or if you produce market hogs under an incentive program, you may want to select for carcass traits that will profit you most.

The key to successful selection and culling decisions is to limit the number of traits for which you select. Other factors to be considered include the potential for a given trait to be passed on to an animal's offspring (heritability), the variation that is naturally occurring in your herd, and the amount of money you are willing to invest in improving your herd.

The number of traits you select for makes a difference in ease and speed of genetic improvement. If you are interested in encouraging more than one trait, progress will be much slower since parent stock who excel in several different traits are harder to find than individual animals who excel in only one. Genetic improvement is faster if you select for only one trait at a time.

The rate at which improvements can be expected for a particular trait must be considered as well. Heritability (percent variation in performance as the result of genetic effects) varies, depending on the trait for which you are selecting.

You can expect to make less progress with reproductive traits then performance traits. Similarly, performance traits are not as heritable as carcass traits. Simply put, reproductive traits (such as litter size and number of pigs weaned) are influenced less by selection than performance traits (such as growth rate or feed efficiency) or carcass traits (such as backfat and loin-eye area).

Another factor that affects herd improvement potential is the genetic variation that occurs within the herd. For example, if all animals in your herd have a backfat measurement of 1.0 inch at the last rib at 230 pounds, then you cannot expect to make improvements in backfat at the last rib by selecting individuals from this herd. On the other hand, if a wide variation exists for backfat within your herd (let's say 0.75 inch to 1.5 inches at 230 pounds), then improvements can be made by selecting the leaner animals in your breeding program. You need variations to make genetic improvements.

If you have a herd with little variation, you may have to select breeding stock from other herds to make improvements. This is where financial commitment enters into genetic improvement. And selecting animals who excel in a particular trait can be expensive. Boars with exceptional growth rates, feed efficiencies, backfat measurements, or loin-eye areas are usually worth more since these traits are sought after by many producers.

Often the decision to purchase a particular boar to use in your replacement female breeding program will be dictated by the cost. Many producers can't or won't spend a lot of money to secure an outstanding boar to use in their breeding program. The decision on how much to spend on a boar should be based on the potential return that boar can make to your operation.

These figures can be calculated based on several factors: the specific trait for which you are selecting, the heritability of that trait, the economic return for a specific improvement, and the number of females you intend to breed to this boar.

Genetic betterment in any herd is attainable if producers are willing to make improvement an objective of their selection, breeding, and culling decisions.

PFU Meets With Ag Secretary

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Allen Deiter, president of Pennsylvania Farmers Union (PFU), was among the 24 members of the National Farmers Union who told U.S. Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan that the Bush Administration needs to begin focusing attention on the immediate needs of American farmers in addition to activities in the international arena.

The Farmers Union delegation, headed by NFU President Leland Swenson, told Madigan that "sensible, reasonable, and significant changes" in U.S. farm policies are necessary for the survival of family farm producers.

"I agree with Senator Robert Dole (R-KS) when he calls the farm economy a 'house of cards,'" Swenson said in reference to a letter Dole sent to the White House last week.

President Allen Deiter, in Washington lobbying as part of a NFU legislative fly-in, told Madigan that immediate action is needed to reform federal dairy policy and to provide disaster assistance to farmers whose crops were hurt by weather disasters this year.

"We have dairy and livestock farmers in Pennsylvania that must purchase hay by December or January to replace the roughage lost on their farm because of drought. Corn and soybean losses vary from minor to 100 percent," said Allen Deiter.

The farmers union members articulated the hardships they are facing because of low prices for milk, grain, and livestock. They believe policies that would provide incentives for production management are the key to their survival on the farm.

A proposed two-tier dairy program, under which farmers would be discouraged from overproducing as a way to stabilize market forces, is an example of the kind of program the farmers say they want. Although a version of the two-tier proposal did not make it through Congress before the August recess is still pending, NFU is pushing to have it considered again before lawmakers adjourn for the year.

But, the farmers said Madigan was intransigent about the dairy bill.

"He expressed no willingness whatsoever to negotiate or compromise at all on a supply management program for dairy," said Swenson.

Building Soil The Old Fashioned Way

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Composted manures, an old fashioned method of fertilizing crops, provides more than nutrients for growth, according to Dr. Kenneth L. Steffen, assistant professor of vegetable crop physiology, Penn State.

"When chemical fertilizers and pesticides were introduced to American agriculture, the results were so dramatic that some practices such as the use of cover crops and green manures were largely abandoned," said Steffen. "Subsequent agricultural research efforts focused in large part on improved use and further development of agrichemicals as the foundation for steady increases in crop productivity per area of land.

"With increasing costs for scarce resources and increasing concerns about the environment and food safety, it's time to rethink how we do agricultural production and investigate alternative production strategies," Steffen told attendees at the annual meeting of the American Society of Horticulture Science, held on Penn State's campus in University Park.

"Agriculturalists have long been aware of the many benefits obtained in crop production from soil organic matter which acts as a buffer, evening out the effects of a host of factors," said Steffen.

The maintenance of soil organic matter content is one area that has suffered neglect in modern farming practices. Organic matter has been ignored because synthetic fertilizers can provide all the nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium that plants need, increased tillage can temporarily alleviate soil compaction problems, and irrigation can compensate for decreases in the ability of the soil to hold moisture.

Steffen, and other researchers at Penn State have been using spent mushroom compost, an agricultural waste product, in a system designed to rapidly build up the soil's organic matter content.

The results show that soils with high organic matter content help buffer fluctuations in the availability of water and nutrients to growing crops. While chemical fertilizer initially provides a big charge of fertility, soils with high organic

United States Senator Harris Wofford A friend to Agriculture

U.S. Senator Harris Wofford (on right) assessing the effects of the drought on the Brown Hill Farm in Wyoming County with Keith Eckel (Left) and Phil Brown (Center).

"The Bush Administration wants to give unconditional 'Most-Favored-Nation' trade status to China. I think it's time we give 'Most-Favored-Neighbor' status to our farmers. We all have a responsibility to see that farming remains a strong and vital part of Pennsylvania's economy."

— U.S. Senator Harris Wofford

Senator Wofford has:

* Cosponsored legislation to ease the financial effects of the drought
* Submitted testimony on the low milk prices
* Supported the 1992 Ag Budget which included the Extension Service, 4-H, and various commodity programs.

Weed Scientist Looks To Ridge Till

NEWARK, Del. — Frank Webb, University of Delaware Cooperative Extension weed specialist, is one of a new breed of experiment station researchers.

Webb, whose position is funded with extension and experiment station money, has been researching ridge tillage of corn as part of a five-year project. Now in his third year of the project, Webb said practical application is what motivates his study.

"The need for applied research and its results is real and immediate," said Webb. "As a weed specialist, my responsibility is first and utmost getting answers to the agricultural community through the extension system."

Webb is using about 50 acres of the Experiment Station grounds at the Research and Education Center in Georgetown, Del., for his projects. His current Hatch Act project, "Weed Control and Cover Crop Management for Ridge-Till Corn," takes up about two acres.

Experiment Stations were created by the Hatch Act as a way for land-grant colleges to respond to the needs of the agricultural community.

Webb's first reason for researching ridge till is to respond to the questions posed to extension agents by their clients. Webb believed that much of the research on ridge till was incomplete or not based on scientific principles. At the end of his five-year project, he will be able to present the agricultural community with some scientifically sound guiding principles for using ridge till in corn.

"I'm not necessarily an advocate for ridge till," Webb said. "I am researching an alternative method of corn production."

A second reason for his investigation is that ridge till allows for less overall tillage than conventional practices.

"With ridge till you avoid the massive earth moving of conventional tillage, which can lead to soil erosion," Webb said. "Another advantage is that fewer passes across the field are needed, so a farmer conserves fuel and saves time."

With this method the field is tilled into ridges on the second cultivation of the previous year's crop. The very top of the ridge is cut off when the seed is planted the following spring. The first cultivation pulls soil away from the crop row and covers weeds between the rows. Soil is again mounded around the corn on the second cultivation when the plants are about 12-18 inches high. Small weeds in the corn row are killed when they are covered by the soil. In addition, the ridge is established for the next year's crop.

Ridge till presents several advantages. The ridge, about 14 inches high, offers an early warming effect on the soil. The elevation of the ridges also lifts the plants out of wet ground, and allows for uniform stands and early growth.

The need to reduce groundwater contamination by pesticides has sparked interest in the ridge-till method, which uses less pesticide than either conventional or no-till methods. A third reason for the project is to develop a commercially acceptable program with reduced herbicide use.

Webb is investigating both banding and broadcasting as ways to apply pesticides with the ridge-till method. Pesticides can be reduced by using banding (spraying only the ridge where the crop grows). Banding permits an immediate 3/4 reduction of pesticides. Webb is also growing plots with no pesticide, but said results have been poor so far.

The use of select cover crops may also play an important role in weed suppression in ridge-till corn. Webb has worked with both crimson clover and cereal rye to suppress weed growth in the field. Crimson clover has the advantage of adding nitrogen to the soil. Cereal rye is presenting some problems. Because of its height and mass, it can be difficult to make the first cultivation.

Webb said the biggest challenge in ridge till is what to do with the headlands or turn rows at the end of a field. With conventional methods, the headlands are planted in rows at right angles to the main field.

"Cultivating headlands that have been ridge-tilled would be like driving over a series of speed bumps — hard on the equipment and the operator," Webb said. "We haven't found good solutions to that problem. But anyone considering ridge till needs to be aware of it.

"Ridge till is not a panacea, but it allows for less overall tillage and functions well in a reduced herbicide routine," the specialist said. "There's a lot that can go wrong with ridge till. You're combining three critical inputs into one operation: planting, cultivating, and spraying. Everything must work properly. But that's why we're doing the research, to work out some of the problems and get some answers."

University of Delaware Cooperative Extension weed specialist Frank Webb demonstrates the depth of the corn row in his ridge-till trials. Webb's research is to determine the economic and environmental advantages of ridge till in corn production.

"Last year we incorporated a large amount of organic matter into field plots and successfully grew tomatoes with yields that were 67 percent higher than in conventionally managed plots. This year we are growing sweet corn in the same field without the addition of any nutrients," said Steffen.

"The sweet corn in the previously amended plots is clearly outperforming the conventional plots and I would not be surprised to find that we could grow a cabbage crop next season without any additional fertility amendments.

"Soil is the single most important element of annual crop production systems because it is the only reservoir of production practices that carry over from year to year," said Steffen.

Not only does soil organic matter help with water and nutrients, but the breakdown of organic materials helps produce the clumps or aggregated soil particles that keep air and water spaces in the soil open and help prevent root diseases.

Steffen and the researchers compared three production systems for growing tomatoes which differ in level of material, labor and management inputs and pest control strategies.

The low input/synthetic chemical system uses no mulch, overhead irrigation, no plant staking, no formal pest scouting and synthetic chemicals to eradicate or prevent the establishment of pests.

The high input/synthetic chemical system uses plastic mulch, trickle irrigation, plant staking and pest scouting and a range of synthetic and biological materials to control pests when they reach the economic threshold.

The high input/ biological system includes the incorporation of well rotted manure and spent mushroom compost to alter soil properties and supply fertility and uses only biological materials to control pests.

Results of the study showed that all three systems in all permutations earned a net profit. The highest returns were seen for the high input/biological system, with its amended soil when fungicides were also used.

"It should be noted that the high input/biological system bore the entire cost of the soil building compost and manure applications, even though this cost would normally be spread out over a number of years," said Steffen. "After the first year, inputs of organic amendments would decrease."

Studies of field crops, such as corn and soybeans, show that it takes a five year transition period of soil building practices before growers who are attempting to make a transition to organic production can begin to economically compete with conventional growers.

Little work of this type has been done with vegetable crop production, according to Steffen.

"Our studies with tomatoes suggest strategies that would benefit both conventional and organic growers and offer growers switching to more organic production practices a way to avoid or shorten the economically draining transition period," said Steffen.

The Penn State researchers are continuing with their study which will rotate crops through the three systems to determine their productivity. After tomatoes, the fields will be planted with members of the cabbage family, cucumber family and then sweet corn, snap beans, a root crop or green manure in successive seasons.

"We want to look at the entire system, as well as individual components like fertilizer or irrigation, and come up with a system that balances concern for the environment, consumption of scarce, nonrenewable resources and grower profitability," said Steffen.

Researchers involved in the study include Penn State faculty from the departments of horticulture, plant pathology, entomology, and agricultural economics and rural sociology.

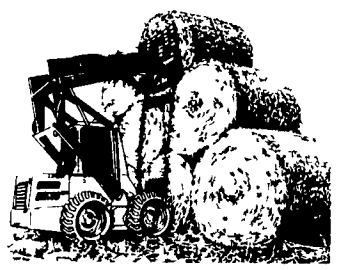
Unmatched dump reach



New Holland Super Boom loaders lift the payload forward as the boom rises so you get more forward reach where you need it most. Super Boom loaders also feature:

- A longer wheelbase for greater stability.
- An integral cab and rollover structure.
- Gas or diesel, air- or water-cooled engines from 18 to 57 horsepower
- Operating loads from 600 to 2,050 pounds

Ask for a demonstration. Find out how much better a skid-steer loader can be

How KINZE designed the world's best Auger Wagon.

Low-profile extra-big tank means more clearance for the combine auger Less than 10 ft height on all models

We put the auger up front where you can see it control it Over 12 ft unloading height

Hydraulic fold self-aligning augers and over center locks

3-minute unloading with vertical and horizontal augers You unload at full capacity wet or dry from start to finish Less grain damage because augers run full Much more efficient than single auger carts

High-flotation tires standard equipment! So you keep moving, even in soft, greasy fields

Finest American-made, industrial grade components money can buy, with chain oiler and grease bank for easy maintenance

2 1 sprocket reduction drive system Especially important when unloading high-moisture grain

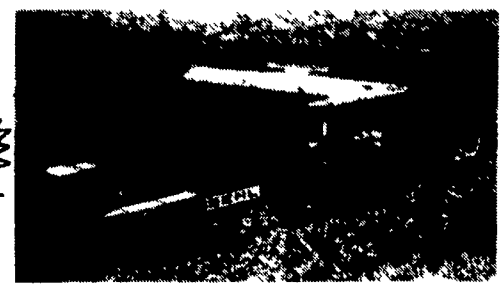
GOOD GEHL MOWER CONDITIONERS

Gehl keeps it simple. Gehl products have been responsive to farmers' needs for over 130 years. And in that time, we've gained a reputation as a leader—introducing innovative products that stress performance and reliability

Design simplicity translates into less downtime. That means your Gehl equipment will operate at its maximum cost-effectiveness well into the future.

9' w/Hydraulic Swing Eligible For Waiver



Gehl's mower conditioner line continues that tradition. Uncomplicated sickle and conditioner roll drive systems deliver extra cutting force and thorough conditioning, with fewer moving parts.

With Gehl mower conditioners you get:

- High-speed cutting. At up to 1640 strokes-per-minute, you'll get through tough cutting conditions with ease.
- Outstanding conditioning. Ultra-fast drying times—a result of intermeshing rubber rolls with intermittent ribs that provide more working edges than continuous-ribbed rolls
- Three point flotation support. Lateral and vertical flotation for clean cutting in uneven fields and fast reaction for cutterbar protection from field obstructions.
- Easy serviceability. Simple design, easy adjustments, lower maintenance and less wear.

Gehl mower conditioners are available in 7- and 9-foot conventional models or 12- and 14-foot swing frame units

Pick the Gehl mower conditioner that fits your operation. We're sure you'll agree that the best ideas are usually the simplest... like Gehl mower conditioners.

Must Sell At Reduced Price!

12' Swing Frame

BOTH OF THESE MOWER CONDITIONERS ARE SOLD WITH 2 YEAR WARRANTIES!

THE NEW STANDARD FOR HIGH-PERFORMANCE LOADER WORK.

New Loaders For Maxxum 5100 Series Tractors!

A new Case International MAXXUM tractor and 510 loader are perfect for loader work. Here's why:

- A standard shuttle shift transmission lets you shift from forward to reverse without clutching
- The new 510 loader lifts 3,500 pounds up to 12 feet.
- MFD (Mechanical Front Drive) provides increased traction and stability (optional).
- Three mid range MAXXUM models give you a choice of power, 77, 86 and 94 PTO hp (57, 64 and 70 kW)

Loading performance is just one of many reasons to own a MAXXUM tractor. Take a look at the choice of synchronized or powershift transmissions and durable Case International engines. And the choice of ROPS (roll-over protective structure) ROPS with canopy or deluxe cab... and more.

All three models are backed by the best warranty* in the business, five years or 5,000 hours, whichever occurs first. Come in to see the MAXXUM tractor line today.

IN STOCK Ready to be mounted on a tractor

Corn Fodder Baling Takes A Tough Baler, That's Why A Case IH Baler Shoud Be Your Next Baler!

A STRAIGHT LINE IS STILL SHORTEST

CASE INTERNATIONAL Rectangular Balers 8520/8530/ 8545/8550/8580

We Have Models 8520-8530 & 8545 In Stock For Your Tough Baling needs - Call Or Stop In & See Binkley & Hurst Soon!

Produce tighter, more uniform bales—on schedule.

That's why all five 8500 Series Case IH Rectangular Balers give you center line design. Your hay moves in a straight line from the time it's picked up until it leaves the baler as a tight, uniform bale.

Center line means there are no corners to turn to get crop into the bale chamber as with conventional balers. Nutritious leaves go into the bale, not on the ground. And with the baler directly behind the tractor, it's easy to transport through narrow bridges and gates.

Case IH Rectangular Balers also give you:

- Wide, low profile pickups collect full, heavy windrows with leaf saving gentleness because the crop is not lifted as high to get it into the baler
- Prepacker chamber compresses hay into uniform flakes
- Flake size, density and bale size are more uniform
- High speed, short stroke plunger to pack bales tighter
- Hydraulic density control (optional on 8545, standard on 8550/8580) to regulate chamber pressure for tighter, square shouldered bales for easier stacking

If You Enjoy A Beautifully Groomed Lawn, You Need A Case IH 3 Pt. Finish Turf Mower Which Will Fit Any Brand Of Tractor With Cat I 3 Pt. Hitch And 540 PTO.

For A Quality Machine - See Binkley & Hurst Soon!

The Models 60RS and 72RS are 3-point hitch mounted finishing cut mowers designed for Case IH tractors in the 15 to 40 PTO hp (11.2 to 29.8 kW) range. Both 60RS and 72RS feature heavy duty gear box, shielded PTO drives, "B" section V-belt, blade spindle drive with spring loaded idler, and free-floating three-point lift system.

Three spindle, high lift blade design provides smooth operation. Heavy gauge steel deck promotes long life. Two rollers and full pivoting gauge wheels are standard.

Case IH 60RS and 72RS mowers are easy to attach and control, easy to service and built for quality mowing, year after year.

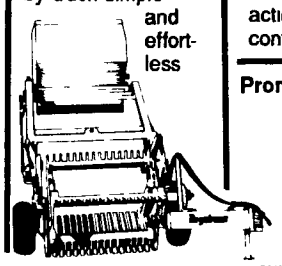
"BEST IN THE FIELD...WHERE IT COUNTS"

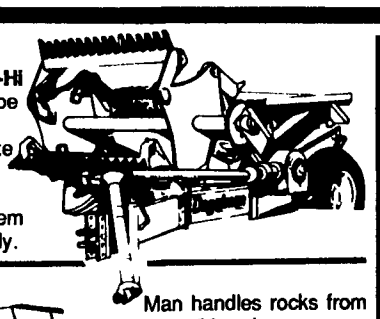
Degelman

ROCK PICKERS

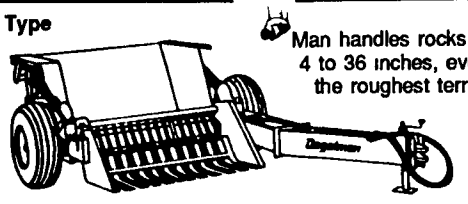
Hi-Lift
The Hi-Lift makes field piling and the removal of rocks by truck simple and effortless



Semi-Hi
A hardworking reel type picker ideal for field piling. Picks gravel-size stones to boulders in continuous picking action, then dumps them conveniently and easily.



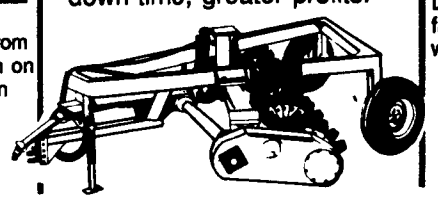
Prong Type



Man handles rocks from 4 to 36 inches, even on the roughest terrain

ROCK RAKE

The Degelman Rock Rake is designed to windrow small to medium sized rocks and other ground debris for easy picking. Rock-free fields mean less down-time, greater profits.



TIME IS MONEY

and when your equipment is down, it costs you plenty. That's why Degelman engineered farm implements are a wise investment.

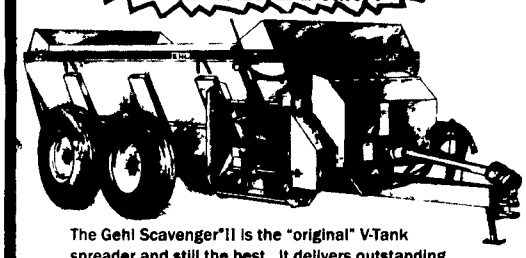
North America's #1-Selling V-Tank Spreader

From BINKLEY & HURST BROS. - Your GEHL Dealer!



The Gehl Scavenger"II is the "original" V-Tank spreader and still the best It delivers outstanding performance in all types of manure, from liquid to semi-solid to pen-packed or even frozen manure

- Patented square-tube auger — Hydraulically powers up and down to break up solid material
- Variflo discharge — Spreads smoothly and evenly for complete application control
- Five models — From 192 to 596 bushel heaped capacities to match your operation
- 10-year warranty — Against rust-through on the tank for peace of mind
- Options include — Truck-mounted units and hydraulic lids

GEHL.

Let CTI Forks lift your profits. Lower your costs.

Why pay more to move material at your jobsites? Especially when you can increase a loader's or backhoe's versatility and get it and your operator to do more for you? On many jobs. CTI Forks eliminate the need for a separate forklift. And, no other fork attachment can match CTI's in price, simple mounting and years of dependability. Just ask any one of the thousands of customers who own them.

What's more, CTI Forks aren't limited to one machine. Weld extra sets of brackets to the top lip of a loader bucket with similar capacity. When one machine isn't using the forks, a second or third machine can. CTI Forks help crews move these loads. Pipe Conduit. Lumber. Brick. Sheeting. Roofing tiles. Any palletized load.

Mounts to your loader bucket in seconds. An operator simply positions his bucket so that the welded-on brackets slip under the mounting bar. Then, he rolls back the bucket to secure the fit. Seven models.

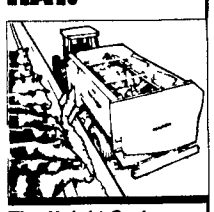
HOW TO MAKE SHORT WORK OUT OF MIXING LONG HAY.



The Knight Series 2000 Reel Auggie® blends long dry hay into a TMR faster than other mixers.

- Blends long stem dry hay in a TMR ration
- Patented reel design reduces dead spots and compaction
- Mixes faster with less force and pressure for longer machine life and a more palatable ration
- Available in tow, truck and stationary models
- Mixing capacities from 105 to 390 cu ft

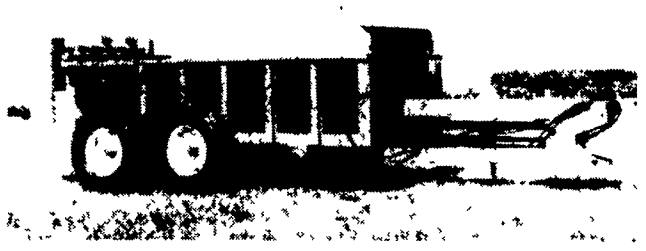
FREE YOURSELF FROM SPREADER CHAINS AND SAVE MONEY



The proven Hydra-Spread design can free you from the grief and maintenance of spreader apron chains for good!

This low maintenance spreader features solid poly boards both on the sides and the floor for slippery, no-stick performance. Hydraulic push power replaces the extensive mechanism needed in ordinary spreaders.'

Why pay more for yesterday's ideas and designs? The design of tomorrow is PRICED RIGHT and will be on the job for years. We deliver to your farm.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

- New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
- 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
- Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability Our studies have shown that 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure. We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 ry. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and carles a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.
* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450 00
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200 00

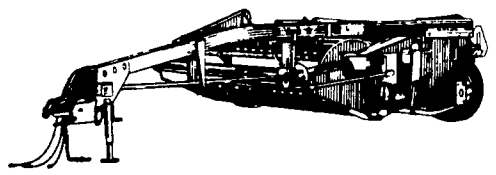
BIG CAPACITY AT A DOWN-TO-EARTH PRICE



Case International 8350 Mower Conditioner

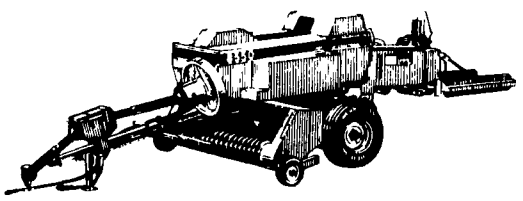
If you want to process more hay faster check out the Case International 8350 Mower Conditioner It lets you make high volume 12-foot cuts while still leaving fast drying nine foot swaths Or eliminate raking by adjusting the swath shield to form smooth even windrows All at a price you d expect to pay for a smaller unit You also get

- Aggressive to gentle conditioning as needed
- Two augers for more even distribution across full width of the conditioner
- Counterbalanced springs for outstanding vertical and radial flotation
- Hydraulic cylinder for changing tongue from field to road position from tractor seat

For more output at less cost, come see us.

Case International 8550 Rectangular Baler

ALL THE MOST-WANTED FEATURES ARE STANDARD



For producers who prefer bigger bales here's a baler that s loaded with standard features The 8550 is made for the user who wants bales of 16 by 18 inch cross sections 12 to 52 inches long Standard features include

- The Case IH center line design saves more protein rich leaves because there are no augers or 90° turns to knock off the leaves
- Hydraulic density control automatically helps maintain bale weight and density
- Positive bale length mechanism maintains uniform length important for mechanical stacking or shipping
- Equal angle hitch for sharp turns without PTO vibration

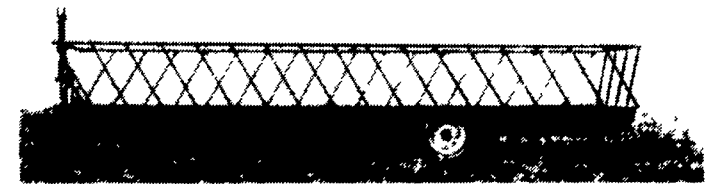
FEEDER WAGONS

16', 21' and 27' lengths
Available with hopper, dolly wheels or self-locking head gates.



A Great Feature for feeding cattle in meadows or in feed lots. These wagons can be used to feed round hay bales, square bales or silage out of ag bags or silos, etc. The added feature of having the headlocks make it nice for quick vet checks, etc.

16' has 20 headlocks 27' has 32 headlocks
21' has 26 headlocks

- Feeder bottoms constructed of ¼" metal, are sandblasted to remove rust and lead.
- Hitch can be swung in upward position when not being towed.

The New Holland "132" bale carrier from Ford New Holland lets you store bales in a mow with a minimum of manpower and hassle.

The 17-foot base unit is rugged and lightweight. When mounted on an optional chassis, the unit can be raised or lowered to the desired elevation angle with a winch.

Section-by-section construction adds to its versatility. Bale chute is optional.

PROOF THAT OPTIMALLY GROWN HEIFERS ARE HEAVIER MILK PRODUCERS.

The most obvious reason for heifers to freshen on Purina's recommended 24 month/1,400 pound schedule is increased milk production in the first lactation. While both factors are important, records at the Northeast DHI Processing Center prove that weight has more influence than age. Note in the graph how production increases as body weight increases. At the 1,250 pound level, most of the improvement in milk potential has been realized. Heifers at the heaviest body weight actually show a decline in milking ability, presumably because of improper mammary development resulting from excessive growth rates.
